AUGUSTUS W. WEEKES.

"Gus. Weekes is dead!"

Many a heart and many a home were saddened when this message was passed about town Monday evening. All knew that Mr. Weekes had been in declining health for several years and some knew that he had been confined to his home for the past week or two; and yet the spoken word that marks the sundering of many years; and the breaking of such connections is neither easy nor pleasant. When the business places closed during the funeral hour Wednesday afternoon, a sincere tribute of fellowship and affection was rendered by an attended the Pioneer meeting at arranged on the lawn and in the house for forty. The weather was delightful following a rain the night before and all seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves.

Among those present were Mrs.

TO BIRTH PLACE

His Mother, Light Day, Still Lives Aged Nearly Ninety-Almost Sole Survivors of Flat River Indians.

Rodney Lewis Negake, son of Negake and grandson of Chief Cobmoosa, of the Flat river Ottawa Indians, was here last week as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hooker, and with his son Henry Antoine gave The Ledger a pleasant interview. R. L. Negake was born in Octo-ber 1848, in a wigwam on the bank of l'lat river on the reservation north of Lowell and for many years since used as a fair ground.

His mother's name is—for she is still hving—Was-sage-she-go-qua, meaning Light Day. His father died about 35 years ago.
The tribe numbering 250 to 300 people left Lowell in 1856, canoing to Grand Rapids where they took the river steamer Michigan to Grand Haven and thence a lake steamer Papola to Pentwater. R. L. Negake was eight years old then and he remembers the trip well. He thinks 250 descendants of the Lowell Indians are living but very few of the originals besides himself and his mother. The latter who is 86 or more is still well and STORY FAMILY REUNION active, does her own work and retains her faculties remarkably

THE GRACE OF LIVING.

Paul's letters to the church in Corinth are a divine commentary upon church government. A stricter adparents, the letter was signed "Edwin herence to the principles enunciated and a clearer interpretation of those principles to the church of Jesus Christ would save us from many errors and heartaches. In this rich and populous nation the lesson for consideration today is most vital, for it concerns one of the fundamental principles which underly the progress of mankind as well as the kingdom of God. 1. Cheerful Giving (vv. 1-7). One of the dangers assailing the early Christian church was that of division beously injured and six fatally burned tween the Jewish and Gentile believers. One party suggested that the Gentiles ought to have a closer union with the Jews; on the other hand, certain Gentiles could not see the necessity of the Jewish ceremonial, and in this Paul agreed with them, and therefore they refused to assume any unnecessary burden. The great feasts at Jerusalem were crowded with pilgrims, both Jews and Jewish Christians. The pilgrims were often very poor, and fatigue must have fostered diseases. Here then was a place where a work of ministry to the needy might be done with the money which had been systematically gathered through the weekly contributions of Christian believers. Note how skillfully Paul appealed to these Corinthians. He recognizes their forwardness of mind and their zeal (vv. 1 and 2. Am. R.). Most delicately does be compliment them upon their work, for, said he, "I glory in your behalf."

matter of bounty, and not of covetousness or extortion. Paul's principle of giving is that it shall be a matter of free and beneficent gifts, not a matter of covetous greed; not a quid pro quo. He says that they who sow sparingly shall reap sparingly.

In the spirit of pouring out a blessing upon others, those who sow bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Givgradual curve which eliminates the north of here, was instantly killed ing is sowing. Small, indeed, will be peril of attack from three sides to when he was struck by a falling derthe harvest of many professed Christhey have given. True giving begins with the purpose of the heart (v. 7). but what a man purposes in his heart he must carry out in his actions, not "of necessity"-that is, because he is forced to. God loves the cheerful, glad giver who delights to see his hardearned money going out of his own pocket into that of his needful brother. II. The Results of Giving (vv. 8-15).

