Mary Amelia Whitney, was united in marriage to Clinton Don Hodges in the presence of about eighty guests, Mrs. H. L. Weekes presided at the piano and just preceding the ceremony the appropriate solo "O Promise Me" was sung by Miss Emma Whit-ney of Grand Rapids, cousin of the bride. Promptly at six o'clock the bridal couple descended the stairs to the strains of a wedding march from Lohengrin, the bride wearing a gown of white satin and carrying brides roses, and took their places beneath an arch of English ivy, palms and white draperies, from which a wedding bell was suspended: Rev. Russell H. Bready performed the impressive ring ceremony, the bride being given away by her father, while "Meditations" was softly played by the pianist. During the season of congratulations Mrs. Weekes played Mendels-sohn's Wedding March.

"Jove, what a night! And to think of wasting it in a cell like this! Blake. you old sinner, have you no soul for the beautiful? Look at the light on the water."

The reply was inaudible. Evidently Blake had gone sensibly to bed, but the voice continued undaunted:

"I say, wouldn't it be jolly to dive off the railing and swim a mile or so? I declare, I've half a mind to do it!" I caught my breath apprehensively. Suppose he should jump? A match was now scratched, and the odor of a cigarette floated through my slatted

"Maybe you think you're on an ordinary steamer, Blake, but it's nothing of the kind. It is a royal barge belonging to the gods, and it's carrying the Three Graces to attend Apollo-I'm Apollo, you understand, and Venus isn't in it this trip. I think-of course I'm not yet sure-but I think Thalia is the chosen one."

The berth creaked plaintively, and a second match was struck. Apparently Blake considered it wiser to join his patient at the window.

"Don't be an ass," he said, with a slow drawl, but his companion merely whistled a few bars of an old song. "'How happy could I be with either, were tother dear charmer away,' eh, Make?" he laughed. 'That's the way with this world-always too much or too little."

"Quite enough for you, I think." "Not a bit of it. The thing I want most I lack, but some time, some how, I'm going to get it."

Silence for a few moments, then he resumed more gravely: "Of course it's no end jolly to have you with me, Blake, but it is a queer business for you to take up, and I flon't altogether like it. You were built for better things."

"It is interesting work, and said to require special fitness."

"No doubt. Well, 'it's an ill wind,' you know, and, since it blew you my way, I've no kick coming. But, old chap, there is no use in publishing what you are doing, and for both our sakes it is better you should pass simply as my guest."

"As you please Bennett. Now, for heaven's sake, come to bed."

I don't know whether I had actually been asleep, or whether I was merely in that delightful state of half-consciousness which precedes profound slumber, but suddenly I started up broad awake, with the echo of a cry ringing in my ears. Was I dreaming? I wondered, for I heard nothing but the sound of the waves against the

Then it came again, from just beneath me, a sobbing, frightened cry, infinitely distressing to hear, and instinctively I turned on the light and jumped to the floor. Mrs. Graham sat upright in her berth, her dark eyes looking into space, and her hands tightly clasped. "Not again, Harry," she meaned; "rot again-so soon."

I took her hands in mine and spoke to her, calling her by name several times, and gradually the blank look in her eyes was replaced by utter bewilderment as she began to realize her surroundings. "What is it?" she said. "What have I been doing?" "You were dreaming." I suggested.

It has been said tersely that "the cup kills more than the cannon." Drink's death-roll of victims in the United States is estimated at 100,000 a year! All the wars of all the ages could hardly equal the cumulative slaughter by this monstrous vice.

The late Dr. Talmage emphasized very strongly the duty of parents in preaching total abstinence in the home. "Let your children grow up with an utter aversion to drink," he wrote, "Make it utterly nauseous. Teach them, as faithfully as you do the truths of the Bible, that rum is a fiend. From Our Point of View

THE know-it-all is a nuisance hard to handle. He is so cocksure of his own infallibility that one needs a beetle and wedge to drive an idea into his head. By such, the wisdom of scientists, drive an idea into his head. By such, the wisdom of scientists, scholars and professionals of world-wide renown is waved aside with contempt, while with plugged ears and bandaged eyes they even essay the task of leadership. To rightly catalog this class of fellows, one does not have to read very far in history. How today does the world regard the contemptible bigots who burned the witches? Those beastly criminals justified their unutterable outrages by the Good Book. They too knew it all; no one could tell them anything: and they even asked God's blessing on their barbarities. The victims of those monstrous crimes are now enrolled among the world's benefactors, while their know-it-all butchers among the world's benefactors, while their know-it-all butchers will be infamous to all eternity. Fools not worthy to kiss the feet of Galileo and Columbus sneered and jeered at those great discoverers during their troubled lives. How is it now? Whose fame is best today? May the good Lord deliver us from know-it-alls who want to sit in judgment on other people's opinions. They may have their brief day of petty triumph; but there's all eternity in which to reverse judgments and revise opinions. Let us not make a fool's swap by assuming superior wisdom over any man. History repeats itself. As it has been, so it will be. Remember Galileo, and don't be a know-it-all.

