Lowell Invites You Saturday, April 27th

With this issue of The Lowell Ledger, The Lowell Board of Trade, its Better Business committee and the merchants and business men of Lowell are inviting the good will and kindly presence of the generous people of Lowell and surrounding communities at the first of a series of Better Business days on Saturday, April 27.

The Ledger warmly joins in this invitation and freely offers the conveniences of its place of business for Lowell's guests on that day, for writing, reading of papers, resting or to visit friends. Lowell is worthy of your good will. It is one of the very best market towns in the country. Its mills and elevators and traders buy your farm products for cash at the best possible prices and our merchants offer the best food products of all the world and all the necessities, comforts and luxuries demanded by our modern farm and village life.

Lowell has good schools, churches, newspapers, public libraries, the best small town theater in Michigan, good homes, paved streets, boulevard lights, state highways, thriving mills and flourishing factories with products going to all parts of the country and world, its own systems of light and power and water supply, good stores in all branches of trade, with enterprising, cordial and accommodating business men, who are ever abreast with the times, and whose interests are your interests. We prosper or fail, rise or fall, together. No man lives for himself alone, but each for the other, one for all, and all for one. As the community prospers all prosper. Our joys and sorrows are common to all.

And so with abundant good will The Ledger joins in this appeal for community co-operation to be exemplified in this first Better Business Day celebration Saturday, April 27.

Read in this paper the many special bargains offered for that day by the merchants of Lowell and come, bringing the whole family and share in this harvest of good things.

Students Are Cautioned by Supt. Gumser

From time to time representatives from various schools come to Lowell and they attempt to enroll our young men and women. Some representatives will frequently offer absurd inducements and they will often resort to gross exaggerations and even misrepresentation in order to attract the students. These men will often collect from fifty to three hundred dollars as an enrollment fee.

I do not claim to know all about all of the schools. Neither is it any of my business as to where a student spends his money. But I consider it my professional duty to caution all Lowell young folks to very carefully investigate the reputation of the school before parting with any money. Incidentally, do not believe everything that every salesman tells you. Unscrupulous salesmen will often tell you that Mr. so-and-so said so-and-so. By all means investigate all statements. W. W. Gumser.

Kenneth Fletcher on a bicycle coming east on Spring street, collided with the car driven by Mrs. Clarence Wood, going south on Hudson avenue, Thursday afternoon. Kenneth was thrown from the bicycle which was badly smashed, but he received few bruises and a general shaking up and was able to be out and around after a couple of days.

New Industry May Locate Factory Here

The Industries committee of the Lowell Board of Trade, together with a number of the business people of Lowell, met at the City hall Tuesday afternoon, for the purpose of learning what they could of a new industry which might be induced to locate in the village. Mr. Charles Carr, representing the Charles Carr Manufacturing company, now located at Holland, Michigan, manufacturer of a patented wire spring used for a number of different purposes, including mattress, cushions, and numerous other purposes, explained in detail all that the company had accomplished up-to-date; the reason why the spring had met with favor, when and wherever used; the general set up of the company financially; the number of employees necessary to engage; the size of a factory building which would be required at the present time; offered testimonials from present users, also spoke encouragingly of future prospects.

The company is a stock company, the capital of which would have to be increased were they to change from their present location. The attitude of those attending the meeting was favorable, though nothing was done relative to a stock subscription; the matter was referred to the Industries committee, the instructions to satisfy themselves upon all matters pertaining to the position, and to report their findings to the Directors of the Lowell Board of Trade. Men more or less familiar with the company speak highly of the personnel, and generally are encouraged with the prospects.

That the Village of Lowell has among its citizens men who never overlook an opportunity to do something for the betterment of business, living and labor conditions, is the reason for the desire of others to locate here.

Should the spring proposition prove favorable in the minds of the Industries committee; let's forget past experiences; every cloud has a silver lining; Spring time is in the air with brighter days ahead. Accompanying Mr. Carr were the Stevens Brothers, Joe and John, nationally known advertising specialists. Their opinion on matters of the kind is worth listening to; their knowledge of the business and the man behind it, their knowledge of men in general, brought the proposition to men in Lowell.

