Booster for Building of Unity Bridge

M. Johnson, Editor, Lowell, Ledger, Lowell, Michigan-

I am greatly interested in the proposed Unity bridge across Flat river. I believe it is one of the nost needed improvements in Lowell today

At the present time, the Lowell school district is paying $300.00 yearly for transporting the Kindergarten children from the West side to the Central school building. If a foot bridge were built, the school district would be saved this amount

I will be glad to subscribe to fund to build this bridge. Very truly yours,

Petrarch as Scholar,

Among World's Great

Francisco Petrarch, a leading fig-ure in the revival of learning in Eu-rope, was in greatness inferior only to Dante. His greatness belongs to a history of literature rather than to a story of human progress. He lived before the invention of printing, being born in 1304 and dy-ing in 1374. He was a great and an original scholar, the first scholar to collect an important library, and an original scholar, the first scholar to collect an important library, and the first scholar of medieval times to write of ancient Greece and Rome as if they were times when men were actually alive and not as if they were museum exhibits.

retrarch wakened his age to the importance of scholarship. He did more than any other man to pre-pare Italy for that glorious age known as the Renaissance. Living in an age that saw medical rating in an age that saw medical valism nearing its close and mod-ern times beginning. Petrarch looked back toward the past and forward to the future. He was both medieval and modern by turns.— Kansas City Star.

Effects of Rare Air

Attention has been called to some of the curious effects of rarefied and condensed air upon human respiration. On high mountains, it appears, some persons experienced distressing "shortness of breath," one result of which is that they are unable to which is that they are one result of which is that they are unable to whistle. Precisely the same effect is sometimes produced by condensed air in caissons and diving bells. Laborers working in compressed air frequently find, however, that their powers of exertion are increased as long as the atmosphere's pressure is not more than double that of ordinary air; but beyond that point unpleasant effects are experienced after the effects are experienced after the men have left the working shafts and returned into the open air. On the other hand, high atmospheric pressure in the case of persons not doing manual labor has been found to act as a mental stimulus, increas-ing the desire to talk.

Coelebs' London It must be confessed, however, as I have since found, that for giving a tersenes and a polish to conver sation; for rubbing out prejudices; for correcting egotism; for keeping self-importance out of sight, if not caring for it; for bringing a man to condense what he has to say, if he intends to be listened to; for accustoming him to endure opposition for teaching him to think every man who differs from him in matters of taste a fool, and in politics a knave; for cutting down harrangues; for for cutting down harrangues; for guarding him from producing as novelties and inventions what has been said a thousand times; for quickness of allusion, which brings the idea before you without detail or quotation; nothing is equal to the Miscellaneous society of Lon-don.—Hannah Moore in "Coelebs in Search of a Wife."

Important Omissions The mayor of a French town had, in accordance with the regulations to make out a passport for a rich and highly respected lady of his ac-quaintance, who in spite of a slight disfigurement, was very vain of her personal appearance. His native politeness prompted him to gloss over a defect, and after a moment's reflection he wrote among the items of personal description;

"Eyes dark, beautiful, tender, expressive, but one of them missing."

King Alfred's Candles

King Alfred's Candles

King Alfred, feeling the need of conserving his time, used candles made with rings and beits of different breadths and colors, according to an old legend. When the candle had burned down to the respective marks he knew he had been employed long enough at whatever business he was engaged in. As the wind or drafts often produced serious irregularities in the time, of burning, the king contrived special lanterns for great accuracy.

Woman Is Not Weaker

Sex by Nature's Law

Woman is not the weaker but the stronger, more vigorous sex. She lives longer and can endure more. More boys are born than girls, yet an adult census shows more women than men. This holds good, so far as is known, throughout the human race. We deliberately coddle women and make it practically impossible for them to be as rugged as boys;

for them to be as rugged as boys; they actually become the weaker sex; and then we call them the weaker sex. But nothing that we can find in higher animals or in the human race gives us grounds for inferring that the female is naturally weaker or inferior. On the contrary, the fact that nature put the larger burden on her is evidence that nature fitted her to bear it.—George A. Dorsey in Cosmopolitan.

