SAVING MONEY

IS SIMPLY A PROCESS OF GROWTH

If you form the habit, financial independence will grow out of your beginning just as sure as the giant tree grows from the sapling.

Nobody saves much at a time.

Everybody can save a little at a time. Financial success is simply a matter of sticking to your saving plan. Try the bank account plan of saving; see how fast the small change grows into dollars, and how the dollars grow into tens and hundreds.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

Subject of James Schermerhorn's Address to Board of Trade.

JAMES SCHERMERHORN

The various committees having in charge the arrangements for the annual banquet of the Lowell Board of Trade at the City hall, January 24, are getting busy. The program committee will be ready to report for next week's paper, when complete announcement will be made.

James Schermerhorn, editor of the Detroit Times, who will deliver the principal address of the evening has chosen for his topic, "Business is Business."

Considerable interest is being manifested by the ladies of the Board members who for the first time will be enabled to attend the Board of Trade banquet.

A GREAT SUCCESS

Annual Banquet and Program of Grand Army Post.

The annual banquet, installation and program of the G. A. R. and W. R. C., last evening, was a most enjoyable and successful event. A bountiful spread and a fine program, is the verdict.

After the supper and the installation of the officers of both orders by Comrade Hicks, that gentleman took charge of the program.

Mr. Maynard and Miss Kemp sang "The Sword of Bunker Hill."

Rev. W. D. Ogg gave an address, "The Tie that Binds."

David Flanagan surprised all the company with a fine rendition of "The Pipes of Locknow."

Mrs. W. O. Merrill recited "The Hero of the Hill."

Mrs. E. A. Anderson sang "Annie Laurie."

Rev. J. R. Wooten gave an address on Patriotism.

Mr. Maynard sang "No Flag Like the Red, White and Blue."

Comrade Levi B. Rogers responded to call with an impromptu talk.

The members of the Post and Relief Corps are warm in their praise of the entire program.

HE FAILED TO RALLY

Frank Corrigan Victim of Typhoid and Fractured Arm.

After an illness of two weeks Frank Corrigan of Grattan township died at St. Mary's hospital yesterday afternoon. Mr. Corrigan had been feeling ill for some time and came here to consult a physician. In getting off the car he slipped and fractured one arm. Then he was taken to the hospital and typhoid developed.

Mr. Corrigan was thirty-eight years of age and a brother of the late Phillip Corrigan, former manager of the Star clothing company and police and fire commissioner. He is survived by a wife and four little girls, two brothers, John and Terrance Corrigan; three sisters, Mrs. Patrick Norton, Miss Libbie and Miss Jennie Corrigan, and his mother, who resides on the old Corrigan homestead in Vergennes township.

Funeral services will be held at St. Patrick's church, Parnell, at 9:30 Monday morning. —(Grand Rapids Press Jan. 7.)

INSTITUTE AT ALTO

Prominent Speakers of State to Deliver Addresses Jan. 14.

Alto, Jan. 7.—On next Saturday there will be a farmer's institute at the South Lowell Grange hall in the village of Alto with Charles Murphy, manager, L. J. Post, president and A. S. Hopkins of Bear Lake, principal state speaker.

"Little Things on the Farm" will be discussed by Wesley Johnson and Adam Behler; "Care of the Farm Orchard," by A. S. Hopkins and Earl Curtis.

In the afternoon A. L. Hopkins will conduct a question box. Clayton Johnson and John Livingstone will discuss "Business Methods in Farming," and Arthur Clarke will tell of The Care of the Dairy Herd.

Montgomery Ely, state commissioner of highways, will speak on "Better Roads for Michigan," and A. L. Hopkins, "Clover and Alfalfa." In the evening J. Hayden will speak of "Small Fruits on the Farm." Prof. W. H. French of the M. A. C. will give an address and A. L. Hopkins will tell about "The Making of Corn Crop." The Caledonia Glee club will render several numbers.

The two men were planning on starting a delivery at Durand, but the deal was not completed, so they chose Lowell as their new location. The local delivery is to be maintained in its usual excellent manner, Mr. Gardner taking charge of the Lowell business.

