Odds and Ends Here and There

Pithy Points Picked Up and Pally Put By Our Peripatetic Pencil Pusher

The careless smoker during 1934 continued to be the greatest menace to Michigan's forest lands.

Postage must be collected on all mailable matter, such as statements of accounts, bills, circulars, etc., which are deposited by business firms in approved letter boxes.

The Secretary of State's office announces that a month's extension will be granted for the securing of 1935 automobile license plates.

Philadelphia courts are going to see to it that dogs won't live a dog's life as far as crossing the streets are concerned.

Farmers will dominate the membership in the present house of representatives, Miles G. Gray, clerk, revealed Saturday.

Two checks for $500,000 each Thursday were turned into the state treasury by the Michigan liquor control commission.

Michigan's toll of motor fatalities and injuries topped even the all-time high record of the country as a whole in the first ten months of 1934.

ANOTHER NEW YEAR

AS WE THREW last year's calendar into the wastebasket and hung up the new one with "1935" printed at the top, we paused to wonder how the world would look to us the next time we had this job to do.

It has been a curious and confusing year; the one we have just come through; the most confusing of all the five years that have passed since the great Depression set in.

As we look back over 1934 it seems to us that nothing of any real importance happened in the year just ended. The economic and social picture remains unchanged, as we see it. Lots of people were out of work at the beginning of January, 1934; about as many, perhaps a few more, are out of work now.

There were, of course, many exciting events in 1934. A king and his chancellor were killed in Europe; a couple of dictators put a lot of people to death without trial.

A great steamship burned and killed a lot of passengers; in Michigan, the Kerns hotel disaster at Lansing cost 32 lives; a man who may have had something to do with the Lindbergh kidnaping was arrested; a lot of aviation records were smashed and several railroads began experimenting with funny-looking high-speed trains.

What we would like to see in 1935 is real progress toward economic recovery, progress of the sort that derives from a new spirit built upon every man standing on his own two feet and not leaning on a Government.

WE READ in the papers the other day that Lord Kylsant, head of one of the great British shipping lines, had just finished his year's term in jail. We wonder how it is that a noble Lord and millionaire industrialist had committed to get himself sent to prison.

There can be no possible objection to punishing any person who knowingly makes misrepresentations about anything that is offered to the public.

Some amendments have been made to the original Securities Act. It is the opinion of many sound, honest bankers and business men, that more amendments are needed.

It seems to us that the way might be opened to make it easier for such capital to be raised, without in any way lessening the penalties for intentional false statements by promoters.

Phillip Schneider of South Lowell met with a most painful and serious accident last Thursday while at work.

BRYANT TELLS REAL PURPOSE BEHIND RELIEF

STATES IT IS AS NECESSARY TO CONSIDER HUMAN PHYSICAL WELFARE AND MORALE AS IT IS PUBLIC SAFETY

"When government assumes responsibility for the care of needy citizens, it is obligated to maintain certain standards and work toward an objective for the general good," says James G. Bryant, Administrator for Kent county Relief Commission.

"It is as necessary to consider human physical welfare and morale as it is for government to provide for the public safety. Although it may not be obvious to those not familiar with the relief program, work relief in Kent county over the past year has served a necessary purpose entirely aside from what it has accomplished in the way of public improvement."

The benefit of the work relief program to the workers themselves has been two fold. There has been the obvious benefit of cash relief instead of relief in kind. In addition, there has been the rehabilitative aspect of work relief.

"Men work a full day for a full day's pay; they are kept 'tuned up,' mentally alert and in good physical condition. When private industry is able to re-employ these men it will find them ready to step back into their jobs, and produce the best results."

Without the work relief program, private industry would eventually have to face a huge problem of rehabilitating thousands of workers who had grown listless, discouraged and who had lost their skill through long periods of enforced idleness.

Surviving are his three sons, Edward of Lowell, Ted of Grand Ledge, Horace of Boston, Mass.; one daughter, Mrs. Bessie Cline, of Grand Rapids and one sister, Sally M. Sweet, of Lansing.

The funeral was held in the Smith funeral parlors of Grand Ledge, Rev. A. J. Hoolsema of Lowell officiating. Interment in Grand Ledge.

All of the men in Lowell who are interested in volleyball ball are requested to meet at the high school Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

FARMER BOY TO GOVERNOR TWENTY-TWO years ago a young farmer boy went to Lansing to take a minor job in the state capital.

That Fitzgerald will hold the confidence of the people is shown by his declaration that he would maintain an "open door" policy so far as possible, but he also said that he would not permit any stream of job hunters and seekers after favors to interfere with state affairs.

The governor also revealed a plan to make "a report to the people," at least once a month, using radio and interviews with newspapermen to keep the public advised of what is transpiring in government.

ARM BADLY LACERATED Phillip Schneider of South Lowell met with a most painful and serious accident last Thursday while at work.

Joyce Frost, 13 Dies Following Coasting Party

A Christmas gift sled, with which she had been coasting with a group of other youngsters, brought brief happiness to 13-year-old Joyce Adelaide Frost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus J. Frost of S. Hudson-st.

Joyce went coasting on Fletcher's hill near the Grand Trunk depot with her new sled for the first time on Friday and she had so much fun that she begged to be allowed to go again.

