BERT VANDERLIP DIED A KENTUCKY BRIDE.

In Lowell September 12, Aged 45 Years, Funeral Held Sunday.

Albert E. Vanderlip died at his home in this village last Thursday morning at eleven thirty, after an illness of ten months with creeping paralysis. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the house, Rev. A. H. Sturgis of Cannonsburg officiating, and burial was made in Oakwood cemetery.

Albert E. Vanderlip, better known as Bert, was born May 20, 1862, in Vergennes. He came to Lowell while a child and has spent all his life here. He was married to Miss Ida R. Johnson of Keene April 1, 1885, Rev. Eaton performing the ceremony. Mr. Vanderlip was a carpenter by trade but was forced by ill health to give up his work some time ago. He was the last of a family of three, his two sisters having preceded him a number of years ago.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife and one son Earl of Belding. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Vanderlip were here during the last two weeks of their father's illness. The following relatives and friends were here to attend the funeral: Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McWilliams of Grand Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. Gern Griswold of McBride, Mrs. Phoebe Stewart of Thompsonville, Mr. and Mrs. Aba Harwood of Ionia, Mr. and Mrs. Coon and Lany Story of Greenville.

HER WORK IS FINISHED.

Mrs. Margaret Fox Suddenly Summoned to Her Eternal Home.

Margaret Lang was born Oct. 30, 1820, in Lester, Livingston Co., New York, and departed this life at Freeport, Mich., Sept. 7, 1907, aged 77 yrs., 19 mos. and 7 days. On Sept. 20, 1858 she was united in marriage to J. Wesley Fox, who preceded her in death about four years ago.

Together they resided in New York State, also Saranac, Lowell and Freeport. They came to this village 27 years ago. To them were born seven children, three of whom, viz. Fred, Willie and Lionel have gone before. The remaining four, Charley Fox of Chicago, Carrie Nagler of Jackson, Zuzonyl Fox and Eliza Brunner, of Freeport, a sister Jane Kopf, of Lowell, and a brother S. Lang, of Indiana, together with numerous relatives and friends mourn the loss of a kind and devoted mother, sister and friend. Mrs. Fox though she had a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who were ever sure of her sympathy and help in time of bereavement and any trouble, was yet decidedly a lover of home, there no sacrifice or self-denial was too great for the ones she loved best.

Though there was a premonition of her demise some few weeks ago when she was taken suddenly ill, yet she seemed, at least in part, to rally, and the family fondly hoped her life might be spared to them for some years. The end came suddenly and peacefully on Saturday morning.

The funeral services were held from her late home and that of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Brunner, Monday afternoon, Sept. 9, 1907, and were conducted by Rev. M. W. Duffey. Interment in Freeport cemetery.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fox of Chicago, Rev. and Mrs. A. F. Nagler of Jackson, Mrs. Kopf and daughter Miss Myrtle, Mrs. Wm. Winegar, Mrs. Julia Hildreth and Mr. and Mrs. W. Lang of Lowell and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fox and daughters of Hastings.

The deceased was a great lover of flowers and her casket was banked with beautiful floral pieces as tokens of the esteem of her friends.—[Freeport Herald.]

CATARRH IS CURABLE

Successful Experiments in Abating and Curing This Disease.

Catarrh is an entirely unnecessary disease and should not be tolerated for a single day. It is not a disease so generally known and understood as many others in Lowell and other towns.

Until comparatively recent times catarrh was thought to be a local disease and confined to the nose and throat. Modern science doubly disproved this idea at the cause of catarrh. It is found that it is a germ disease and, after its development, the remedy was found to be Hygiene.

Hygiene means a clean, cool, breathing place. A person should breathe the clean, cool air of the mountains. It is the only way to cure the germ disease. The germ disease is not a disease of the nose and throat, but of the blood. It is the blood that carries the germ to the nose and throat. If the blood is clean, the germ cannot live. It is the blood that carries the germ to the nose and throat. If the blood is clean, the germ cannot live. It is the blood that carries the germ to the nose and throat. don for any one to acquire. Most all communities have a few people whom this description fits "Like the paper to the wall." Beware of them!

"Independent, (U. S. Politics) not bound by party; exercising a free choice in voting with either or any party."

"Neutral, Not engaged on either side not taking part with or assisting either of two or more contending parties; indifferent."

The last two terms are often ignorantly or wilfully confounded, or used to express the same thing, when in fact their meaning is vastly different. An independent newspaper or citizen for instance, may be most actively interested in political affairs and be very powerful for good; while the neutral is "indifferent" to all but his own selfish interests. We need the independents; but have little use for the neutrals.