The law of renping according to the seed we sow and of reaping in proportion to the quality and quantity of the seed sown is also to be supplemented by the law of the necessity of systenatic giving (See I Cor. 16:2). One of the sweetest and most cheerful and former Hartford dentist, is dead in the inspiring promises of the Bible is "God is able." He is able to make all grace abound, and he does this "to declined rapidly. Worry is said to have the bountiful giver." Nothing more brought on the illness which finally surely limits the measure of grace that we receive than our penurious, niggardly giving (Phil. 4:19 and context). This giving of grace is "in order that Muskegon.-The fall state conven- ye always having all sufficiency in all tion of the Socialist party, which is things may abound unto every good to be held in Muskegon, will take place work." British Fought Their Way Inch By Inch Through the German Network of Trenches.

London-With battles of the severest character raging on three fronts --- Verdun and the Somme in the western zone, and in northern Galicia in the eastern zone-today's news indicates that the armies on both sides are pushing the fighting to the utmost. After defeating two strong German counter-attacks, in which flery liquid and noxious gases were used as a screen for the attacking troops, the British resumed their forward movement, Striking cast of Pozieres, along the high road to Bapaume, Australian and territorial troops advanced the British lines further towards the heights of Martinpuich, the crest of the vast plateau across which the battle is being fought. They are now within a mile and a half of this, their immediate objective. From Martinpuich the British artillery would have control of the wide sweep to the eastward which leads down to Bapaume,

Through the vast network of renches which criss-cross this gently rolling terrain the British fought their way inch by inch. We shouted for Peter, and ran to the nearest stone wall, tugging back some flat stones, which we placed directly below the dam for the overflow to fall on. Then, while Stella sat on the bank and watched the water rise, I shoveled some of the earth removed from the basin into the now abandoned temporary channel and packed it down. "Say, we can have fish in here," cried Peter, who was also watching the water rise. "You can have a four-legged fish," laughed Stella, as Buster came down the bank with a gleeful bark and went splash into the pool, emerging to shake himself and spray us all.

I had scarce finished filling in the temporary trench, and was setting the poor uprooted plants back into the bed, with my back turned, when I heard a simultaneous shout from Peter and goes!" cried Stella.

"Alas," said I, "now we've built a pool, we've got to build a whole garden to go with it!" "But it tinkles! Hear it tinkle!"

We listened, hand in hand. The tiny waterfall was certainly tinkling, a cool, delicate, plashy sound, which mingled with the sound of the breeze in the trees above our heads, and the sweet twitterings of birds.

"Oh, John, it's a very nice dam, and a very nice world!" she whispered, as we went through the door. "And, after all, it seems to me the greatest fun of gardening is all the nice other things it makes you want to do after you've done the first one."

The Nice Other Things.

A pool of water twenty feet long shining in the sun, or glimmering deeply in the twilight, that and nothing else save a few straggling annuals wrongly placed about it-yet it made Twin Fires over, it caused us weeks of toll, it got into our dreams, it got into our pockets, too. This took considerable exious, hit upon a scheme for testing various possible arrangements. She filled all sorts of receptacles, from tumblers to pitchers, with cut flowers, low and high, and stood them in masses here and there, till the spot was found where they looked the best. As the pool centered on the line between the front door of the house and the yetto-be-built garden bench against the stone wall, and as the orchard came down to within forty feet of the brook on the slope from the house, it was something of a problem to lead naturally from a grassy orchard slope into a water feature and a bit of almost formal gardening, without making the transition stiff and abrupt. We finally solved it with the aid of a lawn mower, rounded the edges of the long piece for of the Civil war, which was designed Going over the grass between the

Stella gave up helping, for it was beyond her strength; but I kept on, through the long, hot July afternoons, and at last had it ready. The time of year was anything but propitious for sowing grass seed, but we planted it, none the less, trusting that in such a low, moist spot it might make a

CHARACTER IN THE TONGUE

Look at Your Own and See If There Is Any Sense to This New Science, So-Called.

"Put out your tongue," is a phrase associated in most people's minds with doctors, and is usually reminiscent of minor ailments and nasty medicines; spoken by a glossomancist, however. the curt command takes on an altogether different significance.

