KING ASKS THAT STATE PURCHASE MICHIGAN FLOUR.

FRANK T. KING.

Frank T. King, of the Lowell Milling company, recently elected president of the Michigan Millers' association, strongly endorses the stand taken by Wolverine millers to have all flour used in state institutions purchased in Michigan.

The state purchasing agent as the result of protests, is placing all orders for flour in the state now, it is said.

Mr. King, who was a member of the Federal Food Control commission for Western Michigan during the war, does not think the use of wartime substitutes increased the demand for graham and wholewheat flours. He thinks that any increase is from a health standpoint but that the white flour will continue to be the old standby.—Grand Rapids Herald.

LOWELL BURGLARY

Lowell Home Ransacked in Absence of The Owners.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Gunn were called home from Grand Rapids by the message that their home had been entered and burglarized. On returning home they found the burglar had entered the house by the side door, about 7 o'clock and left later in the evening by the back door which was open. Every room was ransacked and the drawers of the dressers, as well as the living rooms, table and buffet drawers, and the contents on the floor. A gold watch and many "trinkets" which were valuable to Mr. and Mrs. Gunn were taken. A suit case, which contained several articles of clothing, and an electric heater was found at the back door which the burglar left in his hurry to get away. Every day, as Mr. and Mrs. Gunn are straightening up the house they find more things missing. They say they never had such an experience before and don't care to have another one.

LOWELL METHODIST NEWS.

The pictures shown last Sunday evening gave us a better understanding of the work that our church is doing in the reconstruction of Europe. The attendance was good, but more should take advantage of this opportunity, of becoming more familiar with our own undertakings.

John in some other country will be shown next Sunday evening. In place of the regular missionary program, next Sunday, some reports of the Young People's conference at Grand Rapids will be given. We were glad to know that twenty young people of our high school were in attendance.

The Ladies Aid society will hold their monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. William Choleman Friday, March 3. It is hoped that a large number of the members will be present, as there is important business to come before the society at that time.

The "Round-De-Lay" group of the Greene circle have been singing a song in which the strain is off-beat for a whole week, but the "Visible Group" have been using their eyes, and are quite in advance of the other groups.

Fifty members of the Fellowship class, and ten guests met in the Y. M. C. A. chapel Monday evening for their monthly business and social meeting. An excellent supper was served. Some of the songs, "Glad to be a La Harbiter" and "E Pluribus Unum" and "United We Stand," which was such a mystery to most of us, proved to be in "United States language" created by chicken sandwiches and layer cake. The program consisted of short addresses from Rev. Broholm and wife, of Mio, and Mrs. George Choleman.

The songs, a war game, Bible game, quotations, closing with a drawing of the prospective church house, were presented by the use of the stereopticon. The chief item of interest was a pledge of the class to study and read this building. The Bible game used was as follows: Who trembled at Paul's preaching? After what queen was a book of the Bible named? Whose disobedience became thoroughly salted? Who is called, "The Beloved Physician?" Mount of Assension? Another name for the first king of Israel? The first prospector of Christ? Jesus' last words? Who was the greatest number of books of the New Testament? Sent by Moses as a spy to Canaan? After whom was the third book of the Bible named? Who was the first shepherd? Who was the last judge of Israel? Who received a visit from Queen of Sheba? The first letters of the answers spell the name of a helpful class of the Sunday school.

The meeting for sewing of the Triple C. circle at the home of Mrs. Kiel on Tuesday afternoon, and the bake sale of one division of the Greene circle at Klump's market on Saturday afternoon are some of the further activities of the Aid this week.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH. 10:30 a. m., morning service. 11:45 a. m., Sunday school. 7:30 p. m., evening service. Band No. 2, meets with Mrs. John Borgerson Friday afternoon, March 3.

Regular meeting of the Cheerful Doers will be held in the Parish house Monday evening, March 6. Mesdames, Rutherford and Buneman will act as hostesses.

The plans have all been made for that Sunday school party which is to be held in the Parish house, March 10.

Are you eligible to attend? Be at Sunday school next Sunday and find out all about it. Lots of fun in store for children and grown ups, so don't miss it.

Mrs. White's Sunday school class enjoyed a very pleasant evening at the home of Mrs. Norman Borgerson Monday. They have started reading aloud a most interesting story, which is to be finished at the next meeting. Light refreshments were served.

LOWELL METHODIST CHURCH. Sunday morning, March 5, 7:30 Sunday school; lesson on "Jehovah's Mercy to a Heathen City," Jonah 3:1-11. 11:30 morning worship, subject, "The Church vs. The World." 7:30 evening worship, "The Great Need and Its Source of Supply." E. E. Burdick, Pastor.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES. Christian science services are held each Sunday morning in the Christian Science service rooms over the Lowell State bank at 11 o'clock.

