Lincoln's Challenge

"The hired laborer of yesterday" labors on his own account today, and will hire others to labor for him tomorrow.

There is a challenge to YOU in that significant statement of Lincoln's, and just encouragement in the fact that most of today's successful bankers, manufacturers and farmers were "yesterday's" clerks, machinists and farm hands.

The men who bought the least "yesterday" may buy the most today. The men who live on less than they earn today, and bank the difference, are fitting themselves to fulfill Lincoln's prophecy for "tomorrow."

If you'll put forth that kind of effort, this bank will help YOU become a leader tomorrow.

THE LITERARY CLUBS

L. L. C. Addressed by E. O'Dell, of Grand Rapids. The Lowell Literary Club and their guests met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Watson Wednesday afternoon, February 1. The usual business was in charge of the President, all joining in the reading of the Club Collect, after which Mrs. Charles Doyle, sang, "In An Old Fashioned Town," by Leonora Harris and "Kashmir Song" by Amy Woodford Sneider. Mrs. Doyle was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Harold Weekes.

Mrs. Doyle then introduced Mr. George E. O'Dell, leader of the Ethical Society, of Grand Rapids, who spoke upon the "Clash Between Young People and Their Elders," and told in his humorous way the difference between the American homes and the homes in England. The problem of getting back the parental authority when the young people of today so often look upon their parents as back numbers, saying the parents must insist on authority and have justice and fairness in the home, and the services of the young people, which, by tact, is teaching them to do something for the home, which provides so much for them. Have names for every member of the family, and accompanying the young people to their places of amusement, keep as young as they are, and always have the home the place of happiness and the spirit of forgiveness.

Mr. O'Dell closed his talk by saying the Clash was more an American problem, and an improvement might be accomplished by more discipline, self control and service in the home, but it was not necessary for children to exhibit a love for their brother, but must feel the responsibility of being the brother's keeper, and that the family is an institution, and the parents duty is to teach the children, while young the art of right living, and they should hold themselves as a warning rather than a model. The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. Frank Taylor, February 15th, responding to roll call with quotations from J. C. Wright.

C. L. C. in Civic Day Program Hear Mr. Runciman on Investments.

The Clover Leaf Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. H. L. Weekes last Tuesday, and after the usual business meeting and a very fine critic's report from Mrs. A. G. Peckham, the program was opened by Miss Lenore Gardner with a pretty song, "Miss Marjar,"—Mrs. Weekes acting as accompanist. In response to an encore, Miss Gardner sang, "Philosophy."

This being "Civic Day," the ladies of the club were fortunate in being enabled to listen to an address by Mr. C. H. Runciman of the Women's Union Should Know About Co-operations and Investments." In clear and concise statements, Mr. Runciman advised as to relative safety of bonds and stocks, giving preference to the former, then naming in the order of their desirability five different types of bonds, ranging from United States and foreign government bonds through municipal and public utility to railroad bonds. He also advised, before investment, a very careful inquiry into the character of the business, and growth of the same. Callable and non-callable bonds were defined and mention made of the possibility of registering bonds for safety.

Miss Mildred Peckham then rendered "Scappella," a piano selection by Bolin, responding to an urgent encore with "Narcissus" by Nevin.

Mrs. W. M. Hunter, reporter of State laws for the club, then gave a resume of a number of acts, and though really state laws, are not generally enforced, and of which the majority of us are ignorant. Some of those mentioned were those relating to township officers, acts relating to sanitation, fire protection, etc., to the necessity for mirrors on trucks, and to regulation of pool rooms.

Lester Mauge then closed the program with a violin solo, "Flower Song," with piano accompaniment by his mother, and the club adjourned to meet next on Tuesday evening, February 21, with Mrs. B. H. Shepard. Press Rep.

BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENT

We take pleasure in announcing to the motoring public of Lowell and vicinity, the installation, in the near future, of a complete and efficient tire repair station, to be located on Main street, next door to the Main Street Garage.

We will be ready for business on or about March 1. All new and up to the minute equipment, handled by men who know the business. We will be able to handle all tubes and casings from motorcycle tires to five inch cards. One of the features of our equipment will be a Weaver Tire Changer. This means much to motorists, as it eliminates hammering and bending of rims, chalking of tires with tire irons, pinching of tubes, etc.

It is our aim to establish and maintain a permanent business in Lowell and we will merit your patronage and hold your respect and confidence and all our efforts will be directed to that end.

S. K. Breeze, Manager.

"THE MAN FROM LOST RIVER"

GOASTING ACCIDENT

Small Boy Had Head-on Collision With Telephone Pole.

John Robert Mackay, 6-year-old son of Mrs. Florence Mackay, house-keeper for C. H. Moore, had a narrow escape from violent death Monday at 4:30 p. m., while coasting down Peck's hill.

In an attempt to pass another sled he collided head-first with a telephone pole, was rendered unconscious, and remained so until 3 o'clock next morning.

His teeth were loosened, nose injured, and he bled from nose and mouth and vomited blood, and presented a bad aspect generally.

This Thursday morning he is able to sit up and ponder his narrow escape, but is not likely to repeat his experience for several days, at least while that big bump on his head remains.

HOW MUCH A BOY COSTS?

Some one has been figuring on how much a boy costs. Of course, I do not mean the cost of the baby, but of bringing up a boy, whether he goes to college, and other things. One estimate of the cost of a boy, a graduate of one of our New England colleges is a thousand dollars a year from his birth up.

Twenty thousand dollars and more is a good deal to invest in one boy, isn't it? Wouldn't you think you better invest that much money even in a healthy specimen of young America?

But this lesson adds another item to the cost of a boy. How much have you cost your mother? How many sleepless nights has she had because you were sick? How many sleepless ones because she was worried as to where you were or what you were doing?

How many headaches and heartaches has she had on your account? How many hours of toil has she put in on you, hours whose cost is above price?

How many times has she sacrificed and denied herself for you?

There are boys who have cost their mothers more than life itself! The next question is, how much are you worth?

One way will be to estimate your earning value at twenty.

If you are worth one hundred dollars a month, then you are worth twenty thousand dollars, because the yearly interest on that sum at six per cent is twelve hundred dollars.

But honestly, how much are you worth?

"That girl is worth a million dollars," said a prominent man to a father, when his daughter had spoken particularly well. "More than that," was the proud father's reply.

Are you worth what it has cost in heartache, care, anxiety, and time? Think how many hours mother and father have spent on you. Are you worth it? The answer is, not in your ability to earn or learn, not in how much money you have saved, but in what you are.

A girl costs as much as a boy to bring up, both in money and in heartache. C. L. T.
