SMASH UP NO. TWO

PERE MARQUETTE FREIGHT TRAIN BROKE IN TWO

Crashed Together in Front of Depot Smashing Two Cars.

Two cars loaded with coal and stone were smashed to smithereens in front of the Pere Marquette depot Tuesday morning about six o'clock and their contents scattered along the track for rods.

The morning freight was pulling in from Moseley and somewhere between that station and Lowell the train broke in two, and the occurrence was not discovered until the engine with part of its load stopped at the water tank. Then looking back the engineer discovered the runaway cars coming down grade like Jehu. The head end got under motion again; but too late to prevent collision with frightful force, and coal in carload lots took a sudden drop.

A coal car and flat car loaded with stone were totally demolished and several of the box cars were more or less injured.

Owing to ample sidetrack accommodations train service was not blocked and the tracks were cleared during the day.

MR. HAKES REPLIES

TO THE LOWELL JOURNAL'S MALICIOUS ATTACKS.

Read His Vigorous Vindication of Character.

In reply to the KINDLY article published by the Lowell Journal last week, will say that the Journal has wilfully misrepresented the facts relative to electric motor power. My motor and metre were installed long before I was a member of the Common Council; and the minimum rate of 50 cents per month was given me by the superintendent of the plant.

The Lowell Specialty company was given the same rate. Therefore, I deny that the rate was obtained through favoritism or graft, as the Journal falsely charges. Neither was I aware that any one was paying more than I.

Several motors including that of the Journal office are on special transformers put up at the expense of the Village for motors exclusively, while my motor is on a transformer which furnishes lights for many business places and pays the Village a good revenue aside from motor power. According to metre, the actual amount of electricity used to run my motor costs from 9c. to 22c. per month, while some motors use from six to eight dollars per month.

These facts were all stated at the Council meeting in presence of the Journal reporter; and when that paper stated that I obtained my rate by favoritism or graft, it was fully and maliciously falsified.

Every man is the architect of his own character; and some people delight in trying to blot the characters of others. Ever since I was chosen to represent the municipal affairs of Lowell the low-minded Journal has tried to blot my reputation.

The large majority of the people who have known me for the past thirty years place but little credit in the Journal's columns.

It is with narrow-minded people as with narrow-necked bottles, the less they have in them, the more noise they make in pouring it out. I am advised by legal counsel that I have an action for libel against the Journal editor; but owing to his already being involved in the Circuit court of this county I do not deem it worth while to take judgment against him.

Therefore I use the press to vindicate myself against his false and unjust accusations.

Grattan Pioneer Elaborately Celebrates His Ninetieth Anniversary.

Ninety years of age and sound as a dollar. That is the enviable record of Nehemiah Smith of Grattan township, the ninetieth anniversary of whose birth was celebrated last Friday.

The celebration was an affair to be remembered and talked about for years by Mr. Smith's friends, and, indeed, the whole neighborhood. About 350 friends and relatives joined in the celebration, among these being the children, grandchildren to the number of fifteen or twenty, and quite a quiver of great-grandchildren.

The arrangements made were elaborate. Mr. Smith's farm home had been newly painted and decorated in honor of the event, and Maj. E. C. Watkins, who attended from Grand Rapids, declares that enough food had been provided to feed the whole of Grattan township. The banquet was served in relays, 100 guests being seated at a time.

Nehemiah Smith is a pioneer of this county. He came here in 1845 and took up his present land from the government. He voted at the first election held at Grattan township. Mr. Smith was almost as jolly and lively in enjoying the festivities as any of his children, and Major Watkins says that he seems just as strong as he did twenty years ago.

Olliver I. Watkins was master of ceremonies.

WORLD'S FAIR ECHOES.

Every type of plover, from the old implement to one handle and a wooden saddle-board, to the modern invention by which from 30 to 35 acres of ground can be broken daily, is shown in the Palace of Agriculture.

