Signs of Success

It is said that early in life success expands the hat-band. Later in life it usually expands the waist-band. Possibly so.

But these are not the only signs of success. There is the comfortable feeling that provision is made for old age, that the comforts of life may be had, that children may be educated, that you may travel occasionally. It's fine. Who will succeed? Only those who lay a careful foundation by forming a saving habit and keep their funds in a safe bank like ours.

Harding Memorial Service is Held

HONORS TO LATE PRESIDENT BY ATTORNEY SHIVEL. PASTOR LAUDS CHRISTIAN CHIEFS

A memorial service in honor of the late President Warren G. Harding was held at the City hall Sunday evening, August 5.

On account of the brief and insufficient notice, the attendance was not what it should have been; but those present were well repaid.

Orrin Shivel, Mrs. Harry Kinsley, Mrs. Clarence Speaker and Mr. Mesmes, sang "Lead, Kindly Light" with R. D. Stocking at the piano; and a prayer was offered by Rev. E. R. Cochran; after which Attorney R. M. Shivel gave the following address:

Harding—The President
 The news of the death of President Harding brought a shock to the nation and a chill to the heart of every citizen. It was the people's tragedy. In a sense the death of any President is a tragedy, regardless of his politics or partisanship. In this instance, just as the nation breathed confidently and gladly again in the announcement of his recuperation, Warren G. Harding was called by the Great Power, which to some is fate, but to himself was never another but God.

He sacrificed his life for his country. It is a melancholy fact that the President of the United States carries a burden few men can sustain and live. Woodrow Wilson said in his book on Constitutional Government, "Men of ordinary physique and discretion cannot be president and live, if the strain be not somehow relieved." Mr. Wilson, now an invalid, who during his occupancy of the White House approached very closely the Valley of Death, himself verifies the wisdom of his writings. The death of President Harding, worn out in executive service, is a further evidence of this truth.

I am asked to say a few words on the subject—"Harding, The President." There can be no doubt but that no president ever came to office in peace time facing problems more complex than his nature or greater in number. International affairs were unbalanced as never before. Many principal settlements of the great war were still to be effected. At home reconstruction and reconstruction had only just begun—business was depressed—agriculture prostrate—and unemployment was general.

He came to the presidency with an open mind, a desire for council, and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government acquired in the senate.

He brought to the presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men, which enabled him to handle the problems of government without the stress and worry which has handicapped many of his predecessors. He was the type of man needed for the high position at such a time.

Preaching upon every occasion the doctrine of "Americanism," he set his face resolutely against "entangling alliances" of any nature. And yet he lent the moral assistance of this government in efforts to bind up the wounds of the world. In this direction his chief contribution was the Washington Arms conference at which the principal powers covenanted to limit the size of their armaments.

He was the world's greatest exponent of peace. By his conservative statesmanship, he kept his country from misunderstandings of every character abroad. His constant aim was reconstruction and peace.

Partisanship and politics have no place in this service. We must pass without comment his great administrative triumphs, namely—The Washington Arms conference, the establishment of the New Budget System, the Prohibition question, the Esch-Cummings law, the Fordney-McCumber law, his plan for the adherence of the United States to the World Court. With these he will be credited and they will forever stand beside his name in history.

Death clarifies vision and brushes aside the veil of partisanship and passion. Upon his death this country discovered that it was putting a great and confident trust in this quiet, earnest and dependable pilot who held the ship of State steadily upon its course during the storm. The nation discovered an abiding love in his heart for a high servant, who gave his magnificent integrity to uncompromising public service.

It can rightly be said that here was an ideal Christian patriot, who served uncertain times with a calm and courageous wisdom and efficiency which made the country safer and surer in its destiny. Here was a noble, sturdy President, who deserved the high regard which will be his universal epitaph.

Warren G. Harding was a sincere Christian man. Nothing could have been more beautifully appropriate than his last public words, sent on the afternoon of his death, to his fraternal brethren, a simple message showing his sincere faith in his God. It was a plea for "more of devotion to Christ's simplest teachings" more allegiance to the great Redeemer "whose word is law."

