Pro and Con of Dr. Little's Lowell Address

To round out the whole matter of Dr. Little's Lowell address The Ledger here presents a reply to The Press criticism by Superintendent Gumsier, of Lowell, and the Press editor's reply to that.

The Press editorial criticism of Dr. Little's address is republished on the editorial page of this issue of The Ledger and its reading should precede that of the following articles:

Editor of The Press: The editorial, "A Great Illusion," appearing in the issue of Jan. 31, is in itself a great delusion. Dr. Little at no time has sponsored a plan whereby the control of the university would be taken from the hands of the taxpayers. He knows, as does the good editor, that the vacancies on the board of regents are, to all practical purposes, filled according to the wishes of a few in political power, even before the convention meets.

To obviate this condition, Dr. Little proposes that those who have the interests of the university at heart should propose several candidates for a vacancy and that the final selection be made from this list. And it should also be remembered that the state legislators, the real representatives of the people, would still continue to have the power of passing upon all appropriations.

In regard to "outside control," Dr. Little rather referred to a great state university controlled, at least in part, by private endowments. The policy of accepting buildings from private donors on state owned lands and with certain "questionable" specifications for perpetuity has been debated before. Dr. Glenn Frank, of Wisconsin, accepted the presidency of that university only after a definite understanding that no gifts with strings attached would be accepted.

The writer spent more than seven hours with Dr. Little during his stay in Lowell, and at no time, either in private or in public, did he make one derogatory remark concerning the board of regents or the state legislature. In fact, he stated that the legislature "was the most progressive, co-operative body of law-makers with which he ever had had the pleasure of working."

W. W. Gumsier, Lowell, Mich.

WHAT'S THE CRISIS?
The very capable Lowell superintendent of schools, Mr. W. W. Gumsier, writes that he is sure The Press is mistaken about Dr. C. C. Little and misinterprets his Lowell speech in which he suggested taking the choice of the regents out of "political" hands.

Mr. Gumsier writes: Vacancies on the board of regents are, to all practical purposes, filled according to the wishes of a few in political power, even before the convention meets.

As a matter of fact there is a very general agreement and tradition as to the sort of men who would make acceptable regents. There are never more than a few such men available at the time of a vacancy. They are not politicians nor in any way connected with politics.

There is no more selfless, sincere, capable state board in Michigan than the board of regents as now constituted. It is not "in politics." Why worry about it?—[Grand Rapids Press.

Lowell Girl is Victim of Electric Shock

Mrs. Elsie Fessler, of Detroit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Rittenger, of Lowell, met a sudden death January 31 at her home in that city by an electric charge while in the bath tub.

Having reached over to turn the current off or on an electric heater which stood beside the tub.

She had fallen back into the tub with the heater on her breast, evidently having been unable to free her hold upon it after receiving the fatal shock.

Being alone in the house, except for her two little children of 2 and 3 years, the tragedy was not discovered until Mr. Fessler's return from his work at 9 o'clock, he having worked over-time that day. Mrs. Fessler may have been dead for two hours; as she had supper nearly ready before taking her bath; and the children were playing about the house.

Mrs. Fessler was 24 years old January 10 and visited her parents here a few days prior to her birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rittenger went to Detroit Friday and funeral services were held at Mr. Fessler's father's home and at a Catholic church afterward; burial in a Detroit cemetery.

MR. and Mrs. Rittenger returned home Wednesday evening.

That's appreciation that appreciates and the spirit of Trade at Home that builds up the home community. If Lowell had 2,000 more men like E. C. Foreman, Lowell would be "some town."

Lowell Loses to Technical, Gd. Rapids

Last Friday night Grand Rapids Technical repeated their triumph over the local boys. This is the third defeat out of nine starts for Lowell. Technical had won earlier in the season at Grand Rapids 26-21, but the margin of victory was only two points 20-18. Captain Bert Ellis was on the side lines due to an injury.