Gratitude to Saints Votive offerings are still a popular way of expressing gratitude, as the exhibition at Naples shows. The ancients and the early Christians make use of this custom, not only in sign of thanksgiving, but as a preventive measure, Pierre Van ventive measure, Pierre Van Paasen writes, in the Atlanta Constitution. In cases of illness they would make haste to deposit a model of the injured limb or organ in the church in full faith of obtaining a cure. As time went on the church forbade this as sayoring of magic, and only officially admit-ted to the altar thank offerings for grace received. Yet to this day, in the neighborhood of Naples, moth-ers weigh their children and offer the same amount of wax to the vir-gin or their patron saint to keep the little ones from dwindling away. In southern Italy plague, pestilence, and famine, battle and murder and sudden death, tempests, earthquakes and thunderbolts are all, in popular belief, under control of some one special saint who has power to relieve sufferings from evil influ-ences. Thus St, Nicholas and St. Anthony protect the cattle; St. Paul cures snake bite; St. Ercolano strengthens the legs; St. Domino cures hydroprobla; St. Catherine, St. Raphael and St. Pasquale are fervently invoked when girls want Overcome Grave Ills Not an individual living is absolutely free from handleaps. Some of us are physically disabled, others of us are physically disabled, others are mentally harassed, hundreds suffer both, writes Louis E. Bisch in the American Magazine. We struggle with deformity; we fight disease; we wrestle with doubts, feelings of inferiority, oversensitiveness, uncontrollable temper, all sorts of distressing disabilities. Even the greatest among us are handicapped like that. Every human being is prevented somehow man being is prevented somehow from fulfilling his highest destiny

Many of our greatest men were handleapped by disease, and some-how surmounted it. Milton and Handel were blind. Beethoven was deaf and Keats had tuberculosis. Pope was deformed. Caesar suf-fered from epilepsy. Lamb and his sister were subject to repeated at-tacks of insanity. Fielding wrote his rollicking book, "Tom Jones," ms rollicking book, "form Jones," while melancholy. Florence Night-ingale did some of her best execu-tive work while bedridden. The list, Indeed, is a long one. These people achieved in spite of a hard-ship.

Suburban Homecoming

Those interested in changing cus-toms and manners may have noted that the busy housewife in subur-ban regions does not now wait to greet her squire at the door of their home on his return from daily la-hors. Instead she hops into her car and meets him at the railroad station, taking the children with her. They "climb his knee the envied kiss to share" on the plat-form of the station or in the au-tomobile. Even the does and della tomobile. Even the dogs and dolls are included in the welcoming

Hospital in Lonely Spot

What is probably the lonellest hospital is on the Victoria river and serves the vast cattle raising dis-trict of northern Australia. The nearest railway and post office is 80 miles away, and it is 400 miles to the nearest doctor, dentist or druggist. Mall for the nurses sta-tioned there arrives every six weeks and supplies are brought in once a year. There virtually is no road to the institution, and it requires teams of 40 mules each to haul these supplies for the last 80 miles. Hardy's Roving Eye

Hardy's Roving Eye

Thomas Hardy's delight in observation never failed; he had the roving eye as well as the "musing eye." No monolith could pass without visions of the Homan Legionnaires. The famous description of Egdon Heath may seem in memory but a somber and boding landscape; return to it and, mingled with the scenery, you will find interesting facts drawn from Doomsday Book and the antiquary Leland which at once exhibit Hardy darting curiously from shelf to shelf.—

J. C. Squire in the Observer.

Powerful Stimulant

The coca plant of South America is a shrub with small, light green leaves which have a somewhat bitter taste. The natives powder these leaves and mix them with lime to form what they call "ypade."

