C., the American Legion, the American Legion Auxiliary and the families of both ladies to a potluck dinner to be served Thursday, Sept. 6, 1928, (regular dinner day of the Corps) in the dining room at the City hall, promptly at the noon hour. Mesdames Shear and Avery are the only two surviving charter members. Others who have belonged twenty-five years and more are as follows: Esther Newcomb, joined in 1886, Alice Campbell, Sarah Pletcher and Mary Rolf in 1898, Sally Flanagan and Sarah McPher son in 1890 and Mary Leslie in 1903. Mrs. Shear has held the office of president seventeen different times and has also acted in capacity of chaplain while Mrs. Avery has held the conductor's chair and others many times. Both ladies have always been regular attendants until the last two years, while ill health, not declining years, has caused Mrs. Shear to become an absentee. It is hoped a good crowd will join with the Corps ladies in the celebration.

Sea Story of the Inland Seas

By Karl W. Detzer

Most interesting of all is the youth born of a French-Canadian mother and a father in whose veins ran the blood of the Vikings. The struggle in his heart between the love of the land and love of the water is complicated by his interest in two girls, one a daughter of the soil, the other of the sea. Here in the little fishing village of Madrid is the strange contrast between two races, Latin and Scandinavian, and the hero, part of both, sometimes fearing each, trudges through disaster and misunderstanding to firm convictions and to splendid achievement.

THE MARKED MAN is a brave tale of flood and storm, hearty and vigorous and invigorating. Humor is in it and fine characterization and much excitement. It was written by a man who knows and loves the Great Lakes as Joseph C. Lincoln knows and loves Cape Cod.

HENRY FORD.

Henry Ford is one of the outstanding mechanical geniuses of the age as well as perhaps the richest man in the world. Every dollar of Henry Ford's fortune has been earned by his own hard work and mechanical ingenuity.

Henry Ford was born in Greenfield, Mich., in 1863. He is one of the most remarkable products of American small town life.

He learned the machinist's trade, and for some time was with the Edison Illuminating Company, where he gained the title of Chief Engineer.

Engineer.

In 1903 he organized the Ford dotor Company, and became the argest manufacturer of automobiles in the world, employing over 200,000 persons and turning out untomobiles a day. The great copularity of the Ford car was due to its quality combined with its low price. The inexpensive auto province.

In 1914 Ford announced a plan of profit-sharing involving distribution of ten to thirty million dollars annually to employes. Ford has been a pioneer in paying good wages to all his help and looking out constantly for their welfare.

Ford maintains corps of social workers to look after his employes and their families, also legal and medical facilities free of charge to employes, and a school for the teaching of the English language. He built the Henry Ford hospital at the cost of $7,500,000.

There is no waste motion at the Ford plant. Everything is done so efficiently that not a minute's time nor a scrap of material is lost.

Ford is a genius as to the big undertakings of life and as to the little details. He is constantly in the public eye. But few know that the world's richest man hails from Nothtrait over the inture of one of our Hurons to arrive with war belts from the lake tribes. If the Huron had arrived last night, as arranged, we would make the old woman much afraid. A big show of belts might shake her out of her cursed partiality to the English.

And after all the Onondaga's as and done need work in dropping. "And lead a red life and forget your white blood! It's unthinkyour white blood! It's unthink-nble." I hotly protested.

Then I sought to reason with her and urged her to start back to meet the army. Allaquippa would give her an escert of Delawares. But the one wild notion of finding happiness away from the rettle-ments filled her small head, and she realled: had done good work in dropping the carrier of belts. I felt much encouraged. Some children came running Some condered came running toward us from between the huts. They were followed by a dozen sui-ien-faced Delawares and some women. Then Allaquippa berself appeared, and walking by her side, she replied:
"I will go on even if I die in the woods. I have talked with Mr.
Falest. He speaks good English. He knows I am a woman and promised he would tell no one. I believe he's an honest man."
"I too know Falest. I believe him to be an honorable man. I will talk with him not to take you to propose, that you are young and still dressed as a man and carry-ing the short rifle of the Frenchgirl. She gave a start of surprise on beholding me, but I made no sign of recognition, and she held Duquesne; that you are young and do not know your own mind," I her tongue.