By keeping these definitions in mind you will be enabled to classify some people you meet with accuracy and dispatch.

The American Economist, which stands for high protection first, last and all the time, divides Republicans into two classes: Stand-Patters and Republican Mugwumps; and according to it any Republican who wants to revise the tariff is a Mugwump, in which class Messrs. Roosevelt and Taft, then, must be included. It will take something more than a slur of this kind, however, to frighten the friends of the President and Secretary Taft, while the disinterestedness of the Economist which has been mailed to us years without either pay or request on our part, is open to suspicion of having an axe to grind, to say the least.

give the lie to the absurd claim that courts are above criticism: After a California man has served thirteen years of a life sentence in a penitentiary for burglary, the lawyer who prosecuted him and the judge who sentenced him have declared him innocent. Courts above criticism? Judges who make such preposterous claims are not to be trusted with the lives and properties of their fellows.

W. A. WATTS has reason to be gratified by the large and non-partisan vote given him by his townsmen Tuesday. Although the heavy rain in the afternoon kept many away, he received twenty-four more votes than the leader on the Republican ticket and 81 more than the trailer. This endorsement by those who know him best is better than an election without it.

AMEN! Bishop McDowell, in a sermon before the Methodist conference at Aldon Sunday, said of preachers who think it needful to hold man-made doctrines above the word of God: "I'd like to tie them all in a sack and drop the sack into a stream." We don't know whether he means the doctrines or the preachers; but anyhow, Amen!

That was a good point made by Senator Smith in his brief address at the Bryan meeting: That people who hear but one side are like those looking always in one direction. They see and know in part only. Let us try for a larger vision.

The LEDGER is glad to welcome Rev. Broady and family back to another year of usefulness in Lowell, and to accord to him the same cordial co-operation during the coming year in public work that he has enjoyed in the past.

Put a Bull Behind the Bars

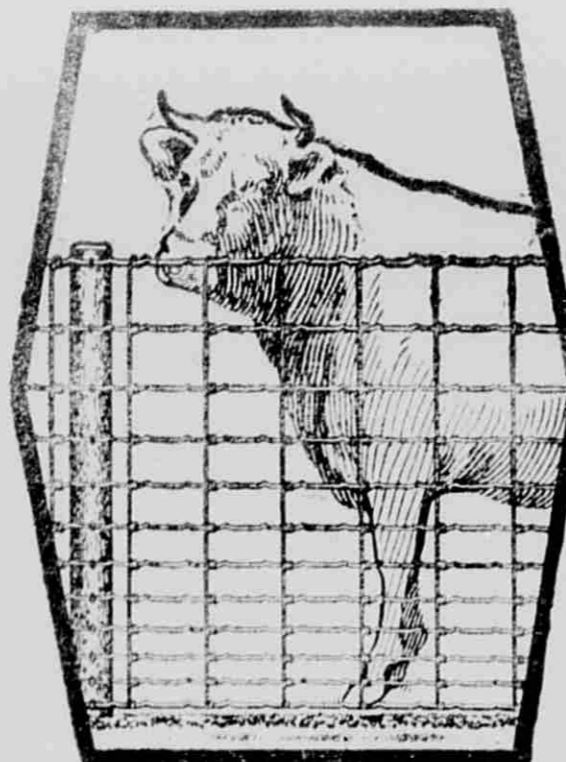

We call especial attention to the hinge joint at each intersection of stay with main bars.

This is the essential of every good wire fence. Unless the stay has a hinge joint the fence cannot receive pressure from contact and right itself. All rigid stay fences have been unsatisfactory and disappointing, as they crush down and when once down, remain so.