The stuff is chewed and is an amazing stimulant. With a supply of this in a pouch, the South American Indian will walk for two overent three days on end without food. even three days on end without food. Ice to Blanket Earth

Prof. W. Meindardus of the Uni-versity of Jottingen has estimated the extent of the Ice in Antarctica a 28,000,000,000,000,000 cubic yards at 23,000,000,000,000,000 cubic yarus of lee, weighing about 20 quadril-lion tons. There is enough lee there he says, to cover all Europe to a depth of 6,500 (set, or do blanket the whole earth under a layer between 120 and 130 feet

Rule of Journalese

I cull (that seems the right word) he following flower of polite speech from a conservative news paper: "Peer's son married to ho tel assistant." Human Failing

The general cry is against in gratitude, but surely the complaint is misplaced. It should be against vanity. None but direct viliains are capable of willfut ingratitude, but, almost everybody is capable of thinking he hath done more than another deserves, while the other thinks he hath received less than he deserves.—Alexander Pope.

struction of modern weapons of warfare and the high explosives used in them would naturally suppose a cannon made of wood would be of little or no value as a weapon. But wooden cannon have been used with considerable success in revolutionary movements in Cuba, Haltiand the Dominican republic.

The wood used in the construction of these crude weapons was a very tough variety, having a twisted grain that curled about the log in such a way that to split the timber with ordinary means was almost impossible. The best trees were selected and a piece of the log five or six feet in length and about one foot in diameter was cut. After the bark had been removed and the log made perfectly round it was swung up on a crude truss and a hole was burned into it from one end. The log was wound with strips of rawhide. When the cannon was covered with the strips of hide, another layer was wound on, and this was continued until the weapon had increased several inches in diameter.

After the log was covered and the bore was finished, the weapon was treated to a hot draft, which tended to contract the hide binding. ley home.

The hotel was much frequentied by commercial travelers, who thought they had found a good target for their humor in a clergyman who booked a room there. Day in and day out, at table and in the lounge, he received all their jests with irritating indifference.

"I wonder you stand those youngsters so well," sald an older man, after a particularly foolish joke at the dinner table. "Don't you hear what they say?"

such meals, (we have never eaten better)—the Consumers Power tour to the Au Sable river dams was in order. The power company had graciously provided two of their in-structors, W. E. Jacobs and G. L. Jonsen to conduct the party comp of 12 cars along the scenic river.

Foote, Cooke and Five Channels dams were visited. No finer scenery can one imagine than the dune coun try of the Au Sable where mountains of white sand, green forests and a mighty harnessed river blend into one picture. And what a picture! Words cannot adequately describe the Au Sable. Winding through high hills which are rapidly being reforested the great tumbling river has been made into a series of beautiful lakes.

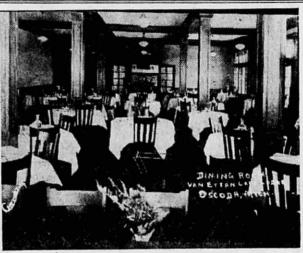

It is 105 miles by river from the first dam at Mio to the last one known as Foote. The Mio dam has a 25 foot head and its back waters cover 700 acres; Alcona is 50 miles downstream, forms a thousand acre ake and a 50 foot head; Loud is 19 niles below and its 28 foothead backs which they displayed and the enjoyriver over 600 acres; Five Channels is a brief 3½ miles away, its lake covering 550 acres; Cooke has a 1900 acre pond, 42 foot head and is 16 miles by river from Five Channels; Foote is naturally the "lower end." no matter how it is spell-ed. It forms a 1000 acre body of water and has a 32 foot head.