Queen Allaquippa was withered of face and sharp of features, and very keen of eye. There was discovering the complete of the comp warned her. Her thin face became convulsed wery keen of eye. There was displeasure in her countenance as she gazed on us. She halted, and we did likewise, some ten feet apart. Falert produced a long-stemmed pipe and filled it with a mixture of willow bark and tobacco. Lighting this, he took a few puffs and handed it to a warrior who gave it to Allaquippa.

The woman sachem hesitated,

The woman sachem hesitated,

but her village was small and too close to Duquesne for any needless flouting of the French. She smoked. Falest spoke more for the benefit of the spectators than in a hope of winning over the sachem and used, in my estimation, poor diplomacy. He harshly began:

"Brethren the Delawares: Six months ago Chontio sent you a message, arking you to return to your old home on the Allegheny, but while Onontio has waited long and has been heavy of heart you have not come. Now Onontio fears the road has grown rough and your feet have become soft and tender. He sends you these four strings of wampum to clear away the sharp stones and briers."

He advanced and extended four strings of white wampum which Allaquippa received with open reductance. Her beady eyes glittered malevolently as she met and held the Frenchman's gaze.

"Brethren, I am here to tell you that your father and my master, the king of the French, is coming to visit you and take you under his care. You must not listen to any evil words that you hear, for he will not hurt you. He has something to say to the English, but you are to sit still on your father does to the English, for he will not my day father does to the English, for he will not my day father does to the English, for he will not the fort, but before I could

Round Paw suggested that I follow the path for a mile or two and then hide and wait for him to bring fresh news from the village. He proposed boldly to enter the village and trust to his blanket to conceal his identity from Beauvais.
This was a good plan and after exhorting him to be a fox instead of a wolf I started up the trail.

Round Paw soon rejoined me,
and I asked for news of Beauvais.
"He is at the village and starts for Duquesne after one sleep."
"Tomorrow morning." I murmured.
"The witch-woman and the other Frenchman start tonight. Allaquippa has told the Frenchman to go. She is angry because he brought milk to the Leni-Lenape.
A hunter told me this. Your brother has not been to the village."

an hour later the Onon-daga brought to my hiding place a kettle of ment and a gourd of water. The kettle he had stolen from the cabin of a dranken warrior.

"The witch-woman and the Prenchman are on the path to Duquesne," he added. "They will be far on their journey by morning."

"Round Paw must have the ears of a wolf when the sun comes back. The older Frenchman must not reach Duquesne," I told him.

"Yo-hah! My white brother is very wise, like the owl. They say a Frenchman will die very quick after the next sun shines upon him. The wolf's ear will be open and his teeth are very sharp."

CHAPTER VI

"He leaves the village. It is only half-light even in the opening, but the Wolf man's eyes are very sharp. He carries a long gun like my brother'a."

"Round Paw of the Wolf clan, you must tell me you will not take part in this fight so long as I am alive," I said to him.

He sighed regretfully and sullenly replied:

"This is the first fight between the French and English where the red man is not wanted. My brother shall take the scalp alone."

The Frenchman was taking his time and with never a thought that his advance would be disputed. Some ten minutes passed, and I was finding I could see quite distinctly as far as the first bend in the trait, when the calm of the woods was shattered by two rifle shots a second apart. Cursing aloud I leaped to my feet and glared down the path in the direction of the village.

The Onondaga had been unable to resist his racial lustincts and had cut in ahead of me. Even in my anger I was amazed that he should have done this, for red or white, there was no man whose word I would accept ahead of the Onondaga's. I could only explain it by belleving the Indian had betrayed himself by some bit of carelessness. The two shots, so close together, proved the Frenchman had not been caught off his guard; but which of them had fired the last shot? Five, ten minutes lagged by, and I should have started an investigation if not for the sound of footsteps. One man was coming up the path on the run, and any finicky notions I had had about slaying the Frenchman vanished on my discovering this man was white. No Indian would run as did this fellow.