Have your lawn mower sharpened and repaired at Williamson blacksmith shop. (p June 6)

Little Girl Rests After Long Illness

Marie, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus Rogers, passed away at Blodgett hospital Tuesday forenoon, after a year of great suffering. She had submitted to several operations, which consisted of scraping the bone in her leg. Tuesday morning an incision was made from the hip to the knee and the bone was scraped on all sides. She lived through the operation, but the severity of the shock was too much for her poor little heart to bear. Her mother was summoned and arrived at the hospital an hour before the little daughter passed away. The parents have for the deep sympathy of their friends as this has been such a severe and trying condition all the way through. The funeral will be held at Yeiter's chapel Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock; burial in Oakwood. Pastor Lemke, of the Congregational church officiating.

Ming was born in Flint July 26, 1918, and came with her parents eight years ago. For a year and two months she has been a patient at Blodgett hospital, where her parents have visited her almost daily ever since.

Some of her little school mates acted as bearers.

Council Orders Special Election on Bond Issue

Friday, April 19, at 7:30, a. m. a special meeting of the Lowell Common Council was held in the board room of the City State bank, for the purpose of consulting with Village Attorney Shivel, relative to the advisability of calling a special election of the voters of Lowell village to decide the question of a bond issue amounting to sixty-five thousand dollars, ($65,000.) same for the purpose of constructing a new and modern dam in Flat River at White's bridge, replacing the present old structure, now in a state of complete dilapidation.

A resolution was passed covering the matter at hand, the Village Clerk instructed to notify the Commissioners of Election to prepare for the holding of said election on Monday, May 13, a copy of said resolution and notice of election to be published in the local newspapers, at least eight days prior to the day of election. Saturday, May 11, was set aside as registration day; all voters in the village whose names do not appear upon the rolls at this time, are requested to call at the office of the Lowell Board of Trade, not later than 8:00 o'clock, p. m. of that day, if they desire to vote upon the bonding proposal.

The Common Council of the Village of Lowell has withheld the calling of said election, until such time as they were convinced as to the better plan of procedure, to do the right thing at the right time, to as near as possible avoid making any mistake in their recommendations.

The first thought was to purchase and install, in the downtown power house, a larger engine of the Deisel type, capable of generating the same amount of electric energy, as that which might be generated at the White's Bridge power house, operating under normal conditions. In another way it was not.

The type of engine required would cost in the neighborhood of forty-five thousand dollars, ($45,000.) for complete installation; the proposed new dam sixty-five thousand dollars, ($65,000.) therefore, considering the value which has been placed upon the White's Bridge power station, real estate and bridge rights, there is only one answer to the question, build a new dam.

According to the plans which have been submitted by Construction Engineers, it will take at least six months to complete the work, and there should be no delay in getting the work under way.

An appraisal of the holdings of the Lowell Light and Power company has been ordered by the Common Council, and a complete set-up of its intrinsic worth, to the citizens of Lowell Village, will be on record within the next few weeks. The report, to date, has convinced the members of the Council that they are acting for the best interests of the village and the citizens thereof, in asking that a favorable vote be cast upon a bond issue, which, under ordinary conditions may be retired long before they may become due. Disinterested as they are in whatever plan the village might adopt in support of the power situation, the appraisers have advised the construction of a new dam, under any and all conditions.

For upwards of thirty years the old wooden structure has served its purpose, earned every dollar of its cost; some time ago it began to show signs of weakening, leaks appeared which were patched up from time to time, until finally it was discovered that as much water went through the dam as went over it; this condition meant a corresponding loss of power, and primarily called for the installation of the Deisel engine, that the users of electric power and light might be insured against a complete break-down, should anything go wrong at the dam. This wise provision was well timed. To date the Deisel engine has saved the day on more than one occasion.

The engine and equipment was installed at a cost of approximately forty thousand dollars, ($40,000.) It has paid for itself in timely service and the building of a new dam delayed for three years, in consequence thereof. While much might be said in favor of engine equipment, the Lowell Light and Power company water power equipment is "the one best bet," for the people of Lowell to consider; built up with modern retaining walls, a dam constructed to last for an indefinite time, will solve the electrical problem, until such time as the demand of power exceeds anything in sight at this time. The more power that can be made and delivered to customers in the territory which can be covered by the Lowell Light and Power company lines, means additional revenue with but little additional cost; this fact has been demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of the Common Council. Without reservation, the Common Council of the Village of Lowell, believing that the proposed new dam can be constructed and paid for out of Plant earnings, respectfully advise the adoption of the proposed bond issue. A favorable vote cast on the 16th day of May, 1929, will allow the Council to advertise for bids, to get the work underway and completed before the cold weather of a possible early Winter, sets in.