Subject for lesson sermon for Sunday, March 5, is "Man" as found in the Bible and Christian Science text books, "Science and Health." Reading rooms are open each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock.

All are cordially invited. Mrs. Belle Jones, Librarian.

GETS NEW ROAD MAP. The county road commission Friday received a map from the state highway commission on which are indicated all of the roads that can be built under the state reward system. Bonds to be built either by townships or counties must conform to the county road plan shown on the state map if they are to go under the state reward system. Practically all of the roads approved by the state highway commission.—Grand Rapids Press.

Published every Friday afternoon at Lowell, Michigan. P. M. Publication for under the name of the Lowell Ledger and Alto Solo.

Entered at the postoffice at Lowell, Mich., as second class matter.

When you know a fellow, know him by his name. When you've come to understand him and the business that he bears, when you've learned the light he's making, and the trouble in his way, his faults are trivial and there's not so much to be learned in the brother that you cherish as when you only know his name.

You are quick to see the benefit in the distant neighbor's style. You can point to all his errors and may seem at first in the white, and your criticism will come and your hates more violent grow. You talk about the fellow in the man you do not know.

But if you know the fellow closer and you find his shoulders touch, you find the traits you hated really lack and amount to much.

When you get to know a fellow, know his every mood and whim. You begin to find the texture and the splendid side of him. You begin to understand him and you cease to find and fear.

For with understanding always best dispenses dislike. You begin to find his virtues and his faults you really care to know. When you get to know a fellow, know him by his name.

When you get to know a fellow, know him by his name. When you get to know a fellow, know him by his name. When you get to know a fellow, know him by his name.

The Doctor's Revenge

By CLAIRE SMITH

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union

Ivan Basiloff, the Russian consul in a city of the Middle West, paced his library nervously, listening to the murmurings of the doctors' voices in the next room. His only daughter, Olga, had been ill for weeks of a mysterious disease, which had slowly wasted her until there seemed no chance of saving her life. Olga was seventeen, and, since her mother's death, she had been the apple of his eye.

The consul was just about to rush distractedly into the room where the consultation of specialists was being held, when the door opened and they filed in.

"You can save her?" cried the consul eagerly. "There is only one man can save her," answered the senior doctor, "that is Arheim."

"The Jewish specialist of the East side," explained another. "But when they got Arheim on the telephone, they listened to a brief message which, when repeated, caused the consul to explode with anger. "Go to him!" he exclaimed. "Why should I go to him? Isn't my daughter's life worth more than the lives of all the thousands of wretches who swarm in these parts? Tell him to come at once, and I'll pay him double what he could make in a month."

But the doctors could not get into communication with Arheim again, and, finally, fretting and fuming, the consul ordered his automobile, and was driven down to those parts which he had rightly characterized as "unsavory."

The East side of most middle western cities is the least pretentious in appearance, and the squallor of the streets through which M. Basiloff passed sent his memory whirling back among the slums of Minsk. He had secretly instigated the Jewish massacres which had sent fifty thousand homeless men and women flying to America for refuge, after their children, fathers, mothers, friends had been slaughtered before their eyes.

Among these had been Arheim, then a poor lad with a penchant for medicine which he could not gratify until he reached the free shores of America. That, perhaps, explained the doctor's gruffness; but how was Basiloff to know that?

The consul got out of his carriage and entered the house in which the doctor lived. When the consul sought to pass into his office an attendant politely restrained him.

"Say that I am M. Basiloff, his imperial majesty's consul here," exclaimed the visitor angrily. "Everybody must take his turn," replied the attendant, snavily. "At last, when his turn came, he was shown in. Doctor Arheim, blond, vivacious, clean, took him sit down. Arheim listened in silence. "When can you come?" pleaded the consul.

"Now," answered Arheim. "Twenty minutes later the two men were standing in the room where the sick girl lay. Around her were grouped the famous physicians, helpless in the presence of this rare disease. The consul left Arheim there and went back to his library.

When at last the doctors entered again he came forward almost humbly to meet them, and instead of his old, arrogant demeanor, there was submission in his inquiry: "Is she well?" said Arheim, quietly.

It was explained that the operation would have to be performed almost immediately. At last the day arrived when the crisis was past, and the consul took Arheim by the hands and, in Russian fashion, kissed him on either cheek.

"I do not know how to thank you or to remunerate you, except with thanks and gratitude," he said. "But you must name your fee, Doctor Arheim. No matter what you ask, it shall be yours.

