brought home forcibly the fact that air travel and transportation of merchandise by air have be-come a well-established part of the daily life of many businesses and business men. Few people realize how much dependence is placed upon the airplane for commercial purposes.

More than a million pounds of freight will have been transported by air in the United States alone this year, authorities figure. Most of this is emergency transportation, to be sure, but none the less important. A friend of mine who publishes a newspaper on Long Island found that a workman had left a wrench on the press gears, when he started up the machin-

AIR sample of too many is well illustrated in the investigation just completed at Michigan State college. Judge Leland W. Carr, sitting as a one-man grand jury, declaring there was no evidence of criminal liability to support the charges made against college officials and the Michigan State Institute of Music, adds the following comment:

"In addition to the specific matters discussed the inquiry has extended to certain other claims of questionable conduct concerning which rumors have been circulated about the cam-

Are we to assume that the Indians of Pennsylvania were less hardy than the Abenakis, who burned Deerfield with three feet of snow on the ground; that, like the ancient Chinese, they fought only when the weather was fine? An assumption of that sort is poor foundation for an hypothesis so alien to the benignant sunny disposition of the "Indian-summer."

A more ingenious theory is that the name was suggested by the stealth with which summer, after she has checked out, steals back for one last fond look at her lover. The suddenness of her unexpected return is akin to that of the Indian raid. She steals upon the countryside, as the savages did. They went as suddenly as they came. So does their summer. There may be something to that

Our Next President

After March 4 next Mr. Roosevelt will be the President of the United States and it is the patriotic duty of every American citizen to give him loyal and patriotic support in his every constructive and upbuilding effort. Such support on the part of every citizen will mean the continuance of recovery. We must march on. President Hoover sets the right example in his telegram to Governor Roosevelt:

"I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to the country and I wish for you a most successful administration. In the common purpose of all of us I shall dedi-cate myself to every possible helpful effort."

Newspaper

The merchant's relations to his home town paper are supposed to be those of an advertiser. That is a narrow vein. The home town paper is an institution. The merchant can no more escape its influence than anybody else in the community, whether he advertises in it or not.

Yet, as a consistent advertiser his relations with the local newspaper become definitely constructive. He becomes a part of this institution without which no community can express itself. Whatever its merits or demerits, the home town paper is an expression of the community. Literally, it is the "Voice of the People" in a sense that cannot hold true for any other medium.

This institution keeps friends in touch with friends. To the best of its ability it answers Who, What, Where, How and Why? It brings the individual out of himself. It speaks the local language. It interprets community life. Week by week, or day by day, it tells the story of the town and county.

Most of us are so accustomed to the home town paper that we take it as a matter of course. If we think anything about it at all, we think of its deficiencies. These are present largely because it is run by fallible human beings. The wonder about the home town paper is that it contains so few mistakes, not so

To the merchant, especially, the home town paper is an opportunity. His business, too, is a local institution. Unless it finds some kind of expression in the home town paper, both the paper and the business have to an important extent failed to function. Each is affected somewhat by every successive failure in this respect.

It does not cost a great doal of money to advertise in the local paper. Most advertisers are over-judicious rather than extravagant. It is the continual message that counts most. Sporadic advertisements now and then are doubtful value. Perhaps they are better than no advertising at all. Every advertisement placed by a business house should blend into every other advertisement it places. The merchant should think in terms of a campaign rather than in terms of the single insertion.

Vast progress has been made in advertising within recent years. Outstanding examples of it are to be found in the national field. Locally, however, advertising has much room for development. Aside from one or two of the big stores, the average merchant in the average small town gives too little study to the power of advertising.

But conditions are changing. More and more merchants are coming to realize that they are losing money and prestige when they are not to be found in the advertising columns of the home town paper. This is one of the healthiest signs in the field of retail merchandising.

More Local News

Every week there are a whole lot of things that folks would like to sell or buy. There isn't a home that doesn't need something out of the ordinary run of merchandise several times during the year. And on the other hand every home has articles turn up every so often that can be sold. The only difficulty in both cases is to find the seller or buyer. That's where we help. There isn't a week that there aren't bargains listed in the Want Column of the Ledger. Nearly every week there are chanc-es listed in the Want Column to sell something.