The Nation sorrows at the death of this man. It is fitting and proper that we hold this memorial as a tribute to his life and public service. But the realities of life demand of the country that it shall "carry on" no matter what emergency befalls the way. We must rise with a sincerity of sorrow that is eloquent beyond words at the bier of Warren G. Harding, who was as true a friend to this Democracy ever had. But the Republic lives and must proceed.

We have a new President. We believe and trust that the reins of government have fallen into competent and trustworthy hands. We add our prayers for his safe and conservative leadership of the American people.

No The Ledger Has Not Been Sold

Rumors generally circulated about town during the past two weeks that The Ledger had been sold were founded on nothing more substantial than the wish-bone of the prospective buyer, who proved to have more wind than money.

While the editor has been advised that his health would benefit by a change of business, we have no disposition to sacrifice the business—not yet.

We expect to be here a long time yet and business entrusted to us will be ably accepted and taken care of as usual.

While these rumors—considering the outcome—were matters of regret to us, they brought out some unlooked for testimonials of appreciation, which will be prized. Even some whose business we have fought in years past, have given us a good word. Guess they know it was the business and not them we were after; and that was true.

Chauncey Townsend Old Resident Gone

Chauncey Townsend, an old resident of Lowell and vicinity, died Tuesday evening at 10:30 at the home of his son Dan in this village at the age of 73 years, following a stroke of paralysis several weeks ago.

Funeral services will be held this Thursday afternoon at 1:30 at the home, Rev. E. R. Cochran officiating; burial at Oakwood cemetery beside his late companion, who preceded him to the eternal life fourteen years ago.

Mr. Townsend formed a wide acquaintance among Lowell young people as janitor of the old Central school, where he was much esteemed for his good nature, joviality and his great love of flowers, which grew for him in great profusion on the school grounds.

Mr. Townsend was born in Savannah township, Seneca county, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1850. Married Roxie Shear Nov. 7, 1878. They came to Lowell 38 years ago and this has since been his home, except for seven years of employment in Grand Rapids. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. David Wilcox of Hastings, son Dan of Lowell and three grandchildren.

Ready To Lay Roofing

It saves you time and money to build new buildings or re-roof old buildings with our Ready-to-Lay Roofing.

Do not be deceived by the price. Many will quote you attractive price and tell you of the number of ply or the weight of the roll, neither of which are any criterion of worth. The fact is you can be easily deceived, in fact, we could have sold thousands of rolls of it. The main factor is the manufacturer making the article. We have been selling Watson's Roofings continually for 15 years and know that it is good. Costs more but is cheaper in the end.

Heavy Gravel Roofing at $3.25 per roll. We also have Barron's Heavy Roll Roofing that we sell at $2.75

Chautauqua August 21-25

FIVE GREAT DAYS OF ENTERTAINMENT, MUSIC AND INSPIRATION

Our or your Chautauqua that is the question.

Service and entertainment are today the leading demands of the great majority of people. There is little dissatisfaction in regard to the "price" when these demands are met. However it is little wonder that the door bell is not always answered when salesmen and saleswomen, agents, peddlers, and most every money-getting device so keenly appreciate the demand of the American people and seem to attempt to bring service to your door so persistently and continuously.

However, the Redpath Chautauqua, which is coming to Lowell for 5 days beginning August 21, is an entirely different proposition.

"Do you get service?" Yes, because it is your Chautauqua, brought to you town and to your door at the most appropriate time of year. How? Through the interest and financial backing of a number of public spirited business and professional men of Lowell. The only compensation of this committee for its efforts in advertising, promoting and selling tickets will be the satisfaction of experiencing a successful Chautauqua in Lowell such as is successful in the majority of other community centers in our country.

Do you get entertainment? Yes, and much besides, for further than just mere entertainment you have the pleasure of seeing and listening to some of the most talented musicians, observing and studying good actors in good plays and carrying away worthwhile thoughts from the lectures of recognized platform leaders in the public mind of today, and the advancement of American civilization. Besides entertainment and real useful enjoyment you have the pleasure of meeting together with your friends and neighbors and making new acquaintances for so very temporary, simple entertainment.