A glossomancist, it may be as well to explain, is a professor of glossomancy, a new science which consists in reading people's characters by the shape and size of their tongues. Thus, according to its votaries, the possessor of a short and broad tongue is apt to be untruthful as to words. and unreliable as to deeds. A long tongue moderately pointed, denotes frankness, and a loving, trustful, affectionate disposition. When the tongue is long and broad, however, it is a sign that the owner is shallow er. The typical woman gossip, say the rear or somewhat removed from glossomancists, almost always shows this shape of tongue.

n shape like an oyster, denotes mediocre abilities, and a nature that is narrow tongue goes with a nature that is at once quick-tempered and yet affectionate, strong and sudden in hate The worst type of tongue is the ong, narrow, sinuous kind, what glossomancists call the "snake tongue." Its possessors are likely to be cruel. sly, vindictive and very deceitful.

Butter Production.

The Dairy Commissioner, at first annual convention of Saskatchewan Dairymen's association, reviewed progress of 1915 which shows a great increase in the butter production of the co-operative creameries amounting to 1,500,000 lbs. He also said the improvement in quality is shown by the preference accorded Saskatchewan butter in outside markets. Shipments out of the province for the year totaled 52 carloads.

According to bulletin just issued by the Manitoba department of agriculture, the dairy industry had a very successful year in 1915. There was an increase of over 1,000,000 lbs. of creamery butter produced, as against the previous year, about 200,000 lbs. increase in dairy butter and over 25,000 lbs. increase in the cheese output. The increase of the total value of milk and milk products was over $427,000. The production of dairy butter for Manitoba during the year was 4,150,444 lbs. and it brought an average price of 23c per lb.; of creamery butter 5,839,667 lbs, were produced which commanded 29c per lb. on the average; cheese production was 726,725 lbs, which sold at an average price of 15c-the total value of these three products is given as $2,760,698, in addition to which the milk produced is valued at $925,659 and the cream at $158,827, the average price of the milk being reckoned at 2.1c per lb. and of sweet cream at 32c per lb. butter-fat. In connection with the dairy industry it is interesting to note that almost the most important fodder crop now is corn, of which the 1915 production amounted to 190,132 tons. The biggest cultivated fodder crop is timothy which for last season produced 193,357 tons and the next most popular crop was brome grass with 45,815 tons; of alfalfa and clover there were produced some 38,000 tons. The number of cattle in the province is given as 631,005, which is an increase of 130,000 over the previous

The fact that the Red Deer, Alberta, cheese factory is handling four times as much milk this season as last winter shows the growing improvement in the dairy industry. On Feb. 14, it was announced the factory had just shipped two tons of cheese for Calgary market.

Cardston, Alberta, creamery in 1915 paid its patrons a rate of 271/2c per lb. for butter fat and had a profit remaining over all expenses of $5,584. The creamery during season distributed among farmers $61,117 and manufactured 256,000 lbs. butter and 13,000 lbs. cheese. Average price realized for butter was 2814 cents.

SYNOPSIS. Adele la Chesnayne, a belle of New

Adele la Chesnayne, a belle of New France, is among conspirators at her uncle's house. Cassion, the commissaire, has enlisted her Uncle Chevet's aid against La Sai.e. D'Artigny, La Saile's friend, offers his services as guide to Cassion's party on the journey to the wilderness. The uncle informs Adele that he has betrothed her to Cassion and forbids her to see D'Artigny again. In Quebec Adele visits her friend, Sister Celeste, who brings D'Artigny again. In Quebec Holden of the commission of the late of the commission of the late of the commission of the dance. Cassion escorts Adele to the hall. She meets the governor, La Barre, and hears him warn the commissaire against D'Artigny. D'Artigny's ticket to the ball has been recalled, but he gains entrance by the window, Adele informs him of the governor's words to Cassion. For her eavesdropping at the ball Adele is ordered by the governor to marry Cassion at once and to accompany him to the Illinois country. He summons Chevet and directs that he attend them on the journey. They leave in the boats. Adele's future depending on the decision of D'Artigny whom she now knows she loves. Cassion and leave in the boats. Adele's future depending on the decision of D'Artigny whom she now knows she loves. Cassion and D'Artigny have words. Uncle Chevet for the first time hears that his nicce is an heiress, and begins to suspect Cassion's motives. Adele refuses to permit her husband to share her sleeping quarters. Chevet agrees to help her. She talks secretly to D'Artigny but he declines to cretly to D'Artigny, but he declines to give her active aid against her husband ........