The two men are well experienced in this line of work and have furnished Portland an efficient delivery service. Lowell merchants will never regret their act of changing to the new system.

LAI TO HIS REST

Fred C. Johnson's Funeral was Largely Attended.

Fred C. Johnson was born Sept. 20, 1873, at Monterey Center, Allegan county, Michigan, and came to Lowell with his parents when three years of age, since which time he has lived in this vicinity. For the past four years he has been in the employ of H. Nash. Last February he was taken ill and after that time was unable to work. During the last twenty-four weeks of his life he was confined to his bed. He passed away January 4 at his home in Lowell. Largely attended funeral services were held at the Methodist church Friday morning, Rev. W. D. Ogg officiating. Burial at Oakwood.

Mr. Johnson was married Nov. 28, 1900, to Miss Lottie E. Thompson of Keene who survives him and who was to the last the faithful and devoted watcher at his bedside and with whom he had ever dealt most kindly and lovingly. He also leaves his father Fred Johnson of Lowell, a grandmother, two sisters and many other relatives and friends.

Friends from outside attending the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lietchi and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Loriberg of Allegan. Mrs. J. J. Link of Lansing, Otis Lorch, berg of Bloomington, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McDonald, Mrs. Nettie Scott, Wm. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Norton and son Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Charley of Lake Odessa.

Morning and evening meetings will be closed sessions, the latter opening at 7 o'clock. Fifth degree will be conferred at this session.

Dean's orchestra will play. Teams will meet members at McCords.

ADA TEACHERS WED

Miss Blanche Averill Becomes Mrs. Webb Ward.

"Birds of a feather flock together," said Miss Blanche Averill, Ada school teacher, and she looked wise as she addressed her class.

"Birds of a feather flock together," quoted Webb W. Ward, also a school teacher of Ada, as he held his cedar pointer aloft with one hand and wrote the words on the blackboard with the other. Then he started out to prove the truth of the old adage, and did it literally. He went to the county clerk's office this morning and secured a license to wed Blanche Averill. Mr. Ward gave his age as twenty-two and that of his bride as nineteen. The happy man said they would be married by Rev. S. T. Morris. —(Grand Rapids Press, Jan. 7.)

LONG ILLNESS ENDS

C. S. Beckwith Passed Away Sunday, Jan. 8.

Charles Sydney Beckwith was born Feb. 9, 1850 in Vergennes township the fourth of nine children born to Chas. W. and Emily Beckwith. He was married to Ida Owan Nov. 14, 1878, and died Jan. 8. He is survived by his wife and daughter Belle, one grand-child, three sisters, Mrs. Ida Dutton and Mrs. A. H. Bolinger of Concordia, Kansas, and Mrs. E. M. Alger of Vergennes two brothers, Edgar of Gentry, Ark., and George of Pacedonia, Cal., and two half brothers, Frank of Vergennes and Earl of California. This ends the brief obituary of a man—a man in every sense of the term. Of excellent character, industrious, kind, honorable and a true example of friendship, love and truth. For many years he was a member of Lowell Lodge I. O. O. F., and his genial way and smiling countenance has been missed from the meetings which he was so accustomed to attend. The character of the man is well shown in the fortitude with which he bore the many months of suffering which fell to his lot. But the good Lord has seen fit to take him to the Great Lodge on High and besides the many relatives he leaves a wide circle of friends and neighbors to mourn his loss.

Services were held at the home Tuesday, conducted by Pastor W. D. Ogg. Burial at Oakwood under the auspices of the Lowell Lodge No. 115 of I. O. O. F. Com.

GENERAL DELIVERY

New System to be introduced in Lowell.

The general delivery system used by merchants in many other places will be adopted by the grocers and butchers of Lowell beginning about February 1.

Two wagons will do all the delivering for all the firms, four deliveries being made daily, to wit: at 8 and 10 a. m., and at 2 and 4 p. m. Saturday evenings an 8 o'clock delivery will be made. The Portland Observer says this:

Peter Fineis, who has conducted the general delivery in Portland for the last two years, is to start a delivery of this kind at Lowell in February. Edson Gardner, who has been in the employ of Mr. Fineis here for over a year, is to be his associate in the new business which he has just taken on.