The Redpath Chautauqua has been tried out and has stood the test of years in the same localities. It is an annual affair and is depended upon in many cities. It is different in this respect from the dog and pony show or the tiger and elephant show which usually do not make a return trip. A Chautauqua is bringing some of the very best talent to you rather than you paying many times the price of admission just to get to the larger cities where no better attractions are put on.

Is it worth the money? This seems sometimes to be the big question and it is worthy of consideration. All that is necessary is to call to your mind the many other ways you spend your money. You pay dearly for service and often times for very temporary, simple entertainment.

The Redpath Chautauqua has been tried out and has stood the test of years in the same localities. It is an annual affair and is depended upon in many cities. It is different in this respect from the dog and pony show or the tiger and elephant show which usually do not make a return trip. A Chautauqua is bringing some of the very best talent to you rather than you paying many times the price of admission just to get to the larger cities where no better attractions are put on.

Is it not your Chautauqua, brought directly to you and your family, offering you real service, providing you with real entertainment, giving you useful enjoyment, all sold to you at a very comparatively reasonable cost?

Soon members of the active committee will be along to ask you to buy season tickets. Think it over. Remember that these people are giving their time and energy, taking the occasional cold shoulder and sometimes indifference, for one reason only; that of community advancement.

The season ticket plan is the most economical even if you attend only half of the programs. Prices: adults, $2.50; children under 12, $1.25. These tickets are non-transferable except in the owner's immediate family.

Alexander the Great

One of the greatest masterpieces of ancient art is the sarcophagus of Alexander the Great. It was discovered in 1868 by men who were excavating near Sidon. It is constructed from a pure white block of Parian marble, almost four feet long, five and three-fourths feet wide and four and two-thirds feet high, and is ornamented by a lid nearly three feet high. The relief sculpture on the front represents a victory of Alexander.

White Family Loses Loved Son, Russel

Russell White, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. White, died at Blodgett hospital Sunday morning of anaemia at the age of 13 years, lacking one month of his fourteenth birthday. Funeral services were held at his late parental home Tuesday afternoon, his pastor Rev. E. R. Cochran officiating; burial at Oakwood cemetery.

Russel was born in Lowell September 9, 1910, and spent all his young life here. He was a member of the Congregational church, Knights of the Round Table and the Boy Scouts and a student of the Lowell schools. The affectionate regard in which he was held by his friends, young and old, was amply evidenced by the profusion of floral tributes and the mute sympathy shown the bereaved family by the large attendance at the funeral.

This brief chronicle would not be complete without mention of the willing sacrifice of Gerald White in attempt to save his young brother by transfusion of blood; nor that Dr. and Mrs. White were not prepared by a long illness for the loss of their loved child, but that they became aware of his serious condition only the day before his death.

"Oh! what a shadow o'er the hearts is flung,
When peals the requiem of the loved and young!"

BOYS' CAMP AT BARLOW LAKE

A full program of sports, games, campfire talks, etc., is arranged. This offers a fine opportunity for the county boys to get acquainted with each other; to form new friendships and to have a jolly good time. The outing is for boys of from twelve to fourteen years of age. Those wishing to go from this community should make their applications promptly to R. J. MacVean, Lowell, or F. J. ### HARDING MEMORIAL SERVICE

Rev. E. R. Cochran followed with an address which, in absence of any set topic, we will call "Lessons of the Hour." He deprecated the small attendance and thought it did not speak well for the patriotic sentiment of the community. [The true explanation is given at the outset of this report. Ed.]

The speaker dwelt eloquently on the idea that the Almighty has always had leaders for this nation. That its presidents and the six vice presidents who have come to the presidency through the deaths of their predecessors have almost without exception been Christian Americans. To be an American is in itself a great honor and privilege; but to be a Christian American is the height of human achievement and most of our presidents have been re-on of that stamp. He mentioned the rough and profane-spoken Jackson as a man at heart of fine Christian sentiments and of rugged faith in God. And from the list of vice president who had risen acceptably to assume the unexpected burdens he "would not even except Johnson."

Of President Harding, fittingly spoken of by Mr. Shivel, he would not speak of his greatness, but rather of his goodness and his Christian character and of the fact that his successor, President Coolidge, is a man of similar type, under whose leadership the nation will be safe.