"Well, M. Basiloff," the doctor answered, "since you wish to remunerate me as best you can, let there be no fee in this case."

"The consul was almost indignant. "I have been remunerated," replied the doctor. "Do you remember the massacre at Minsk sixteen years ago, M. Basiloff?" asked Doctor Arheim, a strange light coming into his eyes. "You were governor of Minsk. They said you could have stopped it."

"Well?" inquired the consul haughtily. "My little son was slain by your soldiers," said the doctor. "I vowed to be revenged on you. For fifteen years I have borne the load of hatred in my heart. Now it is gone. A life for a life—your daughter's for my son's—living for the dead. Good morning."

"Next moment he was gone.

Three boys, two by the name of Tucker, and one by the name of Le Gear, cut a large piece of ice loose at the railroad bridge Wednesday afternoon and decided to take a trip down the river. They floated on the ice down the river as far as Leon McCarthy's farm, and then landed and walked back, reaching their homes in time for supper. Many citizens were worried and some took boats to rescue the boys before any harm came to them.

The lecture by Frank Preston Johnson, Iowa newspaper man at the City hall Wednesday evening, was deserving of a much larger audience. His theme was "Community Spirit and Co-operation" and was ably discussed. Much of the lecture dealt with the relation of town and country and with the dependence of prosperity as far as upon the prosperity of the farmer, showing that good times cannot return until the farmer's buying power is restored. The speaker also pleaded for just dealings by the government with the ex-servicemen.

Storm Country Polly by Grace Miller White. Copyright by Little, Brown and Company. Includes illustration of a woman's face.

THE MILLIONS whose hearts were touched by the story of "Tess of the Storm Country" or who were equally affected by the sweet, pathetic little heroine as acted on the screen by Mary Pickford, will be charmed by this new tale of the squatter folk who once lived on Lake Cayuga, a few miles outside of Ithaca, N.Y. Polly herself, crude and untaught, but beautiful in face and fine in spirit, is an adorable heroine, loyal through thick and thin, tempestuous at times when her anger is aroused by wrong or injustice, but tenderness itself to all weak and helpless creatures. The situations in "Storm Country Polly" are tensely emotional, skillfully portrayed and adroitly handled, and the reader's sympathy with Polly and her people never lapses from start to finish. THIS DELIGHTFUL STORY has been SELECTED BY US TO RUN as a SERIAL in THESE COLUMNS. DO NOT MISS the OPENING INSTALLMENT

SMITH SENDS BOOTLEGGERS TO JAIL IN DRY LAW DRIVE. Charlotte, Feb. 25.—Evidence that Judge Clement Smith does not intend to tolerate the widespread infraction of the prohibition laws is shown by the sentences he has passed out recently, three offenders being given straight jail sentences without the option of paying a fine. Orville Prosser and Clarence Arnold, both of Grand Ledge, were each sentenced to 60 days in the county jail. Howard Gould, charged with transporting liquor from Detroit in his Ford roadster was given 50 days in the Charlotte jail and his car was confiscated.—Grand Rapids Press.

Made Paradise for Birds. A naturalist is the last person in the world one would expect to succeed as a farmer. They won't plow a field if a bird has made its nest there. John J. Audubon, greatest nature student of his day, bought 40 acres at Carmanville, on the Hudson, to do some farming. The best part of his property was fenced in for deer, elk, and wolves. His orchard, 200 trees of apples, pears, plums, apricots, and nectarines, was left as a paradise for birds—it was Audubon's study. However he had no scruples against fishing, and caught 200-pound sturgeon in the Hudson.

Life's Darkest Moment. I came running home and told my wife I had a date with the prettiest girl in school. She said I could not go until I wore long trousers. After supper I decided I would slip off and go. So I went to my room, dressed in the dark and bent it. Just as I stepped in the door at the house of the girl, I looked down to see what kind of a job I had done to my shoes in the dark. But no sooner had I looked than I backed out of the door. For my aunt had sewed white trousers on the bottom of my short trousers.—Chicago Journal.

LOWELL ADVERTISERS ATTENTION. Work on this paper starts Monday morning. Advertising copy should begin coming in then, and all be in not later than Tuesday afternoon. It is impossible, even with a good force to put all the matter, particularly large ads, in the last day before the paper goes to press. This has been our necessary rule for many years and must be observed if service is desired. Late comers are often disappointed, but not half so much so as the publisher. Please be reasonable. Send your copy Monday morning and get it in early and we will do our best for you. If unusually large space is desired, notify us at once so we can make plans accordingly. Publisher Ledger.