The two men were planning on starting a delivery at Durand, but the deal was not completed, so they chose Lowell as their new location. The local delivery is to be maintained in its usual excellent manner, Mr. Gardner taking charge of the Lowell business.

The two men are well experienced in this line of work and have furnished Portland an efficient delivery service. Lowell merchants will never regret their act of changing to the new system.

The farm house of L. A. Dygert, who lives a mile and a half west of Alto, was entered last night while the family were away. The back door was broken open with a sledge hammer, and the house ransacked. Among the things missing are a dark coat and vest, a pair of trousers, maroon sweater with pearl buttons, an ulster coat with cuffs and a piece torn out of the lining. Sheriff Hurley detailed Deputy Scott on the case. It is believed to be the work of some tramp. —(Grand Rapids Herald, Jan. 11)

BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Started Young Man With Building & Loan Book.

EDITOR LEDGER:
A Lowell young man will be 21 years old Saturday. His parents wishing to encourage him in habits of frugality and thrift, purchased a membership in the Lowell Building and Loan with ten shares of association stock, beginning with the October series and paid up to date. This will require the young man to make monthly payments of $5.00 each; and as this stock earns about 8 per cent, it will mature in about eleven years and he can draw out $1,000 for an expenditure much less than many young men make for smokes and drinks.

The Lowell Building and Loan association is officered and controlled by well known business men and citizens. Its business is under State supervision and its dealings are with the home folks with home securities.

If you want to buy a home as you pay rent; or if you wish to invest your savings at a remunerative rate of interest, it will pay you to investigate the merits of the Lowell Building & Loan association.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD

Promoters Are Not Lagging and Prospects Are Good

From the Portland Review.

In an interview with Vice President Wallace, of the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids R. R. Co. the electric line which is now being promoted, at Detroit, Wednesday, the Review was impressed with the ultimate success of the plan. Much that was said by Mr. Wallace was in confidence, but the writer is violating no trust when he says that it will not be many months before the work of construction will actually be under way. The money financing the project is practically in sight, the fact that the line is to connect the two largest cities of the state with the capital city making the bonds desirable for investors.

With the idea of making the route as short as possible, and because the city of Grand Ledge has not granted the new road a franchise, Mr. Wallace says the line will strike for Portland from Lansing along the most direct route, which will probably be on private right-of-way, but close to the turnpike. From Portland it is planned to go straight to Saranac. This would appear to be a slap at Ionia, but Mr. Wallace says the fact that the company was not granted a franchise in that city has nothing to do with the line from Portland to Saranac. He is positive Ionia people did not thoroughly understand the company's plans, and it is not unlikely that that city will get a chance to express itself again, but in the event of the line going there it will probably be by means of a spur running south from the city to the main line and connecting with certain trams. This will make another saving in both time and mileage for through passenger traffic and as a suitable station will be built at the connecting point passengers to and from the county seat will not be inconvenienced.

It is made plain however, that work on the division between Detroit and Lansing will bestardivided first but the western division will follow quickly.

The Review saw enough to convince the most skeptical that the road is to be built and that there are to be no long delays.

THREAD USED BY SURGEONS

Time Has Proven That Catgut is Only Material for Buried Suture.

When Lister first advocated the employment of catgut as a material for ligatures, numerous writers pointed out the objections, both theoretical and practical, to the use of this substance. But time has seen a change and many surgeons at the present time maintain that the only suitable material for a buried suture is catgut, and that silk should never be employed except for skin sutures.

In this, as in so many other points, the surgeon is greater than the detail. It is certain that millions of silk sutures have been inserted in the deep tissue, and have not cut their way out, for if a suture does make its way to the surface it is probably always because it was septic.

The attempt to find a ligature or suture perfect in every way has caused surgeons to employ many different substances. Metallic sutures for a time received much support, though they are rarely seen now.

Animal fibres of various kinds, such as kangaroo tendons and threads of the aorta of the ox, have been praised by some surgeons, and one surgeon claimed that perfection was to be found in fibres obtained from the ligamentum nuchae of the narwhal. It is fortunate that the medical world has not fallen in with this latter recommendation, for it is to be feared that the supply would fall far short of the demand.