The theoretical head for all the dams from Mio to Foote would be 378.6 feet and the working capacity is little short of that for the dams. Here, a brief step from the jack pine plains and bisecting them, is one of plains and bisecting them, is one of the greatest power units in the state. LAST LIFT OF AMERICAN MAIN TOWER, 383 FEET HIGH

THE WORLD LINKING DETROIT AND THE CANADIAN BORDER CITIES

To the People of the Commonwealths of Canada and the United States--in Particular to the Citizens of the State of Michigan and the Province of Ontario

HE New Ambassador International Bridge across the Detroit River will be open for traffic in mid-summer of 1929. So many people (individuals and corpora-tions) have asked the question, "when will the new bridge be ready?"—that it has been con-sidered policy to publish from time to time a summary of the progress being achieved-an abridgment of the bridge. As most of the inquiries have come from firms and various enterprises planning to use the new bridge in the daily transaction of their business, this data is released July 11, 1928.

At the present rate of progress, the Ambassador International Bridge will be open to traffic in the mid-summer of 1929.

The mild and open winter permitted unexpected progress in constructing the foundations for the steel towers and anchorages. Now that the work below ground is completed it is possible to schedule with confidence the time required for the remaining steps in construction, based on the experience with other large suspension bridges recently constructed.

The anchorage for the cables on both sides of the river are made of solid masses of concrete equal in height to a twenty-two story building, of which the equivalent of fourteen stories will be below ground and eight above. On the American side the anchorage is located at West Jefferson Avenue and 21st Street in Detroit. On the Canadian side, at London and Huron Line Road in Sandwich.

The massive steel tower on the American side is now complete. The Canadian tower will be completed July 20th. These towers extend to a height of 383 feet above the Detroit River and may be compared in height with the new Buhl Building.

The preparatory work for weaving the large suspension cables will start the first part of August, at which time eight temporary cables will be stretched from anchorage to anchorage and over the tops of the steel towers. Foot bridges will be built on these temporary cables and the work of constructing the large cables, consisting of stretching over 14,000 single wires from anchorage to anchorage, will be done from the foot bridge cables.

All of the property for the project, including that required for the approaches and terminals on both sides of the river, has been ac-

Both the Canadian and American Governments have approved the general arrangements for the inspection by Customs and Immigration Officers. To meet these requirements it was necessary to provide an area of about seven acres on the American side and more than eight acres on the Canadian side. On the Detroit side all the land between Howard, Porter, 21st and 22nd Streets was necessarily acquired for this purpose. On the Canadian side a strip one-half block wide, extending along Patrilia Road from Wyandotte to Walnut Streets, together with more than the equivalent of a city block area between Patricia and Hufon Church Line Roads, has been acquired in the Town of Sandwich.

THE TERMINAL spaces required by the Governments on each side of the River may appear unduly large, but a detailed study of the needs proved the necessity of providing room for Administration Buildings for Bridge Officers, Customs and Immigration Officers, for Warehouses, Excise Buildings and thirteen inspection "islands" at both ends of the bridge. Here traffic in twenty-six lanes may be examined simultaneously.

TOLLS—These necessarily can only be definitely established contemporaneo usly with the opening of the bridge for public traffic, but it is our leasure to announce that in no event will single trip tickets for other than commercial vehicles be in excess of fifty cents (50c) including driver and five cents (5c) for each additional passenger.

The maximum rates for busses and com-mercial vehicles of sarious weights will be announced later.

Commutation tickets will be sold, and it is contemplated that commutation rates will be substantially lower than the rate to be estab-lished for single trop tickets.

More than fifty years of the white man's effort to bridge this stream are culminating now in the building of this bridge.

The second is scheduled for publiction a week from today and others will appear during the remainder of July and the first part of August.

The series is being published in more than 250 newspapers throughout Michigan. According to O. W. Slocum, manager in this area for the Michigan Bell company, it is felt that no part of the continent offers so many advantages to the tourist and vacationist as does Michigan, with its excellent highways, myriad lakes and rivers, vast stretches of forests, hundreds of miles of coast line, unequalled opportunity for Summer sports, its well equipped camp sites and its hotels, and its wonderful climate.