James Gaunt, the other regular forward was out of the game due to ineffectiveness. To make matters worse the department at Lansing has ruled this boy ineligible for the balance of the semester. At the forward position Mr. Finch used Lester Ross and Jack Peckham, two husky lads weighing almost 100 pounds. These boys and Elmer Layer at center did very well, but the guards, Frienser and Gulembo did not play up to form. The boys will play at Ionia Friday night.

Rites Saturday For Ex-Sheriff of Ionia County

Ionia, Feb. 6.—A sudden attack of heart trouble resulted in the death here today of Mark Hoppough, 60, a former Ionia county sheriff. He had been in failing health for some time.

Mr. Hoppough was born in Otisco county on a farm, where he lived 46 years. Fourteen years ago he came to Ionia and in 1917 was elected sheriff on the Republican ticket. Two years later he was re-elected. Later he was employed by the state highway department in connection with inmate camp gangs, and more recently had served Ionia as night-watch.

He was a 32nd degree Mason, a member of the consistory, and all local branches of Masonry, Macabees and Elks. His widow and five sons and daughters survive. They are Mrs. Fred Christenson, Mrs. Peter VanderVoord and Mrs. Wm. Krebs, of Grand Rapids; Eugene Hoppough, Orleans, and Miss Marjorie Hoppough, at home.—(Grand Rapids Herald.

One of the Secrets of Lincoln's Greatness

The test of a big man is his ability to employ the talents of other men.

Lincoln measured high by this test. He chose for his cabinet advisers the leaders of the North—powerful personalities. Without their efficient help, he probably would have failed to save the Union.

A man who inherits money has two choices. He can invest it all by himself without asking advice, or he can summon to his aid a powerful friend and ally—his banker. The big man, like Lincoln, eagerly seeks advice from those in whom he has confidence.

DR. LITTLE'S LOWELL ADDRESS AND PRESS CRITICISM.

Probably 250 Lowell people heard Dr. Little's address at the Board of Trade banquet last Tuesday evening. More than that number will have read the editorial criticism of the same in the Grand Rapids Press of January 31. Those who heard the address must have noticed how thoroughly in accord with the speaker the entire audience seemed to be, especially as evidenced by the unanimous standing vote of confidence accorded him at the close of the address...

As a matter of interest and fairness, the Ledger is reprinting in this issue the Press criticism of the address, which was well reported by the Press representative and our readers, those who heard the address and those who read the Ledger's report, can draw their own conclusions.

Our own opinion is that there is merit in Dr. Little's views and also in the Press criticism of the same and that as usual in controversies, the public will find a rightful decision as to their relative merit in mid-ground.

Fair-minded people will find in the cases of Newman and Perkins, where disintegrated big game in the state legislatures have detailed what shall be taught as science in the schools and colleges of this state, the definition of what can happen to education when ignorant people are in control. Strictly interpreted the law in the Newman and Perkins case does not permit the use of Webster's dictionary as a reference book.

On the other hand, the Press' contention that people who pay the bills—the always heavily-burdened taxpayers—have a right to be consulted in matters of appropriations, especially when they run into millions, is absolutely right.

We must say that the force of Dr. Little's contentions did not lose anything from the manner of his presentation. This is not to say, however, that Dr. Little's Lowell audience was swept off its feet by his eloquence.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS MOVES TO RIGHT A WRONG. The Ledger notes with hearty satisfaction the bill of Representative Thomas, of Kent, introduced on one third of the gasoline tax to the townships.

SINCE the good roads movement started a few years ago, main traveled roads have received almost exclusive attention of county and state highway commissioners to the utter neglect of side-by-side roads until the present time many of the nation's actually impassible except for a horse and buggy or a man on horseback.

We have poked through some of these old roads in the vicinity of Lowell with our Ford sedan, when the trip seemed like a real adventure. If we met another Ford it meant a drive into the brush as big through as a man's wrist, or perhaps twice a tire off in a rut. There are good farms on these neglected roads and yet for a man to get out of the hay would be impossible—the hay would be all in the trees, the branches of which meet and interlace overhead.

We have seen this condition growing worse and more hazardous from year to year and it appears to us as a burning shame to tax a side road farm to improve and then spend all the money on the roads past the farm of his more fortunate townsmen.