Miss Lapse into Profanity. A good solid type of western Ontario gentleman not long ago told of the only time when he had been guilty of profanity. He and a friend had gone fishing, and for some time luck was dead against them. At last, however, they seemed to be about to get at the one time the reward for their patience. Both corked were bobbing beautifully, and it was in the excitement of the moment that the man who was very careful of his language was trapped into a lapse. "I've got a good bite," said the friend, eagerly, and with fully as much earnestness the man who never had indulged in unprintable talk whispered: "So have I."

THE LEGEND OF THE LARK

Very Pretty Tale Found in Folk Lore of the Aborigines of Japan.

The Annu (the aborigines of Japan) have many legends about birds, one of which is very pretty. It is thus given by a recent writer:

"The skylark used to live in heaven. One day the God in heaven sent him down to the earth with a message for the gods who reside here, telling him to return the same day. But the little bird thought the earth such a nice place that he stayed to play. He was here so long that it began to grow dark, and he therefore determined to spend the night on the ground. The next day he arose in the air to return to heaven, but God met him when he was about six-score feet up, and said: 'Why did you not return as I told you? As, therefore, you have disobeyed my words you shall not return to heaven, but live upon the earth. Although you may attempt to fly as high as you please, yet you shall never be able to get any higher than one of two-score of feet. The little bird was exceedingly concerned at this, and arguing with God, said: 'Oh, great God, as the world you made is so beautiful I could not help taking a look at it, and so got late. Although you chide me for this yet I will fly back to heaven.' In this way he answered God. But God did not consent. Therefore the little bird grew more and more distressed and daily went as high as he could, pleading all the time; yet God would never consent to his entrance into heaven again. He therefore returned to the earth to 'pay'. After a time he ascended and did the same thing, yet God did not consent. The same thing continued to happen now and every summer, but God never will allow him to return."

This, as I have said, is very pretty and even spiritual, but it seems to have been a happy accident, for it is in striking contrast to the other legends, which are more or less stupid and pointless.—Forest and Stream.

LIVING IN TWO HOUSES

Various Advantages Found in Arrangement of One Home in Country.

"At a place where I lately visited," said a man just back from the country. "I found that my host had two houses which stood about two hundred feet apart. He had not built these houses but had bought them, one after the other, together with the grounds and some acreage property around them. If he 1 built here he would have had to build a house built one big house, but these two houses served his household purposes and his own comfort very well.

"One of these two houses was commonly occupied as the family home and under its roof also were sheltered guests when there were few in number, but if the visitors were more numerous quarters were provided for them in the other house, which was thus practically a guest house.

"In another way the two houses served conveniently and comfortably for the family's own use. If either house was being done over or repaired or torn up in any way the family simply dwelt for the time in the other. With two houses equipped for use they can always have one in which they may live quite undisturbed."

Queen a Lover of Art. Queen Elizabeth of Belgium is devoted to art. She is not an artist herself, but she is a keen student of the work of her subjects and passes several hours a day viewing paintings, sculpture and other objects of artistic creation. She buys a great many objects, but in her selection she does not rely on the advice and suggestion of others. She buys what she likes, and her last general purchase was by the scholar in Brussels when she knows thoroughly, and with whom she argues capably on many disputed points. Recently she bought a still life picture painted by Mlle. Ronner, a young artist in Brussels, and has hung it in her private apartments. The composition of the painting is one of extreme simplicity, the chief colors being dark reds and blues.

LARGELY MATTER OF FAITH OLD SLAVE CITY IN AFRICA

Proof of Authenticity of Relics, Religious or Historical, in Most Cases Impossible.

Dr. Carl Peters, the German explorer, tells of strange finds in South Africa: "I was fortunate enough to discover a tablet which, so far as I know, contains the first actual ancient inscription found in South Africa. Formerly discoveries have not been proved actual inscriptions, but of stones bearing marks strongly resembling ancient Semitic writings. The tablet in question was found by one of my men in a slave pit to the south of Inyanga, north of Umtali. The district contains hundreds of these pits, from twenty to twenty-five feet deep, in which the ancients kept their slaves. The tablet was evidently made of cement and had been cut in two, clearly while it was soft, the letters on it being in no way damaged. The characters look to me like Greek letters, but other experts say they are Graeco-Phoenician. I take it to be the half of an ancient passport, one portion of which was retained by the master and the other handed to the messenger.

