Origin of Present-Day Games.
Though we get our games of tennis from the eastern countries, most of our games of bat and ball come down to us from the ancient north. Ring games and games in which light objects are thrown come also from foreign countries, where the spear was a familiar weapon. But all of them alike appear to revert in origin to early experiences of the race by which they out their salvation.

Stringing Pearls.
Only the finest silk is used for stringing the finest pearls. Great beads, round and shiny, unmistakably artificial, and with no more real luster than white marbles, with the exception of what are called Roman pearls, manufactured many years ago, may be allowed to hang together on catgut, but pearls must be threaded, pearl kissing pearl, on silken strands, worthy of their shape and "stia."

Mrs. G. Whilly has been sick.

Warning to Bore.

When the man upon whom you are calling begins to drum on his desk with his fingers, he is not drumming "the devil's tattoo" at random. He is ticking out a clear, emphatic telegram, hot from the wire—"Will this fellow never go?" Its meaning never changes, and you ought to understand it at the first drum.

How Does It Get Across?

At a certain eastern university one of the professors was conducting an examination in physiology. He asked for a description of the circulation at the extremities, meaning of course, the capillary circulation. The youth he called upon evidently did not know much about the matter, for he replied that the blood went down one leg and up the other!—Youth's Companion.

MODERN DINNER ALL RIGHT

Physician Declares That Appurtenances and Menu All Tend to Promote the Digestion.
Dinner as a social institution has been so sedulously attacked by gastronomic experts in recent years that the banquet has been held responsible for many untimely deaths of public men. One of the most conspicuous statements in America was said to have been killed by dining out. The consumption of course after course upon a menu is held by various authorities to be inconsistent with long life and even with continued health. Now, all these notions, according to Dr. R. S. Levenson, are based more or less upon delusion. Discoveries in the physiology of digestion during the past dozen years do not discredit the modern dinner, he says. They vindicate it. Man has unconsciously established a routine of courses in the dinner that takes thorough cognizance of the physiological principles upon which digestion is founded. Take, for instance, the elaborate gowns worn by the women and the evening suits by the men, the floral decorations and the music. There is no doubt that each of these items serves the purpose of composing a generally favorable stage setting for digestion. In recent years a routine of courses in the dinner that takes thorough cognizance of the physiological principles upon which digestion is founded. Current Opinion.

Definition of a Gentleman.
A kindly heart, a quiet voice, polite words and manners, a hand open to help, attention to little things for the comfort of others, freedom from anger, boasting, and patronizing; toward the strong, courteous; toward the weak, chivalry; toward all men, fairness. Few men ever see one in a mirror.—Life.

COURT CALLED IT CRUELTY

Method of Negro Lion Tamer Met With the Decided Disapproval of English Judge.
Lady Helmsley was a witness in an interesting case heard at York, in which a negro lion tamer named Albert Maccoco was summoned for cruelty, terrifying a lioness, and Albert Manders, manager proprietor, of Oldham, was summoned for permitting the animal to be terrified, says the London Pall Mall Gazette.
Manders was at the York Martinmas fair, in November, and Lady Helmsley was told by one of the attendants that the lioness had already caused the death of one man and attacked two others, and that Maccoco would at the period of his life enter the cage.
Lady Helmsley described how the animal was frightened by noise and by the insertion into the cage of red hot bars. She was so disgusted with the performance that she left and reported the matter to the police.
Further evidence was called to show that the man entered the cage for a few moments, firing blank cartridges while he was inside.
Manders was fined 20 shillings and costs, and Maccoco 10 shillings and costs.
Great Virtue.
There is no greater everyday virtue than cheerfulness. This quality in woman is like sunshine to the day, or gentle renewing moisture to parched herbs. The light of a cheerful face diffuses itself and communicates the happy spirit that inspires it.
The sourest temper must sweeten in the atmosphere of continuous good humor. As well might fog and cloud shown in respect to the countenance of peace and content, but difficulty will vanish when we truly consider that alien gloom and passionate despair do nothing but multiply thorns and thicken sorrows.
There is no path but will be easier traveled, no load but will be lighter no shadow on heart or brain but will lift sooner in the presence of a determined cheerfulness. It may at times seem difficult for the happiest tempered to keep the countenance of peace and content, but difficulty will vanish when we truly consider that alien gloom and passionate despair do nothing but multiply thorns and thicken sorrows.

TEACH CONCENTRATION.

The greatest thing that parents can do for their children is to teach them concentration of the mind as soon as their intelligence begins to bud—and that is very early. The mind of a child generally takes its bent long before the school days begin. The proper education of children begins from the cradle, and if it were pursued as it ought to be the mental force of mankind might be quadrupled in a single generation.