The first announcement is illusand its notes, and its wonderful climate.

The first announcement is illustrated with an outline map of the Upper Peninsula, popularly known as Cloverland, showing the principal cities. Following announcements will carry similar maps advertising sections of the Lower Peninsula. The announcements also show long distance telephone rates to the principal cities in the section advertised, from each city in which the advertisement is published.

This advertising, Mr. Slocum says, is in line with other activity conducted by the Michigan Bell Company designed to create a better nowledge of the state and its cities.

Wrong Beliefs About Exercise and Heart

The old belief that the heart in-The old belief that the heart increased in size according to the increased amount of work it is called upon to perform is a myth, Dr. Mathias J. Gerald Anderson, of Harris Creek,

If an athlete's heart increases in size it is not because of the exercise he has performed, but because there was something fundamentally wrong with it to begin with, Doctor Seifert declares.

"It is now found," he says, "that the predisposition of the heart to enlargement is the result of infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, pneumonia, rheumatism and too strenuous exercise in youth, as well as to physic traumas.

It is the "garrote," instrument of death, which greatly resembles an old picture of an Inquisition machine of torture. For many years the garrote served the Spaniards, dealing death to Cuban rebels. Since the expulsion of the Old world rulers it has been used at the Havana penitentiary as the official instrument of execution.

No place but in Cuba is the garrote used officially in executions. A prisoner operates the beheading device and gets money and a time decrease in compensation for his services.

The Largest Dials

The art of the clockmaker has achieved many remarkable tri-umphs. Sometimes it is a clock wonderful for the complexity of its movements and its busy population of automatons that attracts our admiration, like that in the Cathedral of Strassburg: at other times the miration, like that in the Cathedral of Strassburg; at other times the immense size of the machinery and the dials excites astonishment. This is the case with the celebrated clock in the Church of St. Rombant at Mechlin. This clock is believed to possess the largest dials that exist in the world. There are four of them, one on each side of the great square tower, and their extreme diameter is nearly 37½ feet. The figures showing the hours are nearly 6½ feet high and the hands have a length of nearly 12 feet.

On Molding Character

On Molding Character

Now, it is better than nothing for a bad man to have one virtuous impulse; it is better than nothing for a man in a rocky field to find one place where there is soil and where a handful of corn will grow and wave like the trees of Lebanon; it is a glorious thing for a man to know that there is something in the world besides himself, and that he is not omnipotent, omniscient, or omnipresent; it is a good thing for a man once in his life to feel little, and to, know himself as he is; but how much better it would be if he could fix the vision and turn it into character!

—Henry Ward Beecher.

"Cake" Talk

"Cake" Talk

Triumph as the cake is of all our callinary art, we crown success by saying "that cake takes the cake." The height of a salesman's achievement is to have some article "go like hot cakes." We demand with Tennyson, "Have I not earn'd my cake in baking of it?" and we admit failure in the words of Shakespeare: "My cake is dough." We commiserate ourselves, that "life is not all cakes and ale," and we have sadly known since John Heywood published his first collection of English colloquial sayings in 1562 that "you cannot both eat your cake and have your cake!"

Hairy Elephants

Historians tell us that, in prehistoric times, mighty mastodons and mammoths were covered from head to tail with a very coarse hair which, in many cases, grew long. So the elephant's forefathers had long hair, but as the world changed with regard to weather conditions, from regard to weather conditions, from the bitter frosty glaciers that were encountered to the modern climate encountered to the modern climate of extreme heat and cold, the ele-phant gradually doffed his overcoat. The hair sometimes seen on the top-of his head alone remains as a re-minder.

"I Swan"

The swan is a good example of the survival of an idea. We do not know what this beautiful creature meant to its worshipers, but that it was sacred is unquestionable, writes Louis Driscoll in the Yale Review.

writes Louis Driscoll in the Yale Review.