How is the election going? Well, we have been watching reports from all sides and districts; and we calculate that there are many surprises in store. Of course, Taft has a big advantage in the moral effect of the tremendous majorities rolled up by Roosevelt four years ago and in the possession of the offices and patronage throughout the country; and it would seem that nothing short of a landslide could carry Bryan to the White house. That there are indications of wholesale changes of political affiliations is true. will be infamous to all eternity. Fools not worthy to kiss the feet

ONE of the editor's hardest tasks is to convince some people that he can not play favorites. "All coons look alike" to the newspaper writer, from the very nature of his calling, which must be democratic or nothing. From the standpoint of the individual. one's own trials, sorrows, successes or what not, are different from those of other people. All are alike in this matter. At the editor's desk the question of justice and fairness to all is the all important consideration. Not flesh for one and fowl or fish for another, but absolute impartiality, so far as time and circumstances permit, without regard to wealth or social position. We know not what others may do: but this is right; and by it we stand.

It was a policeman. "Absit omen," said Grenier softly.

"What's that?" "Latin for a cop. You complained of my want of nerve. Watch me now." He halted the policeman and questioned him about the locality, the direction of the roads, the villages on the coast. He explained pleasantly that he was a Londoner and an utter stran-

"I saw you, sir. Is the gentleman who drove you from Scarsdale staying there too? I met you on the road, and he seemed to know me."

Grenier silently anathematized his carelessness. Policemen in rural Yorkshire were not as common as policemen in Oxford street. It was the same man whom he had encountered hours

THE LOW PRICE STORE

Fashions Choicest Styles in Womens Garments.

Our Ready-to-Wear section is resplendent with beautiful garments for women for every occasion. Each and every garment is a perfect gem of its kind—the product of the most clever and skilful makers. Nowhere will you find such a multitude of styles; nowhere such originality and exclusiveness.

There is an air of differentness about our garments that puts them in a class above others. One always feels well dressed in a garment of this character, no matter what price you pay.

But we always point with pride to the low prices attached to our garment. They are no higher, not one bit, than the price asked elsewhere for much inferior styles.

And how the American women praise Parisian Sage for its peculiar ability to turn harsh, faded, lusterless hair into fresh, beautiful, sliky and lustrous hair in a few days.

Parisian Sage is to-day the favorite hair dressing and tonic of discrimating Americans, not because of sensational methods of advertising, but because it is the only hair restorer that will do just what it is advertised to do.

It kills the dandruff germ and cures dandruff in two weeks. If it doesn't M. N. Henry, the agent in Lowell, will give you your money back.

"I had been troubled with dandruff for five years, but since using Parisian Sage I have not been bothered with it. I only used one-half bottle when I noticed the dandruff disappearing. I consider it the best hair tonic I ever used."—Mrs. C. B. Morton, 450 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1908.

If you haven't tried Parisian Sage

If you haven't tried Parisian Sage get a bottle to-day. It is a delightful dressing. The price is only 50 cents a large bottle at M. N. Henry's or direct, all charges prepaid, by the American makers, Giroux Mfg. Co., Buffalo. N. Y.

Town and gown authorities "Black Friday" should be abolished. This year it has been a disgrace to the university and the state.

The sophs, up to Friday night, had had things their own way and the "turn the other cheek." The tide of battle turned and the sophs were beaten and incensed at the greased pole, and at their own defeat, they threw prudence to the winds and went into the fray, after the fight at the pole was over, showing a most unforfunate spirit of aggressiveness. At one time, when the fight on State Mr. and Mrs. B. Banes of Brooklyn, street was fiercest, there were four N. Y., fastened themselves together apparently dead men stretched on the floor at Quarry's drug store. They were revived and sent home. One freshman, who refused to give his name, suffered a broken rib, and blood flowed freely from his nose, mouth and ears. Another was rendered unconscious, then he was dumped into the tank and revived with difficulty.

Higher Criticism Myths and Moths

By REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D., Pastor of the Chicago Ave. (Moody's) Church, Chicago.

"The Higher Criticism," says Dr. W. Henry Green, "is an inquiry into the origin and character of the writings to which it is applied. It seeks to ascertain by all available means the author by whom, the time at which, the circumstances under which and the design with which they were produced. Such investigation, rightly conducted, must prove a most important aid to the understanding and just appreciation of the writings in question." We have tried honestly and fairly man to investigate the claims of these higher critics and to study the processes by which they have come to their conclusions, and we are compelled to say that we believe their claims in the main are myths and Henry, Chairman their conclusions are moths which are Press-F. few of their myths.

Myth Number One.

Myth 1. A critic can tell by the lit erary style of portions of the Scriptures that they were written by certain persons whom he has never seen and of whom the world has never heard. The style of the Junius Letters did not reveal their author to the critics of his day, though he was a contemporary. Two pastors, one orthodox and the other a higher critic.
