ACCIDENT AT CEDAR SPRINGS.

Homer Bearas and his wife, who lived in Courtland Center, went to Cedar Springs to do some shopping Tuesday and started for home. When two miles south of town their horse became frightened and ran away. The two-wheeled vehicle in which they were riding struck a stump and threw them out. One of the wheels passed over Mrs. Bearas' head, cutting a frightful gash the entire length of her cheek. It is supposed the horse kicked Mr. Bearas as there was an ugly wound in the back of his head. A man who saw them directly after the accident decided they were dead, notified the neighbors and Dr. Swanton was sent for from Cedar Springs. When he arrived the unfortunate farmer and his wife were still lying in the road. The doctor took them in charge, did what he could and returned for assistance to sew up the ghastly wound in the woman's face; but she died shortly after 5 o'clock. She was insensible from the time the accident occurred. Mr. Bearas is not expected to live and is raving. The pair had been married only about four weeks.

GRAND RAPIDS SUICIDE.

Major Campbell Brown, aged fifty-three, a wealthy stock raiser of Nashville, Tenn., committed suicide in Grand Rapids Wednesday by shooting himself through the head.

When the coroner examined the pockets of the deceased he found a memorandum book in which was written a large number of notes relative to the "faith cure" lectures. There were many sentences evidently taken down during a lecture and others were notes made after. On one page was written, "To doubt is to experience hell," and upon other pages were written portions of the "faith cure" prayer and blessings to be asked at meals. In one pocket was a watch and $7.50 in money.

Campbell Brown gained his title of major in the late war, in which he served upon the Confederate side, and since the war he has been engaged in raising blooded horses upon a fine farm near the city of Nashville, where his widow and children have been living. He is described by those who have become acquainted with him in this city, as a thorough gentleman, cultured, well educated and refined in every way. For several years, however, it is said that he has been subject to a malady which affected his mind and made him insane at times. He was in private asylums for treatment in Washington and elsewhere but did not improve.

Call and examine the big stock of guns just received at R. D. Stocking's.

STILL ANOTHER.

On Monday night Policeman Blakeslee found William Proctor, of this township, on the streets in a drunken condition, and endeavored to get him off home or to bed. Mr. Proctor refused to go, and began insulting and swearing at the officer who was compelled to arrest the man. After a protracted struggle the he was lodged in jail, and Tuesday morning Justice Hicks fined him $15 and $3.75 costs.

SOME HORSE RACING.

A little trotting was indulged in by Lowell horsemen last Saturday, and quite a crowd gathered to witness the same.

One race was between Pat Kelly's Greenbush colt and Frank Flanagan's driving mare, the latter winning. Stakes, $1.

Race number two was between J. C. Train's horse, Dunning, and Flanagan's mare. Stakes were $5, and Train won.

It is proposed to have some more fun one week from today on Train's track, when the above named horses and William Murphy's Lady Murphy will try for a purse of $15. In addition there will probably be some running.

ANOTHER MISHAP.

James McHale, who has been employed in the railroad tie mill at Fallsburg, had the misfortune to cut off the two middle fingers of one hand on Monday. He came to Lowell and received needed attention from Dr. Greene.

SAW THE BIG SHOW.

Mark Rubens has returned from his combined business and pleasure trip to Chicago, where he purchased his fall stock of clothing and gent's furnishings, and visited the World's fair. Mr. Rubens is enthusiastic in his description of what he saw, and thinks that one who desires to know more of the world will feel amply repaid for a visit to the big show.

SOME PEACHES.

Nathan Blair estimates his present crop of peaches at 1,500 bushels, and he has contracted the whole crop to Chicago parties at $1 per bushel, delivered at the D., G. H. & M. station. The purchasers furnish baskets.

Mathew Hunter also has a large crop of peaches, and has contracted his crop to Owosso parties at $1.25 per bushel, including baskets.
Lowell fair Oct. 3, 4, 5 and 6.

DEATH OF ALVIN C. DAVIS.

Alvin C. Davis, of Grattan, died at his residence Wednesday morning from the effects of a bad rupture. Mr. Davis was an old settler in Grattan, a staunch republican and has been supervisor of his township, and was respected and beloved by all who knew him.

IMPROVEMENTS.

The King Milling company have been making some extensive improvements on their property, and much over hauling, and are now in full readiness for their busy season. They have added a storage capacity for wheat of 10,000 bushels to their elevator.

IN DURANCE VILE.

Charles Vancise, who sometime ago over drove, over kept and deserted a livery rig for J. E. Fallas, is now serving a ninety day term in the county jail for cashing and appropriating another man's check. Asked when he expected his pay, Mr. Fallas replied, "God only knows."
Lowell fair Oct. 3, 4, 5 and 6.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Noss Jollities, a musical novelty company, are booked for Train's opera house for September 21.

A Detroit dramatic company is headed for Lowell with "Only a Farmer's Daughter." Music hall, September 25.

FELL IN THE STREET.

William Graham, a farmer, living several miles south of Lowell, was stricken with a congestive chill while on the streets Tuesday evening, and fell helpless to the ground. He was carried into Train's hotel and medical aid summoned. He was able to go home the following day.

PLUCKY WOMAN.

Quite a flurry of excitement was created on Main street Thursday morning by a runaway horse, driven by a lady, Mrs. Charles Bancroft, of Alto. The animal in switching flies had got a good grip on the line with its tail, and not liking the sensation started to run, and when turning a corner off from Main street narrowly overturned the vehicle. Mrs. Bancroft, who had a little child in the carriage with her, pluckily hung on and finally succeeded in stepping the horse unaided and unhurt.

Pay a Little, Now.

Stringency in monetary affairs is caused by the fact that there is a general tendency on the part of all classes hold back money. There is just as much money in existence now as there is in what we call "flush" times. But, with the prevailing distrust and lack of confidence, there is a disposition on the part of everybody to hold onto the cash. What is needed more than anything else is to start that cash into circulation by paying debts. If every man and woman in this community were to begin this morning, paying even a part of their obligations, the whole situation would be changed in a week. The householder owes his milkman a small bill; the milkman owes the blacksmith; the blacksmith owes the grocer; the grocer owes somebody else. Each holds on to his money. Collections becomes difficult. The money market is tight. A general influence of stringency and a resulting dullness prevail. Almost every man in the community might do something, at once, by paying at least a part of what he owes. If every man who owes a small bill, no matter how small, were to pay even twenty-five per cent. of the amount, today, there would be an immediate improvement in the situation. Let everybody begin at once, by paying something.—Grand Rapids Democrat.

A Clever Ruse.

A servant girl had pricked her finger with the prong of a fork, and seemed greatly distressed about it.
"Only think, ma'am," she said to her mistress, "if it was German silver, inflammation or blood poisoning might set in."
"Don't alarm yourself, child; the forks are real silver, take my word for it."
"You are quite sure?"
"Positive."
Next morning the silver and the girl had gone off by the first train.—[Gazette des Tribunaux.]

When you touch a man's purse you touch a sensitive spot. Tickets 25 cents. A good dinner 25 cents. This is as it should be at the Kent County fair. 12-

The LEDGER acknowledges receipt of premium list and admission ticket to the Cedar Springs fair, to be held September 5-8. The society shows good sense in leaving the words "not transferable" off its press tickets. There is a tendency everywhere among such organizations to dead beat their advertising, in other words to get something for nothing, which makes the course of the Cedar Springs society all the more honorable. We wish for the Cedar Springs fair a big success.