Men took oaths on it from time unrecorded down into the Middle ages. As late at 1304 Edward I of England on his investiture as a knight, swore a Christian oath on two swans that were brought to him in a golden net. The Yankee-ejaculation "I swan!" is not inelegant. It is used in complete original of its original form, "I swent by the swan."

"Bachelor" in History

"Bachelor" in History
The term "bachelor" was first used in connection with the prelim linary stage of knighthood. A bachelor knight was one who had not yet raised his standard in the field of chivalry. It was therefore used to indicate the acquirement of the first degrees in the liberal arts or sciences, the masters' or doctors' degree indicating those who had attained a higher degree of proficiency through experience.

Out of the great quantities of fish waste and scrap, formerly discard ed as useless, an industry is developing. Many countries now utilize this waste for manufacturing fish meal and fertilizer. Fish meal is used as food for hogs and cat the. The United States leads in its production, followed by Norway Japan and Great Britain.

To Make Men Think

I'd rather touch their hearts with sentiment Than govern all the peoples in creation
And try by force to quell their discontent.

To make men think and, thinking, reach decisions That lift them from the dust toward better things-Here surely is a program whose provisions Outweigh the might of presidents and kings!

If I can stimulate a man's emotions And so appeal to natural desire,

Then can I sway his thoughts and his devotions Or thrill his very soul with ardent fire.

If I can make men think-if I may guide them Along the only way to happiness—

If, as their friend, I walk and talk beside them,

The fellow with her had been my boon companion. His powdered wig and beruffled shirt, his knee-breeches, gold buckles and silken hose put my travel-stained garb to shape and the shape hose put my travel-stained garb to shame, and I was for turning back to the gate. But I saw a hint of amusement in their curious glances; and, conquering my weak-ness, I swept off my ragged fur-hat with an almost forgotten grace and called myself more vividly to their attention. Busby stared haughtily, as if I were some freakish creature from the un-known wilds. The girl frowned in perplexity; then she recognized me despite my forest dress, and exclaimed:

Dodge Brothers Standard Six is the fastest car, with the fastest pick-up, under a thousand dollars.

That is only HALF the story. The IMPORTANT point is that this exceptional speed is made practical by Dodge ruggedness of chassis and body OTHERS

AND

Might succeed in building a car at this price with equal SPEED, but to do so successfully they would also have to build a car with equal STURDINESS.

That is where Dodge Brothers, with years of experience in building a dependable low-cost product, are years ahead of the field . . . YOU

Can buy the Standard Six knowing that it is not only the fastest car in its class but the sturdiest—and the one is every bit as important as the other.

The Borgia Poisons Borgias made away with their enemies. One strange thing about these poisons was that they worked in such subtle fashion that even physicians could not state with positiveness that any had been employed. It now seems certain that the Borgias used two poisons, one dissolving slowly and stealing gradually through the system, while the other was a soluble preparation of arsenic, working instantaneously. Both preparations were unquestionably arsenical in composition.

"Lamps of Learning"

in Greece and Rome the dim, smoky lamp made its appearance at a fairly early date. It was a shallow dish, round or oval in shape, with a handle at one end and a spout for the wick at the other. It was made of baked earth or metal and the wick was made of tow or cloth. These lamps, used chiefly by students and teachers, are the traditional lamps of learning to which reference is frequently made.

It would have broken his kind heart could he have known my estrangement from have known my estrangement from my fellows.

It helped me much to find the place deserted. To have seen oth-ers there, where my father kept open house, would have grieved me sorely. I sent my love through the paneled door and passed around to the high gate and looked into the garden. Like the house, it showed the lack of human oc-cupancy. cupancy.

The place was a riot of untrained growth where once orderliness and beauty had graced the winding paths. All that was left to remind me of the golden yesterday was the aroma of the snowy cherry blossoms.

UC passing back and forth of a new population. As I lottered before the Royal George I was crowded and jostled rudely by a great bustling of people.

