LOCAL INDUS- TRIES PRAISED

MICHIGAN'S LARGEST COMMERCIAL POULTRY FARM OPERATOR COMPLIMENTS LOWELL CONCERN.

Doctor C. M. Sigler, of Manistee, Michigan, owner and operator of the Indian River Poultry Farm, the largest commercial egg farm in the Upper Peninsula and the most modern poultry plant in the entire state, is the guest of E. C. Foreman, proprietor of the Foreman Chick Hatchery, Lowell's most recent industry.

Doctor Sigler's large commercial egg farm carries at present housing accommodations for 2,500 layers and brooding equipment for 3,000 chicks. Further expansion is planned this year, which will include large breeding flocks, all of which will come from Lowell, the product of our best local flocks that carry the blood lines of some of the highest record hens in the country.

Doctor Sigler has placed check orders aggregating more than 10,000 for Spring delivery.

It will be interesting to know that every pound of chick starting, growing and laying mash used on the Sigler Poultry Farm has been shipped from the King Milling company, although Manistee is some 400 miles away. King Poultry Feeds are used extensively on the Indian River Poultry Farm.

Doctor Sigler has demonstrated the possibilities of commercial poultry raising and attributes his success to following the most approved poultry practices of proper housing, feeding and high egg production records. Incidentally the Doctor is one of the most enthusiastic poultry men in the state and it requires enthusiasm and ambition to be successful in any line of endeavor.

Doctor Sigler attended the Board of Trade meeting on Monday at Keene Grand Hall and stated the dinner was one of the very best he had ever eaten. The Doctor was called upon for a few remarks and made a fine report of Upper Peninsula life. He stated they are expecting 200,000 tourists this season.

"Five Brigade" a Truly Great Production

A great love story told against a thrilling fire background at the Strand, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

"The Fire Brigade" brings back to the screen the Charles Ray every one loves in a role that lifts him to new heights. Not only did Ray need such a part to establish him again in his rightful place, but the part needed Ray for its interpretation. The actor and the role seemed to be created for each other. Ray plays the part of Terry O'Snell, a young fireman, who finds himself tangled in a net of love, politics and duty, and the denouement comes in one of the most thrilling climaxes ever seen on the screen.

May McAvoy is seen in the leading feminine role opposite Ray, and plays the part with a sincerity that adds immeasurably to her historic rank. This actress is growing in dramatic stature into a brilliant artist with each succeeding picture.

An excellent performance is given by Holmes Herbert as James Corwin, and Tim O'Brien, remembered for his work in "The Big Parade" has another interesting character part. Eugene Bessner, as the mother of Ray, contributes an excellent bit of emotional acting.
