FOR BANKING REFORM

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan spoke from Washington last Friday night on a coast to coast hop on the subject of banking reform of the nation.

The Michigan senator believes that one of the greatest needs of the country today is to deal with bank reform, particularly in the interest of the depositor.

He has introduced a bill dealing with the guarantee of time deposits, which, he contends, avoids the pitfalls of a general bank deposit insurance and insures well operated banks.

FORD'S FARM RELIEF PLAN

Henry Ford's exposition of the vast decentralization process of his significant agricultural producing automobiles is interesting. To break it up into separate units, according to his plan, is as significant as his adoption of mass production a generation ago.

Ford, it is pointed out, foresees the scrapping of his River Rouge plant—the largest automobile manufacturing plant ever constructed. He visualizes a central plant, manufacturing motors and vital parts, with thousands of small factories scattered over the country making some parts of his cars and shipping them to the nearest assembly plant.

He points out that these small factories will be situated in thousands of rural communities, where the workers will be able to raise agricultural products for their own use and also bring money into their communities by selling their products.

Mr. Ford also insists that much of the automobile industry "grown on the farm," that much of it could be made of by-products of agriculture, and that great new sources of income await the farmer who exhibits his "green wheel and other parts made from products of soybeans grown near Detroit and stated that the bodies of cars can be grown on the farm. They can be made from cellulose of corn stalks, with a steel wire reinforcement inside and silver in-ferriment at the doors and will be lighter, stronger and quieter than metal bodies.

The automobile manufacturer explains his object as being two-fold, namely, greater economy in operation and the resurrection of the rural regions by farming them to produce industrial as well as agricultural foods. He believes that the enormous industrial centers of today, with all workers clustered about super-factories is about to pass with considerable speed to both industries and employes.

LESS TOWNSHIP ROAD TAX

Due to the use of State Highway Department revenues to reduce local highway taxes, the township in 1933 will spend less than in 1932 per inhabitant of the township.

This amount may be reduced if gasoline tax collections fall below $20,000,000 during the year. No portion of the Highway Department revenues comes from property taxes.

In discussing construction during the past two years, the report shows that 1344 miles of road were constructed. The past two years were finished with concrete which 90 more miles was widened with concrete slabs. Slightly over 600 miles was surfaced with gravel.

The report shows that because of the McNitt-Holbeck-Smith act, the road tax has been reduced almost one half in 1932 compared with 1931. In 1931 the total road tax of all Michigan townships was $5,413,894, but in 1932 it was $2,600,000.

Most of the present farm debt was incurred when the level farm prices were nearly four times as high as it is now and to repay such a debt, the producer must produce about four times as much as he did in 1929.

THAT EXTRA JOB!

Springtime, which will not be long in coming, is a good time to build. This nation has been suffering from psychological as well as economic setbacks. Her public commodities which farmers must buy to operate with, have not fallen as much, being now only about one-half of the price in 1929.

In other words, the value of what the farmer produces, expressed in money, has decreased (value as fast as the value of the things that he must buy. Expressed in terms of income, the farmer is now receiving for his crops about one-half what he got in 1929 and about one-fourth the workmen at a fair wage scale than right now—fair to both employer and employee. Prices of all building material are at their lowest in years—soon there will be a rising market. The home owner who is planning to build or rebuild will increase in value with every succeeding year.

But that of all these new projects will give needed employment to somebody. By building now you not only add to your own income, but you help to bring happiness to others.

THAT 15-MILL AMENDMENT

Which requests have been received from the farmers for the "15-mill tax limitation" amendment, adopted by the people last November.

The amendment provides that all property taxes, except income tax, on outstanding public debts, be limited to one and one-half per cent of the assessed value of the property. The amendment also provides that the situation has been further aggravated by a fall in the value of real estate.

The situation is serious when one reflects that loss of the farm will take from the farmer and his family their means of livelihood. For that reason, taxes and indebtedness represent a problem that is catastrophic to many farmers in this country.

Figures recently quoted by Eric England, in the New York Times, show that the situation has been further aggravated by a fall in the value of real estate.

shrinkage is more than one-half. Meanwhile, mortgage debt figures compiled by David L. Wickens, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, show that in 1910 the mortgage debt on American farms was $3,200,000,000. In 1920 it had more than doubled and in 1930 was almost tripled, being $9,241,000,000. Therefore, the farmer, with less income and more indebtedness, finds himself unable to meet the situation.

Another aggravation has been the increase in taxes, which have more than doubled between 1910 and 1930 and in 1930 were almost three times what they were in 1910. This may be slightly inaccurate because of so much illness in the neighborhood.

Heroic Film Comes to Strand Theatre

Bringing to the screen Ernest Hemingway's great drama of a world gone mad, "A Farewell to Arms" starring Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper comes to the Strand Theatre Sunday and Monday. Men and women on the brink of eternity casting off the shackles of society, living for the moment—play things of passion and hate, caught in the turmoil of a world gone mad—and out of this mad world of action and lust is born the love of two souls who sacrifice honor, country—everything—in the mating of their souls. "A Farewell to Arms" is strong, vital drama that rings aloud with the clarion call of truth.

Remember When When boys used to sharpen their own skates, but when they wanted a real job done they went to an expert? When Grant Warner played the fiddle and kept time with his foot? When the short locks of hair at back of the neck that now lie on the barber shop floor were referred to by the ladies as "scolding locks"? When men wore velvet earflaps that were held in place by adjustable steel bands? When shoe blacking came in flat circular tin boxes, beautifully embellished, and only required a little saliva to become ready for use? When we got a sideache from running, in our boyhood days, and cured it by the simple expedient of lifting a small stone out of the ground, spitting in the hole and replacing the stone? Now folks who get that way go see a doctor.
