After Fifty Years

W. S. Winegar in retiring from business after a career on Main street as clerk, proprietor and partner, of 52 years, desires to thank the many friends who have given him their friendship and patronage, to thank them heartily and sincerely and to solicit for his successor a continuance of the same.

Will C. Hartman joins Mr. Winegar in appreciation of the friendships, associations and business accorded to Winegar & Hartman, states his purpose to continue the policies that have won the old patrons and solicits a continuance of the same.

W. S. Winegar W. C. Hartman

Will Winegar Sells Business to W. Hartman

W. S. WINEGAR.

The drug store business of Winegar & Hartman has been purchased by Mr. Hartman, who took possession March 24, Mr. Winegar retiring.

This brief statement marks the closing of Willard S. Winegar's long business career in Lowell, an event calling for more than casual notice.

Beginning in March 1878 when as a school boy, Will Winegar began his long career, working nights, mornings and Saturdays for Hunt & Hunter, and continuing for 4 years for Quincey Look and succeeded him in the business in March, 1888. Thus, on Monday of this week he completed an active and honorable career in business for himself of 42 years.

September 24, 1879, Mr. Winegar married Dora E. Hildreth, who has shared his life and home ever since and lives to make his old age comfortable and serene as they travel toward life's sunset together.

Mr. Winegar's activities have by no means been confined to his private business interests; but a large portion of his mature years has been given to an unrequited public service.

He served on the School Board for about 30 years, much of that time as director. He was a member of the Village Council for 18 years, serving on the Light and Power committee, all that time, much of it as chairman, following J. Edmund Lee in that capacity.

Only those who have served in like capacity can estimate the cares, responsibilities and sacrifices of business interests, the long days and nights, thus given up to public interests, when business and home and companionship had to take second place in his life.

Then, there were the social and fraternal ties, beginning in 1886, with a membership in Lowell lodge, No. 90, F. & A. M., following in later years with Chapter, Knights Templar, Shrine and Eastern Star connections, serving as Master of the Blue Lodge and High Priest of the Chapter. His career as a joiner was a finely climaxed about twenty years ago when himself and Mrs. Winegar united with the Methodist Episcopal church under the pastorate of Rev. Russell H. Bready.

And so, when one of his old friends called on him at his beautiful home Tuesday morning and found him in his easy chair, in a reminiscent mood, he remarked, "I guess I have done my share," never man spoke truer words. He has given what he could, good measure pressed down and running over.

All these years Will Winegar's store has been a favorite resting place for a host of old friends, who have become nearer and dearer as their number dwindled. As the scribe came away he said: "Shall I tell the old friends to come and see you here, Will?" And the reply was "Sure thing, old boy!"

Will Hartman, Mr. Winegar's successor, came to Lowell 21 years ago and entered as clerk in the store of which he is now proprietor. In January, 1924, he became a partner, under the style of Winegar & Hartman. In July, 1918, he married a well-known Lowell girl, Miss Lora Lampman, who has been about the store much in recent years and will help her husband in the business efficiently.

Mr. Hartman has also had his fraternal interests with the Masonic orders, serving the Blue lodge as High Priest, in 1922-3-4 and 1925-6, respectively; and is also a member of the O. E. S., and I. O. O. F.

In his 21 years here, Mr. Hartman has made Mr. Winegar's friends his own friends, and in his joint message with his former partner expresses the desire to continue the same.

Of these, The Ledger scribe counts as one and joins with the citizens of the entire Lowell community in wishing him and his long life, health prosperity and happiness.

Curley Family of Bowne in Tragic Death

Thomas Curley, 60, Bowne Center farmer, his daughter, Mary Elizabeth, 13, and a son, Thomas, Jr., 8, were killed instantly in Middleville Saturday noon when their sedan was struck at the M-57 detour crossing by the east-bound Michigan Central Wolverine, traveling at a speed approximately 60 miles an hour.

Mr. Curley is said to have driven his auto directly into the path of an oncoming locomotive despite an attempt made by a section worker to stop the machine, which was carried on the pilot of the engine more than 100 feet before the locomotive was derailed.

Warning bells on the crossing were ringing and a flash signal was working. It is believed Mr. Curley became confused by a freight train parted for the crossing and that he thought the right-of-way was clear, with signals working because of the nearby freight cars.

The father's body was thrown clear of the tracks; bodies of the children were pulled from the demolished sedan after the train had been stopped. All three were badly mutilated. They were removed to funeral parlors of H. G. Denewey in Middleville and later taken to the Cross funeral home in Caledonia.

The family was believed to have been shopping in Middleville, as groceries were found in the machine. They probably were on their way home when the accident occurred. Mrs. Curley was prostrated when informed of the accident, and was under a doctor's care in Middleville.

No passengers on the train were injured when the two front drive wheels of the locomotive left the track. Engineer Arthur Rowley and Conductor Clyde H. Cole, of Jackson were in charge of the train, which left Grand Rapids at 11:30, 25 minutes before the accident occurred. The train was delayed several hours before a wrecking crew from Grand Rapids placed the locomotive back on the tracks.

The Curley family is well known in Grand Rapids, the daughter, Mary Elizabeth, having been a freshman at Girls' Catholic High school, returning to her home in Bowne Center each week-end. A sister of Mrs. Curley, Mrs. John W. Murphy, lives at 1122 Franklin st., SE.

