KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS WERE LEBELED.

Distributors of "Oath" Plead Guilty. Sentence Suspended. The following, published in a recent issue of The Grand Rapids Herald, should interest some Lowell people and other of our good friends elsewhere, who have been deceived by "The Menace," which published the libel here referred to: Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—Pleas of guilty and nolle contendere were entered in court here today by Charles Mezonig and C. H. Stage, who had been indicted on charges of libel and conspiracy to libel the Knights of Columbus in printing and distributing what purported to be an oath taken by members of that organization. James A. Flaherty, supreme knight of the order, told the court that the Knights of Columbus felt that they had been vindicated by the pleas entered, and said the order would be satisfied if the court would discharge the defendants under a suspension of sentence. PARNELL WEDDING PRESERVED IN BIBLE

Marriage of Hannah Fingleton and Michael Verlin.

From our Cannonburg Scribble. A very pretty wedding took place in St. Patrick's church at Parnell Tuesday morning, February 3 at half past eight o'clock, when Miss Hannah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fingleton, was united in marriage to Michael Verlin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Verlin of Ada township. The bride was gowned in white silk, while the groom wore a suit of brown. They were attended by Miss Margaret Doody, niece of the bride, and Clarence Jones as best man. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the pleasant home of the bride's parents, where the invited guests had assembled. At high noon a two-course dinner was served, the tables being spread for one hundred guests. The dining room decorations were white carnations. After dinner the happy couple left for a short wedding trip. The presents were many and beautiful. Those from a distance who attended the wedding were: Mrs. Frank Anon of Flint, Mrs. Burley Bailey of Six Lakes, Mrs. Margaret Doody, Mrs. Tressa Shea, Mrs. Andrew Whalen and her two sons Andrew and Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fingleton, all of Grand Rapids. Mr. and Mrs. Verlin will leave for their home in Dakota. Congratulations and best wishes from their many friends will accompany them.

Martin Hine's Valentine Of Sixty Years Ago.

When you select a pretty valentine and send it to your best girl do you ever wonder just what will be the ultimate fate of this bit of Cupid lore? Sometimes there is a touch of genuine sentiment wrapped in these lace fantasies which goes where it was intended—straight into the heart of the fair one who receives it. More than half a century ago, back in 1854, Martin Hine, then only a youth in Grand Rapids, then only little more than an overgrown village, bought a valentine and sent it to pretty Lucy J. Tilden who lived in Lowell and taught school part of the year in Plainfield. It was a pretty valentine and on the inside page was a love verse written by the ardent young sinner and in his own handwriting, too. This valentine carried its message straight into the heart of the pretty girl in Lowell and the next year the two young lovers were married and made their home in Grand Rapids. The valentine was preserved as one of the tender tokens of the courtship and it has rested peacefully between the pages of the family Bible all these years. Mr. and Mrs. Hine's son and daughter, Attorney Frank W. Hine and Mrs. J. W. Johnson, reside in this city and the valentine is now in the possession of Mrs. Johnson who considers it one of her choicest treasures. This valentine which was sent on St. Valentine's day sixty years ago is remarkably well preserved. Only a few petals have fallen from the wreath of roses and the love poem written so long ago remains clear and undimmed by the passing years.—[Grand Rapids Press.

Use Oxygen for Bleating

Experiments are being conducted in Germany to discover the usability of liquid air and liquid oxygen as explosives for mines, says the Coal Age. The liquid oxygen is mixed with aluminum powder and detonated, producing a force 2 1/2 times that produced by black powder. One advantage that it possesses is that no bad fumes are produced.

TO CROWN HER LOVE

By EMILY BEE. They had celebrated together the advent of each New Year since the first year of their acquaintance. That meant five celebrations. And each had ended with a declaration from him which she paid, and a question from him to which she would not give definite answer.

"That night they sat in the glittering restaurant, part of the noisy hilarious crowd, and yet by their sincerity and simplicity differentiated from that crowd. With the rest of the crowd they ate, drank and laughed. A bell struck, and at the sound the great noisy thrush suddenly, voluntarily, expectantly. A distant door opened and a silken silvery page led in a rosy child, typifying the New Year. A thousand chimings rang out. The diners sprang to their feet, and the scene in the restaurant became pandemonium. She alone was silent, with a fixed smile. As her escort joined those about them in the cry of Happy New Year! she only smiled and smiled. Had she emitted a single sound, it would have been a cry. The first confusion over, they settled in their chairs again. Her eyes were fixed upon her plate. Before raising them she must be sure that they were veiled. Last year he had seized this moment to speak to her. This year—could she live through this year?"

He was relating a story, doubtless amusing. With an effort she gave him attention. Something was wrong. He no longer cared. Could she keep him from knowing that she did, that after all, she did? He would not speak. Rather abruptly he leaned back, as if he, too, wearied of the face they played. "Aren't you bored with this, Alice? It only lasts—so long. Let's go."

She nodded and rose. He held her wrap, and as she slipped into its loose warm folds, his fingers touched her shoulder. She could feel the warm blood rise to that touch, and miserably conscious, she fastened her wrap without a glance in his direction. He picked up her white gloves and handed them to her. She observed, with dull surprise, that his hand was a bit unsteady. In a flash she recollected—she was almost positive of it—that the fingers touching her shoulder had trembled. She looked up at him swiftly, caught him off guard, and read the bitterness in his eyes.

"Treading her way before him, through lines of colorful sparkling tables, the distance to the door seemed interminably long. She must verify that glimpse into his soul. If she had seen aright, then he still cared. It was only indifference that proved the death of love.

As the cold air of the street smote them, they breathed deeply of its freshness. "Let's walk," he said. "Again she only nodded. "Now," she thought, "Now, perhaps he will speak." But they walked on in silence, a silence almost unbearable to both of them. It was after they had traveled many blocks, passed out of the district of garish merry-making, were approaching the threshold at which they must part, that she took her fate in her hands.

"Tonight," she said, endeavoring to speak casually, lightly, "we have omitted a part of our ancient and honorable formula." "Since it is only a formula," he said, "it is better omitted. The times are against formalism."

"But the occasion is not complete without it," she persisted, with a soft laugh, the while her eyes were blank with pain. "It is not only complete, but finished," he said. They walked on. She was praying for strength to carry her through the little distance remaining, until—until the end. So he thought she had drifted with him. He would not understand. A wild determination came to her. He should understand! As though they had both been speaking frankly, she said, "I will answer your words of last year, and the year before, and years before. I could not give myself to you while I was a failure. I should have been less worth winning. I have succeeded now. The commission has come to me, to make the mural paintings for the New Center. It will be in the papers tomorrow. You are the only one who knows."

"Then you are worth winning now?" he asked calmly. "Now," she said to herself, "my heart will surely break." "It is only when you love that you are worth winning. When you love,
