What is a

Sanitary Refrigerator?

TIS NOT one in which mould developes, germs breed and poisonous oxides form. How many refrigerators on the market will stand test on these lines? Dr. Geo. C. Perkins has succeeded in producing an article which fulfills the requirements. This we present to the public in full belief that it is without a single equal in the vast number of refrigerators made. It is absolutely dry. This being a fact, not a mere claim, mould is impossible, germs cannot live, nor can oxides form.

This is accomplished in a manuer which is simplicity itself, based on the physical law of expansion of cases, which in construction of the box creates.

physical law of expansion of gases, which in construction of the box creates a draught, taking in air on one side of the ice chamber and expelling it on the other, after having passed but once through the provision chamber.

In this way foul odors and all dampness are drawn off, making it possible to keep the most susceptible of foods, such as butter and cream, in the same chamber with vegetables and fruits of any kind whatever, without in any way becoming tainted. Meats, raw or cooked, may be preserved indefinitely in the hottest weather; and the ice evaporates instead of rots, less than two-thirds is used as compared with the best of old style refrigerators.

Those who assert that wine growing countries are largely exempt from the evils of intemperance need not point to France in proof of their assertion. The habitual use of wine often creates the craving which seeks for such stronger stimulants as absinthe or vermuth. Of about three thousand prisoners in the department of the Seine, in which Paris is situated, it is officially stated, more than two thousand were drunkards. The number of suicides induced by habits of intemperance is said to have more than doubled in recent years. Care of Farm Implement The rise in the price of implements will bring about one good result if it arouses farmers to the importance of taking care of their purchases. The lack of timber in many portions of the prairie states and the poverty of pioneers compelled them at the start to do without some of the buildings considered necessary on an eastern farm. A shack for the shelter of live stock was frequently all that could be afforded by the new settler, and his implements suffered in consequence. Had the improvidence stopped there the results would not have been serious, for in a few years those pioneers had either accumulated enough to properly equip their farms with tools and buildings, or had been forced of business through an ability to cope with conditions. Unfortunately, however, thriftless habits remained when all excuse for such practices had pass-