If Mr. Thomas' bill is calculated to remedy this criminal neglect we're for it with all our might.

New York has a man who was arrested 126 times for drunkenness, convicted 125 times. The Baumes law should have gotten him for life but now he is dead and the Yale station will have time for other business. Poor fellow! But what about those who furnished the booze and sent him to a drunkard's grave? You write it.

DETROIT PAYS 40-YEAR DEBT AND THAT REMINDS ME. The story of a Detroit man who hunted up a former boarding house-keeper of 40 years ago and paid a $20 board bill that remained unsettled but those years, should have a wide read because of the effect it might have upon a multitude of others who have neglected similar just obligations for long periods of time.

TOLENTION GETS AN EMBLEM LEADER. Toleration in religion is not a new thought, nor is it an old one. No eminent personage said early in the twentieth century that "Toleration in religion was the best fruit of the Nineteenth century."

How many of our readers recall the saying of Dr. Patton, a live pastor of the Central Methodist church thirty odd years ago: "I'll take truth anywhere I can get it. I'll even take it from the devil himself."

CHICAGO HAS AN HONEST RICH FAMILY. Chicago people are not generally noted for large families, particularly those who reside in the city, but the Sunday Free Press shows a rollicking family of live-wire boys and girls playing in the wet sands of Palm Beach.

President Coolidge again includes "local governments" in a warning against high taxation in these words: "Right economy in federal expenditures must be continued and the rapidly mounting cost of state and local governments must be sharply curtailed if national prosperity is to be maintained."

That's what Governor Coonright in his family—wonders about himself in case of the birth-control tablets featured in his pre-natal days. Millions of other tail-enders who have figured well in the world's history and have amply justified the decency and honesty of their parents, might have asked the same question.

We notice that the Detroit News and Detroit Times editors have revealed with their scientific theories without getting a fatherly slap; and inasmuch as Einstein says that there are not more than half a dozen men in the world capable of understanding his theories, the average man might as well devote his time and thought to something within his reach, passing out sentences to other learned doctor is accusing Einstein of plagiarism.

The bandits who robbed an oil station across street from the Grand Rapids police station, added insult to injury. The police should at least leave one on guard when they take their naps.

While the cause of Christian unity is getting a splendid boost by the Methodist-Presbyterian union, the Fundamentalists are doing their level best to disrupt the whole Christian body through their determination to rule or ruin.

Henry says: "Spand" Calvin Coolidge says "Save." You earn before you spend and then at a happy medium. You pay your money and takes your choice.

Dr. Clarence Cook Little, retiring president of the University of Michigan, attempted in his speech Tuesday at Lowell to define certain principles of universal education. There is no possibility of a state university maintaining a high standard of education without the building expansion at Ann Arbor is financed by the legislature, which is elected by the tax-paying public.

Writing in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Nathaniel W. IN MEMORY OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN

His home was cold and cheerless like that cave That sheltered One who came to love and save— Humble and poor within that cabin rude, He lay—the man to stir the multitude.

AND like that other One when manhood came He sought not riches, power or fleeting fame; His was a purpose noble, great and high: To make a better world for you and I.

MAN of vision, sent to fill our need, Humble of heart, mighty of strength and deed; A grateful world gives thanks and praise today Because a man like you has walked its way.

Birthplace of Lincoln by No Means Squalid. And now there has been brought to light practical evidence that the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln was not the pitiful hovel of poverty that has been described in popular fiction by historians, nor was the great ancestor of Lincoln in Washington, D.C., a member of the aristocracy of the South, but a man who was not, however, so easily satisfied.

To Symbolize Lincoln Spirit. In a clump of black oaks on a hill in southwestern Indiana a small monument has been erected to perpetuate the memory of Abraham Lincoln.

When Mother's Sick. My mother's sick today, an' gee! It makes me feel so bad to see How sick she looks. But still she'll grin. Each time that I come sneakin' in. You never hear my mother kick When she is tired and feelin' aching. She always says, and tries to smile: 'I'll be all right, soon—after while.'
