REHABILITATION OF OUR WOUNDED. The United States Government is resolved to do its best to restore every wounded American soldier and sailor to health, strength, and self-supporting activity.

Foreign language services will be furnished by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. If he needs an artificial limb or mechanical appliance, the Government will supply it.

THE DAWN OF PEACE. This is too great and solemn an hour for feelings of jubilation only. The thought that affirms that not one of the lives of thousands of splendid young men so freely laid down in field and trench and hospital and in the hands of thousands of the hand of Europe has been given in vain, nor has any mother's grief, or sister's or sweetheart's tears, or one of the knight's of our lands written shortly before his own demise come as a sacred invocation rather than a sacrifice.

There are many other ways, because there is as yet no complete brotherhood of nations any more. There is a complete brotherhood of individuals, but there is no brotherhood of nations.

Harry K. Andrews in France Writes Lowell Friends.

Dear Mr. Hicks and Myrtle: You see I am answering your letter very quickly for a soldier, but I must admit that it is an accident. One of the boys in this barracks has been sick several days, and yesterday suddenly developed into spinal meningitis, and so about sixty of us are quarantined for about two weeks. We are receiving disinfecting treatments and have no reason to fear further cases. I am very well myself and do not worry at all. The captain said if more of us came down the regiment would not get to the front. That sounds rather encouraging. Everyone here thinks that an open winter would mean the war ended by spring. It is surely exasperating to be confined just now as our work is beginning to be interesting. I am on the reconnaissance detail. My work is with observing instruments, map drawing, firing data, etc. It is exactly the work I wanted and having studied up on the subject before entering the service, am making good use of the time. I am helping slightly in the instruction of others, was made 1st class private last week. Hope to keep on advancing as long as the war lasts. The captain told me that very likely my turn would come to attend officers' training school. If I should receive a commission after being in the army as a private, I should feel rather proud. But after all I hope the war will open winter quickly for that to take place. I am anxious to return home and tell my experiences. If I tried to write them I would have to send by parcels post. Our trip across the Atlantic was swift and quiet. Our ship being one of the fastest, depended on its speed rather than a convoy. We received a "S. O. S." call, but suspecting it to be a lure prima German sub, detoured south as far as Africa. Our course was zigzag all the way but in spite of this round-about route we reached England in 6 days. Our trip to this training camp was made in R. R. freight cars (into which we were packed in so great numbers that we could not even sit down (say nothing about sleeping). All day and all night marches, English and French "rest camps" (which were anything but restful) at which we slept only two, and nights in the open. However we all pulled thru in very good shape, able to sleep on the walk—almost. We spent about a week in a French village, which I am not poetic enough to describe. All the buildings were stone and mud. The garrets were entered by ladders outside. The floors were the earth. Their church, however, was grand, as is always the case here. The people live on corn or brown bread and wine, sometimes a few potatoes and eggs that is all. Our camp is in a very romantic vicinity. It was near here that King Arthur threw his sword over a lake and an arm reached out and caught it, and the legend is that the stone, Sir Galahad searched for the Holy Grail. Charlemagne routed the Britons here. Last Sunday I was in Rennes (S. W. Paris). Was in the Cathedral and saw the Archbishop of Brittany Normandy, etc. Also saw the Palace of Justice which is 6 or 7 hundred years old. It is here that some of the most famous paintings and tapestries are located. They are all familiar to me, having seen their copies so often. I celebrated my wedding anniversary by eating a sumptuous Masonic dinner consisting of French fried potatoes, eggs, veal, chocolate, bread, beer and champagne. The cost of the meal was $1.75. This letter has been entirely about myself, but I can write of nothing else which is of mutual interest. I surely hope to receive more letters from you and Myrtle. Very sincerely yours, Harry K. Andrews.

Gambling for turkeys, ducks and other fowl will not be allowed in Kent county this year, Sheriff C. A. Anderson says. He is in charge of the state food administrator discouraging this practice and pointing out that it tended to remove a standard price determined the sheriff to take this step. Last season the sheriff prohibited the killing of turkeys and fowl upon the basis of a violation of a state law. Both the state law and the ruling of the food administrator will be used this year to punish offenders.

Unlike Topsy—Swift & Company Has Not "Jest Grown"

Swift & Company, in fifty years of well ordered growth, has become one of the great national services because it has learned to do something for the American people which they needed to have done for them, in the way in which they preferred to have it done.

It has met each successive demand, in the changing conditions of national life, by getting good meat to increasing millions effectively, efficiently, economically, and expeditiously.

The Swift & Company packing plants, refrigerator cars, car routes, branch houses, organization, and personnel of today are the practical solutions, born of practical experience, to the food problems of half a century.

Because of all these elements working in correlation and union, Swift & Company is able to supply more and better meat to more people than would have been possible otherwise, at a net profit per pound of meat so low (a fraction of a cent) that the consumer price is practically unaffected.

Strip away any portion of this vast, smooth-running human machine, and you make a large part of the meat supply uncertain, lose the benefit of half a century of fruitful experience, and scatter the intelligent energies of men who have devoted a life work toward meeting the needs of a nation in one vital field.

The booklet of preceding chapters in the history of the packing industry will be mailed on request to Swift & Company, Union Stock Yards, Chicago, Illinois.