At Gadsby's across the way-built three years before by Lord Fairfax from English bricks—was the same lively animation. Squads of soldiers in scarlet coats—scarlet for an indian campaign when the forest was all a lush greenwere being maneuvered about the square under the hearse guidance of veteran sergeants. The long rifle I was leaning upon—made by William Heury of Lancaster, soon to be Braddock's armore—was in decided contrast to the Brown Bess carried by the overseas solutilery. Surely this was the finest army England had ever sent across the Atlantic, and most surjely there was nothing at Duquesde to prevent the capture of the French fort.

went the capture of the French fort.

And yet experience was teaching us of the colonies that the English musket was not an effective weapon in the deep woods.

These soldiers of Braddock's, so confident of overrunning the heads of the Ohio, were not taught to aim their weapons, but to point them in the general direction of the enemy and to discharge them in volleys. We of the woods considered every human target we fired at to be a distinct problem; and God knows the target was small enough when consisting of Huron, or any of the Far Indians, or even the French who had campalganed with the red savages.

There was a rattle of wheels. It was General Braddock, riding in the conch he had bought of Governor Sharpe of Maryland.

I barely glimpsed him, a beary stolld man, whose strong visage seemed to lower on the gaping onlookers. Then he was gone, commander in chief of all his maje, ty's forces in North America. He impressed me as being self-willed and self-dependent, and one who would be intolerant of any advice. It was commonly known that he was displeased at the manner in which the campalga was progressing—rather, failing to progress. He capture of Fort Duquesne was not bothering him, but to get his army under way was proving to be a most Irritating problen. reess his indignation."

I worked my way into the taproom of the Royal George and made bold to put a question to a young subaltern. He eyed me haughtily, and then began to admire my leggings and fringed shirt, the nearest he had yet come to Indian life, and in a low voice, so as not to destroy his dignity, began to babble questions. Had I really seen wild Indians? Had I killed any? Was it true the savages cooked and ate all their prisoners? At last I satisfied his greediness and finally learned what I had desired.

Governor Dinwiddle had returned from the Maryland shore and was at the Carlyle house to gether with others of the council. They were holding the last conference before the army marched.

Quitting the Royal George I hastened to conclude my business. The lumbering coach had disappeared by the time I reached the Carlyle house, but the horses of the escort were tethered under the double row of Lombardy poplars and I knew the council was still in ses-and soldiers, and all our men eager to march against the French. God give them safe return!"

Could we have but foreseen the outcome of the next few weeks!

Mistress Josephine made me a little curtsy as a signal for her companion to be moving. Bushy was inclined to shake hands and instinctively obeyed his English blood by starting to do so, then contented himself with a ceremonions bow. The little lady saw everything and with impulsive frankness, which ever characterized her kind heart, she advanced as Bushy fell back.

Seizing my hand for a brief moment she softly murmured:

"We were very young. I did not know. Look out for him on the march."

And with another hurried little curtsy she was walking out of my life, with Busby mumbling and muttering in her small ear—possibly asking to be told what confidences she had imparted to me.

I sliently said farewell to the house of the open hand and turned back to the market-square.

I have said the town was the same; and so it was so far as the yellow, white and red chimners were concerned, for there was the same proportion of slim and fat ones. But it was no playsical aspect alone that the town remained unchanged, for the life of the streets was vastly different. There were cannon along the wharf, and there were cannon hauled up to the post-road. There was a fran-

"The savage may be a formidable enemy to your raw militia, sir, but on the king's regiments and disciplined troops it is impossible that they can make any impression."

I thought of the red-coats, and the flint-locks discharged in blind volleys, and wondered.

Governor Dinwiddle leaned from his chair and scrutinized me closely, smiled slightly, and said:

"General Braddock, I believe I recognize an Alexandrian in the young man waiting to report. Doubtless he brings fresh news."