AMERICAN FENCE

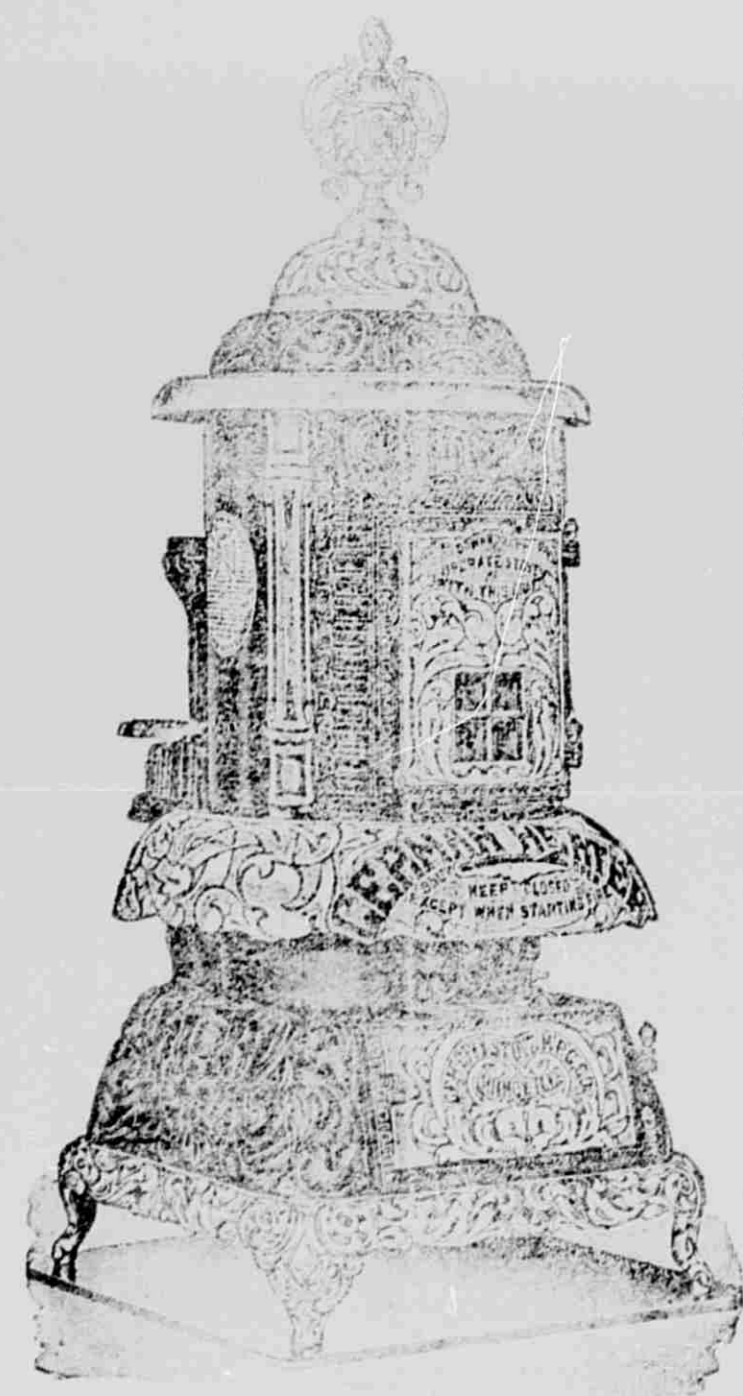

Is made with a hinge joint, by which the maximum of elasticity is secured and the fence if properly stretched, remains in place indefinitely. With the hinge joint, no amount of strain on the bars can effect the connection of stay and bar, while the opposite is true of all rigid stay fences.

TRADING AT HOME

MANY REASONS WHY IT IS THE BEST POLICY.

SELF-INTEREST A BIG FEATURE

That Which Benefits the Community as a Whole Benefits Each Individual—The "Why and Wherefore."

As self-interest is the law which governs the transactions of trade, it is the first light in which the subject of "Trading at Home" must be treated. Sentiment has little influence in trade.

The prosperity of any community depends on the volume of business transacted within its borders. The facility with which business can be transacted depends largely upon the amount of money in circulation and any influence which takes money out of a community is detrimental to the financial welfare of the community.

It is in this respect that trading with mail order houses cripples a community. Money which should be kept in local circulation goes to swell the volume of money in the distant city instead of remaining at home to be turned over and over again as the medium of transfer among local merchants and their customers.

The effect of this diversion of money is not confined to the merchants who lose sales thereby; it extends eventually to every member of the community. It is a curtailment of business which affects the value of all property even to the labor of the man who is dependent on a day's work for his living. It reacts upon the people who purchase away from home in a degree which more than offsets any possible saving in price that may be effected in the purchase.

Every dollar sent out of any community for goods which can be purchased at home represents a percentage of the community. If the community is composed of the sort of people who spend their money at home it advances rapidly. There is money for public improvements, money for new enterprises. The money which the loyal man makes at home is invested at home; the city grows, the streets are improved and the marks of prosperity and progress are evident on every side.