Mrs. Curley, three sons, Robert, 12½, Ottawa ave., NW, Grand Rapids; Frances, of Alto, and Albert survive.—(Grand Rapids Herald.)

Fineis Oil Co-Workers Hold Meeting

With the idea of making a connection with a national gasoline company which would enable them to give better service to their hosts of customers in their territory the Fineis Oil Co., of Ionia, Lowell and Owasco, gathered about 80 employees and dealers together at a banquet held Thursday night at the Life Saver Inn at Ovid for a thorough discussion of the proposed change from the present connections with a large syndicate to that of an independent refiner.

An open forum on the matter was held at which all the dealers were requested to make their views and ideas known and it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that affiliating with the Dixie Distributors, Incorporated, would be a wise move, not only for the Fineis Oil Co., but for the individual dealers.

Mr. Peter Fineis made the speech of welcome and gave a brief outline of the history of the Fineis Oil Co., and the struggle it has made during the past 10 years to form connections which would be of the most satisfaction to the dealers and therefore to the general public, following which he introduced the toastmaster of the evening, R. M. Hill, state representative of the Theisen Clemens Co., of St. Joseph, Michigan, distributors for Dixie products.

Mr. Hill spoke of the introduction of Dixie products in the state and gave an interesting talk on the merits of the products of the company. He told of the origination of the company through which the efforts of L. Y. White, of Kalamazoo, and the immense growth of the business in this state and 11 others since that time.

Famous Base Ball Catcher Visits Lowell

Jim McGuire and wife spent a few hours in our village Monday morning. Jim, as the base ball world recognizes, was one of the greatest catchers of all time. Starting with Indianapolis in 1886 he has played the game in Detroit, Cleveland, Washington, Brooklyn, Boston and New York City, and just a few years ago retired to his farm near Albion, Michigan, where he is engaged in poultry raising to a large extent. His many reminiscences while engaged in the great American game were most interesting. He had the honor of catching the first game wherein the great Walter Johnson pitched, and he also caught for New York in the game where the famous Ty Cobb made his debut for Detroit. Jim says that the game is not now played the same as in the good old days and the shape of his fingers bears evidence to the fact that he worked in many a game when the present day catchers would have been in a hospital. He gives Babe Ruth great credit for being the long distance hitter, which he is, but at the same time he would like to know what Sam Crawford, Ed. Delehanty and others would do it is his opinion lively ball and it is his opinion either of the above clouters would be alongside the noted Babe when it came to pitcher butchering. Mr. McGuire is an ardent base ball fan and occasionally he interrupts Jim when his memory is at all faulty. On one occasion Ty Cobb made the statement to Jim that he was a bit too early for the big salaries in base ball, but that he considered Jim McGuire the greatest catcher that ever donned a mask, not excepting Kling and Bresnahan and that he was just old wine—the older the better. As a token of the esteem in which his players held him, Mr. McGuire carried a gold watch presented to him while the manager of the Boston American team with which each player's name is engraved on the case. Among the names shown were Lou Criger, Cy Young, Cy Morgan, Chick Stahl, Tris Speaker and other famous players. He has caught Joe McGinnity, Eddie Cicotte, Cy Young, Walter Johnson and Ad-Joe Joss, whose names goes down in history as being among the greatest pitchers of all time. Jim considers Ty Cobb the greatest ball player of all time. Ty's ability to take the opposing team off its stride and his aggressive-ness and head work, together with his speed on bases won many a game for his own team. On their Lowell trip Mr. and Mrs. McGuire first visited the Foreman hatchery and then were shown through the feed plant of King Milling company.

BLACK BASS PLANTS IN KENT WILL BE MARKED.

The 24 lakes in Kent county, which were planted with fingerling black bass by the Dwight Lydell chapter of the Izaak Walton league last fall, will be posted this Spring with suitable signs which will advise all lake visitors of this fact. Fifty signs will be purchased and put in place during April.

The local chapter may co-operate with the state organization in putting an exhibit aboard the Pennsylvania railroad's reforestation special, which will visit 14 towns and cities in western Michigan during the week of April 14. These subjects were discussed at the regular Friday noon meeting of the league at the Elks building.—(Grand Rapids Herald.)

SOUTHERN AND WESTERN READERS, THIS IS FOR YOU.

The joke is on us poor, stay-at-home Michiganders again. It "snowed and blowed" all day Tuesday and all night Tuesday—eight or nine inches of heavy snow melting at bottom this Wednesday morning.

Fortunately it is not cold—just at freezing point in front of The Ledger office at 9:50, this morning; but still snowing lightly.

RICHMOND—LEECH.

Married, at South Bend, Ind., Saturday, March 22, Mrs. Lulu Richmond and Vern Leech. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Leech, of Kalamazoo. Monday evening about fifty relatives and friends gathered at their home in Vergennes to offer congratulations and spend the evening.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Last week, Wednesday, as we were rushing the paper to a finish, twelve country letters were received on the morning mail. We had neither time nor space at that time of the week, and had to hold these letters over until this week. Please start your letters on Monday morning's first mail. A lot of you have not complied with our request to state whether or not you will continue to write for The Ledger this year. As we wish to send magazines and send theater tickets to active correspondents, please reply at once.