Braddock turned his heavy gaze on me, frowning slightly at what to him was an untidy and rather atroclous apparel, and nodded for me to speak. I produced a written communication from George Croghan, given me by him the night I stopped at his place on Aughwick creek. It was addressed to Governor Morris and I placed it and and knew the council was still in session.

I was acquainted with the house inside and out, and it had changed none during my absence. Mr Carlyle, a most gracious, kindly man, had permitted us boys to explore it and make it figure prominently in some of our games. Once on a dare from Busby I had climbed out of a dormer-window and crawled among the heavy-shouldered chimneys and was severely lectured by the owner.

I advanced toward the dark door and quickly found a bayonet disputing my approach, with the sentinel growling for me to halt. His sidelong glance at my rifle was fill-favored. My fringed shirt and leggings did not meet with his approval.

"I have news for his excellency, Governor Dinwiddle," I told him. "This is General Braddock's headquarters. Go back to the rad, you woods-rat," he commanded.
"I have news for General Braddock," I persisted.

They called her a soulless gold-digger but.

Do you remember the sensational breach of promise suit, a few years ago, by a humble flower-girl against her young millionaire lover and his wealthy mother? At the trial many ugly charges were hurled at the girl. She was called a "gold-digger," a blackmailer; a shameless creature who loved only money and the luxury money could buy.

But when, in a voice broken by soba, she told her pitiful story, men hardened to sorrow wiped their eyes fastively—women in the court-room wept aloud.

High Buildings Cause One may learn many interesting

One may learn many interesting things about air currents and the way storms develop by watching the movements of pieces of paper or perhaps his hat as it is whirled about the street. A variety of minature wind storms are caused by the high buildings of our cities or the forms of streets which well repay study. the forms of streets which well repay study.

On a hot day, when the air is perfectly quiet, the atmosphere as it becomes heated tends to rise along the sides of rocks or buildings, and if it travels high enough it develops into a strong wind, which descends on the opposite side and plays queer pranks.

which descends on the opposite side and plays queer pranks.

A small whirlwind is often produced by the action of wind against a corner formed by several buildings. As the wind travels down a street, especially a narrow one, it rapidly increases in velocity.

A little will spill into the side streets, but the main stream will flow on, gathering momentum. Observe this wind strike against the side of a high building and notice how it "mushrooms" out on all sides, spillting into many air currents, and trace these until they come to rest, but be sure to hold tightly to your hat in the meantime.

"Life a Universal Force"

Savante August Arrhenius, the noted Swedish chemist and psychist, believes that life is an interstellar element and may be transmitted from one planet to another. According to his conception, life is universally diffused and is constantly emitted from all habitable worlds in the form of spores. These spores traverse space for years, possibly ages. The majority of them are ultimately destroyed by the heat of some blazing star, but some few, he thinks, find a resting place on bodies which have already reached the habitable stage. Life, according to Arrhenius, may also be transmitted from one heavenly body to another by menns of meteors.—Philadelphia Magazine.

Chinese Actors Under Ban
Prof. Edward Thomas Williams in his book, "China Yesterday and Today," says: "The actors theoretically form one of the despised classes in China. Under the old regime they and their descendants for three generations were not allowed to enter the examinations for civil service. They were classed with beggars, barbers, butchers and chair-bearers, who, because of the menial services performed or, in the case of butchers, because they were familiar with the sight of blood, were regarded axunfit to hold office There were always ways of removing the handlcap, however, if one were eager to enter the service, for he could be adopted as a son by some one who was free from the disqualification."

Crows have no fear of toxic gas.
The chemical division of the army at Washington experimented with crows and gas. The crows were gassed but immediately flew high in the air where they escaped the fumes which clung to the earth. During the war pigeous returned to their cages safely when liberated in a gas cloud. This mystery was solved when the birds were seen to rise quickly above the gas. Tests show that crows fly out of gas clouds in much the same manner.