I had not time to lament over Round Paw's passing out, for in another moment the fellow would be turning the bend a few rods away. His gun would be empty, I believed, and I stood my rifle against a tree and pulled my ax. Then the steps reached the bend, and the next second a tall form was bearing down upon me. Lifting my ax I leaped into the path and cried:

"Halt, monsieur! This path is

It was obvious that the army was sick and disrupted, and that the provincials were filled with fore-bodings as they daily looked for a fight in the woods while being tied down and hampered by absurd mill-tary restrictions. This gloomy bearing on the part of men supposed to know the ways of the Indian discouraged the regulars.

What was another inexplicable piece of foily was Braddock's failure to utilize Croghan's forty Iroquois warriors on the march. It seems that Colonel James Innea, governor at Fort Cumberland, did

It required some minutes to win him over, for his red mind could not comprehend why a man should scorn an advantage when attacking an enemy. He feared French witchcraft was at work, for why abandon a certainty and foolishly risk life? The one result desired was the death of the Frenchman before he reached Duquesme, And there were two of us to give him his quietus. He consented to leave the issue to me only after I said that my orenda told me in a dream I must make the fight single-handed.

I ate a little warm meat and smoked my pipe while the Onondaga socuted the edge of the woods. At last he was back on the run, warning:

"He leavest the Village. It is only half-light even in the opening, but the Wolf man's eyes are very sharp. He carries a long gun like my brother's."

it was only seventeen miles to the Great crossing, this portion of the march was not covered until June twenty-fourth, making five more precious days consumed. Truth of it was the entire army was forced to mark time at the heels of St. Clair's tree-choppers.

It surprised me to learn that small bands of Indians were already harassing the army and that only strict police methods prevented a massacre. At that point in the campaign, Captain Jack and his riflemen would have been of inestimable service.

What joy it brings to see again
Those good old friends I used to know—
To meet the women and the men
Who were my playmates long ago!
The same dear smiles are here today
That greeted me in childhood years,
Though temples now are touched with gray
And eyes have learned the hurt of tears;

The same glad grip of cordial hands
(Yes, even warmer than of old!)
That bears to him who understands,
The finest message ever told;
The same unselfish kindliness
And thoughtful hospitality—
Small favors that alone express
True friendship's great reality.

And lighted with a deeper glow, For I am with my friends once more-

Dear Editor: Lowell Ledger, I often wonder how my good friends are in Lowell. I have not friends are in Lowell. I have not seen them in some time, and I am getting anxious and will see them soon I hope.

We are now in the "Mountain State," as they call it, West Virginia. We left the Carolinas some time ago, and for the past two weeks have been here, stopping at a hotel which is 2,800 feet above sea level, and the natural beautiful scenery [abounds on both sides. An Ad We Never Will Write which is 2,800 feet above sea level, and the natural beautiful scenery abounds on both sides.

Everything that you hear down here is nothing but "Al" Smith, and any one who thinks that the people of the South are not for "Al." Smith better come down here and stay a few days.

It is only Republican papers that spread that stuff. All the South is for "Al" Smith, and thousands of the best Republicans are for him. All over this country. I talk with hundreds of people daily. I have the pulse of the people, and everybody I come in contact with wants "Al" Smith.

And I am proud to think that "Al" and I were pals together when we were kids on dear old Oliver street, New York.

I wrote him from Washington, D. C., in February last from the Capital Park hotel, and I told him that he would be nominated sure, and that nothing could stop it, and I have written him several times since, and I just wrote him today and told him that I would see him in Washington on Inauguration day.

A business man here in Bluefield's West Virginia told me yesterday that he bought fifteen thousand automobile plates reading "Al" Smith for the White House, and ten thousand plates reading Hoover for president. He said he sold all No advertising for Kenmont Co will ever read: "Kenmont Coal Announces the Lowest of All Coal Prices." ## When I Was A Boy

Our neighbor next door had a parrot who could say "Polly wants a cracker" and do a little gentle swearing on the side.

I thought that bird was the eighth wonder of the world, and today we can sit in an easy chair and by twisting a dial hear a symphony.

Gosh, how times have changed and the biggest wonder of all is perhaps our callousness to wonderment.

We used to read about miracles and now few homes are without them.