"I also discovered near Zimbarwa a brass figure of Pan, six and a half inches in length, very similar to the figures found at Pompeii, thus proving Greek influence in South Africa apparently at a later period than the tablet I have mentioned. These and other discoveries are to my mind further proof that in South Africa there has been a continuation of different civilizations.

"It has also been shown that during all these periods gold mining has been carried on. Apparently this was begun by natives of the soil, probably bushmen, and it seems likely that the first Semitic people who appeared on the scene were only traders in the precious metal."

FARMING BACK IN 1800

Agriculturist Lived in the Simplest Manner and in the Strictest Economy.

In a well built cabin of logs the farmer lived in the simplest manner and with the strictest economy. His rooms were warmed and his food was cooked by a fire in a 10-lb plate iron stove, which sent the gases up the flue of a solitary chimney that rose from the middle of the house. His food was chiefly pot, or, rye, onions and sauerkraut, milk and cheese, turnips and Indian corn. Sometimes fresh meat was added, but no beef nor sheep were slaughtered till every part of the carcass had been disposed of among the families on the neighboring farm.

With this exception, everything he ate grew upon his own land. Everything he wore was made under his own roof. The good wife and her daughters cultivated the garden patch that lay near the house, trained the honeysuckles that shaded the door, spun the flax and woolen yarn, worked the loom, made the cheese and butter and, when harvest came, tolled with the sickle in the field. If he had a servant on the farm, the man or woman was a redemptioner.—From McMaster's "History of the American People."

HEINO'S MISSION.

What Heino really desired and fought for was the liberation of man in body and spirit. He strove to break up the crust of outward dogmas and traditions and selfish tyrannies, which in his day weighed upon the spirit of the German people with an oppression hardly realizable by us. He was most truly one of the makers of Germany. That that country produced him is one of its chief glories, one of its many claims on the sympathy and admiration of the modern world. It is time that he were better understood there; and to be understood is pre-eminently in Heino's case—and not in his relations of citizenship and patriotism alone—to be forgiven.—London Times.

THE LIMIT OF CAUTIOUSNESS

Liverrman Demands Proof of Honesty from Man Who Would Rescue Fire-Trapped Horse.

The man who refused to be saved from drowning because he had never been introduced to his would-be rescuer was an incorrigible bohemian compared with the Liverrman the commercial traveler met on his last trip west.

One night the livery stable caught fire. The stable was old, the fire had made considerable headway before the alarm was turned in, and it seemed inevitable that most of the horses must perish. To the Liverrman who stood in the street cursing and wringing his hands an athletic stranger rushed up and said:

"Tell me in what part of the building your best horses are stabled and I will save some of them."

The Liverrman ceased lamenting and eyed the stranger suspiciously.

"Sir," said he, "can you produce proof that you are square in your horse deals?"

"Square hell!" said the stranger and dashed into the stable. With the assistance of a fireman he saved five horses, but not until they were safely stabled elsewhere did the Liverrman cease to suspect the stranger of horse-stealing.

Proved.

The Cook—Sure, an' ye don't mane to tell me that ye think it's bad luck to break a mirror?"

The New Maid (earnestly)—Ay don't tank it—Ay know it!

The Cook—Gorry be! An' how do ye know it?

The New Maid—Every time Ay break one Ay lose my job!

Make Sounds Nearer True.

To make the sound from phonographs nearer true to the original and without the metallic note, is the idea of a New Yorker in patenting a cabinet for such instruments in which the amplifying horn is pointed to the floor.

Too Trivial for Uncle Sam.

Uncle Sam does not deal in small figures. According to the controller of the treasury a bill of 55 cents is too trivial a matter for the government to consider. Such a decision was made by the controller in the case of George W. Lambert, a discharged private of the Twenty-sixth U. S. On his discharge from the army in 1904, Lambert claimed the government was short 55 cents in his pay. The claim was disallowed on the ground that, in accordance with the established practice of the government, the amount is too small to warrant a settlement.
