WORK BEGINS SOON THE THIRD ANNUAL

ROAD.

Construction Men Have Walked Over the Route.

Actual work of construction on the Grand Rapids & Ionia Eletric road is to begin shortly, according to information possessed by J. K. Johnston one of the property owners at Cascade, who has assisted the company in securing the right of way in that locality.

Mr. Johnston said this morning that early in the week two men had arrived here from Cincinnati and arrived here from Cincinnati and after quietly eating breakfast at one of the hotels, had walked over the proposed rout of the road, through the Cascade district. After their inspection they had called on Charles Holt and had told him they were members of the construction company, one being the superintendent who will have the direction of the of the work.

They said they were pleased with the route as surveyed and that they would begin operations within a short time. They added that the work would have begun before this, but that they were engaged in building a forty-mile railway out from Cincinnati and that one place made it necessary for them to blast through solid rock. This had delayed them, but having the rock now cleared away, they could leave the continuance of that road building to subordinates and give their attention to the Ionia line.—[Grand Rapids Press, July 16.

"Interurban news? No, I have nothing new to speak of at present except that I am working between Lyons and Pewamo and have the right-of-way nearly all secured.

"Oh, yes; the electric road will surley run around by the way of Lyons. There is no other way to get out of Ionia you know."

"The Ionia-Grand Rapids line? That is coming all right. They are getting the contracts in shape to be-gin work of construction," and the gentleman who proved to be Robert Smith, of Lansing, was very confi-dent that new developments were likely to rise to the surface at any moment. There is little doubt but that the electric cars are coming—in time, we hope this year as predicted. —[Ionia Sentine].

From Our Point of View

THE Smart Alexs of the city papers who delight to poke fun at the country press for saying that "John Jones has to A. W. Van Bysterveld Medicine Company, Grand Rapide, Mich. bought a thoroughbred Jersey cow," and that "Charlie Corntassel takes his best girl out riding in a fine new carriage," should turn their attention to the fool stuff sent abroad by the city reporters at Esopus. Under a scare head announcing that "Judge Parker Had a Close Call," we are told that the Democrat candidate was caught out in a rain storm. Awful! Wasn't it? The country is to infer that the Judge is made of sugar and was in danger of dissolving. Again, the world is jarred by the "news" that the Judge was awakened at night by a rumpus in his barn, that he arose, "pulled on his pants" and went to should turn their attention to the fool stuff his barn, that he arose, "pulled on his pants" and went to quiet a kicking horse. Divining Rod. A divining rod is a rod with forked branches, usually made of witch hazei, but sometimes of iron or even of brass and copper, and used by those that pretend to tell where water, minerals and metals are under ground. According to the superstition, the rod is said to dip when held over the desired spot.

THE MARRIED LOVER.

Why, having won her, do I woo?

Because her spirit's vestal grace
Provokes me always to pursue,
But, spirit-like, cludes embrace;
Because her womanhood is such
That, as on court days subjects kiss
The queen's hand, yet so near a touch
Affirms no mean familiarness,
Nay, rather marks more fair the height
Which can with safety so neglect
To dread, as lower ladies might,
That grace could meet with disrespect,
Thus she with happy favor feeds
Allegiance from a love so high
That thence no false conceit proceeds
Of difference bridged, or state put by;
Because, although in act and word
As lowly as a wife can be.
Her manners, when they call me lord,
Remind me 'tis by courtesy:
Not with her least consent of will,
Which would my proud affection hurt,
But by the noble style that still
Imputes an unattain'd desert;

The Man in the White Cravat

The changes in America during the last half of the nineteenth century are in no particular more marked than in the Mississippi river. When that river was the highway between the river was the highway between the river was the highway between the northwest and the gulf, the steamers plying upon it, handsome boats for their time, carried all sorts of people, among them the most refined in the land. A singular proximity to mothers and children were the gambling tables in the men's cohin separated.

Having succeeded I started back with the money, $10,000 in bills, in my money belt, then a common method of transporting funds. I was sitting one morning on the guards, viewing the plantations we were passing, when a gentleman wearing a white necktie sat down beside me and entered into conversation. He soon led the subject to the gambling going on on the boat and informed me that there were several professional gamblers aboard and I nust be careful not to be drawn in by them to play or I would surely be

A demented woman searching all about town for Theodore Newman, whom she said she was go-ing to marry, created some amuse-ment Tuesday by her antics. "Whoa Bill, this is where I want to stop," she said as she halted in her rapid walk in front of a millinery store, where she bought a wedding hat. "Yes, I'm going to marry Theodore and you bet I'll stick to him till—" She threatened to kill several people. Charles McCarty being one. The Charles McCarty being one. The poor woman should be taken charge of by her friends or the authorities.

A Clean Cut Proposition

In this age of misleading and insincere advertising it is refreshing to read as clear and plain a proposition as that announced by the BARRY-MUSKEGON LINE STEAMERS through the medium of a circular issued by that company. This circular announces a series of excursions to the World's Fair. It tells in plain words exactly what they will do, when they will do it and what it will cost. When we consider it thoroughly it seems a marvel that they can give is much for so little.

These excursions are announced to can give is much for so little.

These excursions are announced to leave Muskegon, Grand Haven and Grand Rapids on the evenings of Tuesday, July 27, Aug. 3, 9, 16, 24 and 30. The tickets are good for return passage to Chicago within 7 days from date of starting on tickets sold at Muskegon and Grand Haven. Stopover in Chicago on return passage is allowed to suit your pleasure.

Stopover in Chicago on return passage is allowed to suityour pleasure. The tickets include steamship and railway transportation to the World's Fair and return, state room on steamer, reclining chair cars on trains between Chicago and St. Louis. Frst class hotel accomodations at a beautiful hotel adjoining the grounds. Admission to the Fair Grounds every day. Admission to the grounds. Admission to the Fair Grounds every day, Admission to the best attractions on the Pike. Ride on Intramural railway and many other features that all combine to make these trips a delightful, satisfying, educating week's experience and one to be always remembered with the greatest of pleasure. How the company can do all this for the small sum of $50.35 is a mystery we have been unable to solve. But when the BARRY-MUSKEGON LINE say they will do a thing, they do it, and we confidently predict that these excursions will prove the most popular they have ever undertaken.

To all who are contemplating a trip to the World's Fair we would suggest that they call on, or send to any agent of the BARRY-MUSKEGON LINE and secure a copy of the circular which gives all the information in detail.