Bad luck frequently comes in bunches. Adele has been buffeted by fate for months, nay for several years. In this fight against Commissaire Cassion she needs direly every aid she can muster, yet one after another her sources of help fall away. This is a thrilling installment, which describes how she receives two serious shocks. One of them blackens her love affair. The other frightens her.

Cassion finds his wife alone on the hill and discovers a man's footprints. He accuses her angrily.

He made no effort to halt me, nor to follow, and I made my way down the darkening path, without so much movements. It was almost like a play to me, and I was reckless of the consequences, intent only on my purpose. In the early dawn we broke camp as usual, except that chosen boatmen guided the emptied canoes through the rapids, while the others of the party made portage along the rough shore. And when, at last, we made the long portage, tramping through the dark forest aisles, bearing on our shoulders heavy loads, scarcely able to see the sun even at midday through the leafy screen of leaves, and came forth at lake, no words can express the raptures with which I stood and gazed across that expanse of heaving, rest less water. The men launched their canoes upon the surface and made my eyes, until darkness descended and left all before me a vold. It was scarcely more than daybreak when we broke camp and headed our canoes out into the lake. With the dawn, and the glint of sunlight over the waters, much of my dread departed, and I could appreciate the wild song of delight with which our Indian paddlers bent to their work. The sharp-prowed canoes swept through the waters swiftly, no longer battling against a current, and the shore line ever in view was fascinating in its green foliage. We kept close to the northern shore, and soon found passage amid numerous islands, forest covered, but with high, rocky outlines. For four days we coasted thus, never out of sight of shore, and usually with islands between us and the main body of water. In all that time we had no sign of man-not even a wisp of smoke, nor heard the crack of distant riffe. About us extended loneliness and desolation, great waters never still, rast forests grim and somber, tall, n enacing rocks, bright-colored in

As last we left the chain of Islands behind, and one morning struck out from the shore into the waste of waters, the prows of the canoes turned westward, the steersman guiding our course by the sun. For several hours we were beyond view of land, with naught to rest the eye upon save the row open space and disappeared into gray sea, and then, when it was nearly the fringe of trees bordering the edge night, we reached the shore and D'Artigny. I waited breathless, wondering what his purpose could be, half inclined to intercept and question bim. Was he seeking to serve my cause? to learn the truth of my relationship with Cassion? or did he have some other object, some personal feud in which he sought revenge? The first thought sent the warm blood leaping through my veins; the second left me shivering as if with sudden chill.

Even as I stood, hesitating, uncertain, he turned and retraced his steps along the same path of his approach. passing me not ten steps away and vanishing into the wood. I thought he paused at the edge and bent down, yet before I found voice or determination to stop him, he had disappeared. My courage returned, spurred by curlosity. Why should he take so roundabout a way to reach the shore? What was that black, shapeless thing be had paused to examine? I could see someshadow.

I ventured toward it, creeping behind the bushes bordering the path, conscious of an odd fear as I drew closer. Yet it was not until I emerged from the fringe of shrubbery that even the faintest conception of what the object was I saw occurred to me. Then I stopped, frozen by horror, for I confronted a dead body. For an instant I could not utter a will bring a package of breakfast flakes with a delicious new corn flavour - flakes that don't mush down when milk or cream is added, nor are they "chaffy" in the package like the ordinary kind.

These New Post Toasties are manufactured by a new process using quick, intense heat which raises tiny bubbles over each flake, the distinguishing characteristic. And the new process also brings out a new corn flavour, never tasted in corn flakes of the past.

Try a handful dry—they're good this way and the test will reveal their superior flavour. But they're usually served with milk or cream.