Tapestry work 250 years old, 22 by 12 feet, valued at $35,000, is one of the attractions in the Belgian section of the Art Palace at the World's Fair. It represents a famous painting by Teniers. It pictures an ancient Flemish fair and is said to be one of the finest in the world.

President Francis and Director of Exhibits F. J. V. Skiff have offered two beautiful cups to the winners of the fair.

The American section of the Art Palace at the World's Fair is open four nights of the week. The section includes the loan collection.

Bolberry's opportunity came a week or two later. Eliza had her leave of absence and Mrs. Bolberry was on a shopping expedition when her husband got home. The ragout occurred to him directly. He made up his mind that it would be the very thing for dinner. He began to rummage around in the larder and found a fine, fat stricken steak and onions and potatoes. He got out the best possible head sausage and was about to put in the meat when he suddenly remembered that there was no garlic in the house. He put on his coat and hat and once and hurried over to the grocer's.

"Garlic!" said the grocer. "Certainly. We've got it here in cans, powdered and evaporated. It's pretty strong."

"That's the way I like it," said Bolberry, with the confidence of ignorance.

He hastened back and then got to work. First he cut up the beef into the pieces, then he added water and set the pan on the gas stove, turning the burner well up. Then he took the fat and put it in a small tin, rather unfortunately, spilling the contents into the sauce pan. Bolberry got out all he could with a spoon.

The recipe directed that the potatoes and onions be added after the beef had boiled for ten minutes. Bolberry peeled those vegetables, but when they were prepared the beef showed no signs of boiling. Then Bolberry made his fatal mistake. He thought he would go and tie down for a few minutes while the beef was coming to a boil and he carried out his thought, closing the kitchen door behind him as he went. He stretched himself luxuriously on the library lounge and in a cigar.

He had a good novel—that is, it was interesting. It is doubtful whether Bolberry would have had it been for the fact that there seemed to be more smoke in the room than the clear fumes. He caught a whiff of a most peculiar odor and his ragout flashed into his mind.

Bolberry is a man of action. He darted into the kitchen and opened the back door, where he stood for a moment gasping for breath. Then he seized a cloth and made for the gas register. The handle of the blaring gas pipe was hot, even though the cloth, but he carried it out through the door and set it down in the snow.

Bolberry set about opening doors and windows. It was zero weather, but he opened them all. Half an hour's stirring cleared out most of the smoke, but the rest of that morning he had to suffer from the effects of the gas. Bolberry set about opening doors and windows. BRITAIN'S BURDENS.

What the Empire Pays in Interest to the World.

A financial abstract covering the fiscal year 1888-1892 has been issued by the British government. Some interesting fiscal points can be gleaned from the multitudinous figures.

On the first page is a proof of reckless spending. In 1888 our imperial expenditure amounted to $7,688,830, and in 1901-2 this had risen to $18,483,708.

A little further on the amount of internal expenditure is given, though the statistics are not available for the year 1902, but in 1888 the total expenditure for the United Kingdom amounted to $15,555,401, and in 1901 to $18,713,267.

Both these expenditures fall on the individual, and the tendency has been to add enormously to the share of the burden borne by the Briton and that that borne by the foreigner. This will readily be seen from other statistics given in the same volume.

As to providing for money to defray the interest on the foreign debt, the total amount of the foreign debt paid about $20,000,000 in 1888 toward the extension of the country, while the Briton makes up the balance of $123,000,000.

In addition to this the whole burden of domestic expenditure falls on the Briton in the form of rates and local taxes. The increase of this burden may be gauged from the fact that in 1886-7 the outstanding loans of local authorities amounted to $18,821,612, and that in 1901-12 this indebtedness had risen to $316,704,222.

Turning to the goods department of the report, it is found that we are losing ground in the balance of cash received and cash paid.

In 1902, for instance, we bought for each head of the population 22 lbs. 7d. more than we did in 1888, but in 1902 we sold for each head of the population only 7s. 11d. worth of British produce more than we did in 1888.—London Express.

