There is a Time For Everything

Just now is the time to visit Oliver's store and see the many new things that are arriving and being put on display.

We make no claim of having everything on earth. But the lines we do sell are made up of goods of first quality and a purchase of such goods leaves a pleasant recollection.

must be a tapering one, whether started from below the hips or below the As there is a decided tendency toward a pannier-like bouffancy under the hips, the tapering will be noticed most often from the knees down. The vogue for the short outstanding tunic skirt, known in French as le minaret, provides an attractive medium for the attainment of the approved silhouette. It is seen in various forms. Sometimes there are two, and even three, such flounces, but always of a transparent fabric. They are thinly wired around the lower edge and trimmed with bead fringes, chiffon flowers or fur. A charming evening model along these lines is shown in the accompanying illustration. Rose petal pink chiffon is used for the corsage and minaret tunic. The round line of the latter is broken in front by the lifted plait in the material. Besides being wired, the lower edge is bound with dark fur. Fur is again used as a border on the arm sides. There are no sleeves; the material is merely extended beyond the shoulder and The diagram on the right shows the a two piece skirt completes the cosappoints a chief engineer, a treasurer, caught under the arm like an angel shape in which the material should be tume. Another sash, in a rich autumnal shade of brown, shows markings of mustard, red and green; a deep violet sash is striped with ve low, green and rose. The vivid hues of the Roman stripings are expressed in innumerable combinations. Sash ribbons are usually sold in one and a half yard lengths if it is desired to carry them only once around the waist and two and a half yard lengths if they are to be passed twice around. Handsome Roman silks in the stripings which distinguish our grandmother's little-girl sashes come in thirtyinch widths and may be used very effectively, indeed, for waistcoats and for high, draped girdles.

Is published twice a month, 24 issues a year, of from 16 to 48 large pages; chock-full of information and suggestions which you will find nowhere else. It deals with everything of interest to the Housekeeper, Farmer, Gardener, Fruit Grower, Dairjanan, Live Stock and Poultry Keeper. Each issue has several special articles by well-known writers about the farm and how to make it pays A year's subscription will include the big Poultry Annual issue, printed in February, which alone is worth the entire price of the whole year's subscription. Every one who has or ever expects to have poultry should be sure to get the Poultry Annual.