We are wont to inveigh against the wealthy man who makes his money in town and invests it in another. We criticize him for want of loyalty to the community which produced his wealth and feel that we are doing an injustice by his failure to put his money in home enterprises which would increase the business and prosperity of our city. The criticism is justified and it holds just as good in a lesser degree to the man who trades out of town. It is the same offense on a smaller scale.

The effect of the reverse policy is promptly seen. The writer has in mind a notable instance. Two cities of about 15,000 population each are situated on opposite sides of a river which is a boundary between two states. Each contains several millionaires who made their money in the lumber trade in the two towns. The millionaires of one of the cities are putting their money into other industries in the same town as the lumbering goes out. As a result, the town is rapidly forging to the front, every one is prosperous, the demand for houses exceeds the supply, property is valuable and every one is working. The millionaires of the town across the river are investing their money in western and southern pine lands. The town is languishing for lack of money; new industries cannot start because of lack of capital; merchants are failing; stores and houses are being vacated; people are moving away and a general air of poverty and decay pervades the place.

Few cities present such strong examples of the value of money spent at home but the same principle holds true in every community. It is due

The catalogue man recognizes in the advertising agent his most powerful assistant. He realizes that it is advertising which brings him his orders. Let the local merchants awaken to the fact that the local papers can do for them just what the advertising agents do for the catalogue houses and the flow of money to the city mail order houses from this community will stop.

age of injustice to the community itself. In the first place, some merchant loses the profit on a sale. Not only that, but the price of the article represents so much of the merchant's capital which is tied up in the article and is not working. Having capital tied up means that the operations of the merchant are curtailed to that extent. He has that much less to spend; that much less to pay in salaries to his clerks; to pay in patronage to the butcher, the baker and the other purveyors of the necessities of life; to invest in property, in newspaper advertising, to deposit in bank where it may be used by other members of the community, or to devote to church or charity. The money which goes to the mail order house decreases the per capita of circulation in the community, a factor which determines largely the value of all goods or property on the market; the scale of wages and the interest on loans.

It is not hard to trace the effect of the diversion of money from its legitimate channels. When money is scarce trade languishes because of the lack of circulating medium; merchants and all others curtail expenses; the volume of trade decreases and nothing restores activity in trade but an increase from some quarter of the circulating medium. When the volume of money increases, trade moves and it moves as fast as the volume of money will permit. Money that is working is constantly producing profit to all; money that is not working produces stagnation in trade.

Accordingly, it is to the interest of every member of a community to confine his expenditures as nearly as possible to the community in which he lives. Every dollar he spends at home helps to make his own holdings more valuable because they are more salable. When a community has money with which to buy there is little difficulty to sell and if the money is not diverted, it revolves constantly in the financial circle of the community, earning a profit for everyone who handles it and turns it over.

Accordingly, the money spent at home is bearing compound interest for the community. Its effect is apparent even to the outsider. Spending money at home is a species of loyalty which makes materially for the progress of every community to redirect the money it produces in the community which produces it.

The chance of being swindled is an argument used against trading with the mail order houses. Goods advertised at cut prices often fail to measure up to the description of the advertisement. The few cents which is saved on the price of an article bought is usually sacrificed in the quality of the article. Buying from the mail order house is buying blind. A purchaser never thinks of buying from a home merchant without examining the goods, but will often send his money to a mail order house with blind faith that the article will prove to be as represented. How often the faith is misplaced can be proven by comparing the goods bought from mail order houses with the goods offered for sale at home. If the mail order buyer would follow this system for a little while, he would probably find that the goods offered at home are of better quality and as good bargains as the mail order goods, taking quality into consideration. If this presumption is true, the buyer of mail order goods is a distinct loser, as he has secured inferior goods and has robbed the community in which he lives, as well as himself, of the use of the money.

"Well, I can," chuckled the young man who was sitting on the sofa.

"Why, you."

We Advise You to Buy for Future Needs

Here are the reasons, "Cotton Goes Up" and "Wool Goes Up." That cry is universal. Every woman as heard it stores—has read it in advertisements—has felt in her purchases for months past. You are paying in most stores the highest prices in your memory for this class of goods. They are forced to ask these prices because the demand for exceeds the present production; because mills are short handed, because the spinner is paying the farmer fancy prices for both cotton and wool. Scarcity of labor has forced the mills to raise the wages of operatives 34 per cent within the last two years. Prices will still further advance and the woman who buys now for next winter's needs will undoubtedly save a good bit of money.

Cat and Ostrich Farms.

Cat farms are numerous all over the country and that there is money in ostrich farms is proven by the fact that there are at present several in the United States that are paying handsomely.