WEEK IN ST. LOUIS.

HOW TO SPEND SIX DAYS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Suggestions Offered by Chicago Evening Post Writer Will Save Time, Money and Regrets—Gives Interesting Itinerary.

A writer in the Chicago Evening Post, "L. M. McC.", offers the following suggestions on spending a week at the World's Fair to best advantage. He says:

Rooms at $1.25 and $1.50 a day, with breakfast, are abundant. When landing at the union station, if undecided about location, go at once to the bureau of information in the station, where lists of rooming-houses and small hotels may be had. Choose a place near the grounds if possible. If in walking distance so much the better, as one may be independent of crowded cars and save car fares.

It is best to have breakfast at the boarding-house or near by, and depend on the restaurants of the Exposition for luncheon and dinner. I have yet to hear of a case of extortion, and the restaurants in the grounds are interesting if one chooses wisely.

Just a word about clothes. The wise woman will wear a light-weight walking suit, with dark waist—as pretty as she can choose in neckwear—and the man will have a light-weight coat and get rid of a heavy vest. White shirts are a joy to woman-kind, but by mid-day they lose their freshness and at night they are distressing. A silk shirt-walk suit is not warm and just the thing.

MONDAY—Get a bird's-eye view. Make an outdoor day. Take a map of the grounds and get your bearings. Take the Intramural to Pavilion 21, here in a group is enough to occupy all day. The United States life-saving exhibit, the Ferris wheel, the Forestry and Fish and Game buildings are in the same locality.

THURSDAY—Go direct to the Fine Arts Palace and see Great Britain and the United States pavilion. When weary leave the Art Palace, walk to the right, lunch at one of the out-door cafes, if you can afford it, in Germany. Then visit the Palace of Charlottenburg and spend the rest of the day in the Education, Mines and Government buildings. Spend the evening on the Pine or in the Illuminated Palace of Fine Arts.

FRIDAY—Enter the Varied Industries building and pass by degrees through the Manufactures and Liberal Arts buildings, and the rest of the day on the Terrace of the States.

SATURDAY—Make a final visit to the Art Palace, West pavilion, France and Sculpture court. Take the Intramural to the Horticulture and Agricultural buildings, Jerusalem, the Boer camp or the Philippines. The Indian schools are extremely interesting and well worth while. Of course when near the Horticulture and Agricultural buildings, the rest of the day on the Terrace of the States.

SUNDAY—If one is a lover of art, take the early hours to the galleries. Take the Intramural to Art Palace station. Make up your mind that you can't see it all and spend this morning in the east pavilion—Sweden, Germany, Holland, Canada, Austria. At noon go out of doors and turn to the left. Take lunch on some pleasant porch along the way—a cup of tea in Japan or Ceylon. Follow the water ways to the Horticulture and Liberal Arts buildings, and the rest of the day on the Terrace of the States.

SATURDAY—Make a final visit to the Art Palace, West pavilion, France and Sculpture court. Take the Intramural to the Horticulture and Agricultural buildings, Jerusalem, the Boer camp or the Philippines. The Indian schools are extremely interesting and well worth while. Of course when near the Horticulture and Agricultural buildings, the rest of the day on the Terrace of the States.

It is a great convenience to have at hand reliable remedies for use in cases of accident and for slight injuries and ailments. Good judgment and one that is fast becoming a favorite is not a household necessity is Chamberlain's Pain Balm. By applying it promptly to a cut bruise or burn it allays the pain and causes the injury to heal in about one-third the time usually required, and as it is an antiseptic it prevents any danger of blood poisoning. Japan and Russia's Naval Origin.

Russia's navy had its origin in a boat which Queen Elizabeth sent to Ivan the Terrible, and with which later Peter the Great got the "sea craze." Japan's first European type of ship was built by Adams, an Englishman. Holland and Denmark, however, did most of the training of the officers of Japan's modern fleet. Some of them, as is well known, were trained in the United States.