Relatives and friends hoped for her recovery all through the next day when they had planned to hold a family dinner and reunion at the home of Joyce's aunt, Mrs. Glenn E. Thompson of Grand Rapids.

Surviving are the parents, a little sister, Gloria May, who is 8 years old, and a little brother, Marcus Wayne, 6.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the Congregational church, Rev. S. B. Wenger officiating. Interment in Oakwood cemetery.

Your Help Asked In Plague Fight

The 28th annual sale of Christmas Seals brought $6100.00 to the coffers of the Grand Rapids Anti-tuberculosis Society at the close of the day on December 29.

"If the 12,000 people in this city and county who have not yet made returns for their seals could follow our nurse one day, we know they would be convinced that our work not only finds unsuspected cases of tuberculosis but helps to protect every member of this community against this infectious and hidden disease.

A series of chest clinics with tuberculin testing of students will be planned for Kent County villages in the Spring.

North Park school will entertain Kent County Council of Parents and Teachers January 8.

MORE PEOPLE TO LIVE ON FARMS IS PREDICTION

SEEMS REASONABLE TO MAKE PLANS ON PRESENT BASIS RATHER THAN TO DREAM OF PAST—GOOD FARM PRACTICES ARE ESSENTIAL

Definite indications that the population on farms will be greater in the next ten years than it has been in the past decade were pointed out by speakers at the conference of agricultural agents at Michigan State College.

Men and women who would have gone to towns in the years immediately after 1929 have stayed on farms because they could not find work elsewhere.

Problems of adjusting the greater number of residents on farms to conditions as they are now for agricultural leaders are expected to be the number of producers of farm products surely will have a tendency to increase the amount of food stuffs grown and to decrease the prices received for them.

Until employment conditions improve, farmers will have to plan to conduct their business upon a basis of getting a great deal of their living from their farm and cutting their cash expenditures to the least possible amount.

Government plans for assisting farmers to obtain parity prices for their produce are to be continued but these plans were announced as temporary when they were begun.

Fundamental good farm practices are more essential in bad times than in good times. It is a matter of the soil, use of the best varieties of tested seeds, application of fertilizers on cash crops, keeping a good supply of excellent livestock, and keeping a set of account books will help any amount of this kind of economic conditions. It is more profitable to produce 100 units of 10 acres than 100 units on 20 acres, whether it be corn, wheat or potatoes.

Abbie N. Garstone Dies at Age of 77

Mrs. Abbie N. Garstone, (nee Johnson) passed away Monday afternoon at the Ernest Fullington home on Riverside-dr., where she was employed as housekeeper.

Abbie Johnson was born in New York in 1857 and came to Lowell with her parents when she was eleven years old. She had lived here ever since that time.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock at the Roth & Brezina Chapel, Rev. S. B. Wenger officiating. Interment was beside her husband in Oakwood cemetery.

More Publicity For Lowell's Showboat

Although five months have passed since the presentation of the Lowell Showboat it still gains nationwide publicity and comment by a national magazine.

The magazine, The Turnover Times, issued by the Wolverine Shoe and Tanning Corporation, contains a front page writeup telling of how the town of Lowell made capital out of the river by the presentation of the Showboat and also of how the merchants had taken advantage of the opportunity to advertise their merchandise to the thirty thousand people who swarmed into Lowell to witness the three performances of the Showboat.

His Winter Chores

Frank A. Madigan Dies Unexpectedly

Frank A. Madigan, well-known to Lowell people as the proprietor of the Melody Farms dairy and a Grand Rapids oil man for 25 years, died of a heart attack early Sunday morning at his home in Grand Rapids at 2610 Robinson-rd., SE.

Coroner Simeon LeRoy said Mr. Madigan had been injured in an automobile accident a week ago, but that there appeared to be no connection between these injuries and his death.

The body of Madigan, who was 44 years old, was found by his business secretary, Miss Peggy Jones, 32, and her mother, Mrs. P. M. Jones, when they went to the home to prepare his breakfast.

Mr. Madigan had many friends in Lowell and at one time was quite active in local affairs. He took a conspicuous part in the Lowell Centennial celebration in 1931, being chairman of the parade committee, the parade being one of the big events of the celebration.

New Ford V-8 De Luxe Tudor Sedan Shown

PHOTO shows the new Ford V-8 de luxe Tudor sedan for 1935, which has just been announced. The body lines are distinctively modern and a departure from previous Ford standards. The cars feature many engineering improvements providing greater riding comfort and increased ease of control. The engine has been moved forward. Passengers ride closer to the center of the car. The Ford V-8 engine now has a new system of crankcase ventilation. The Tudor sedan is also available with out de luxe equipment.

Pat Beahan, "Your local Ford Dealer" at Lowell, cordially invites the public to visit his showrooms and see the car.

BIG PROBLEMS IN RELIEF WORK ARE EXPLAINED

DIETING NEEDS IN TIME OF DEPRESSION ARE TOO OFTEN DISREGARDED—OPTER RELIEF NOW SAVES ON FUTURE COSTS

Relief administration is not simply a problem of sitting down with pencil and paper and figuring how much it will cost to feed and clothe a given number of people. The problem is one of tomorrow as well as of today. Consideration must be given, for instance, to the effects of present economic conditions upon the young people who will be citizens of the next generation.

To guard relief families against undernourishment and its attendant ills through helping relief families obtain the most value from limited food allowance, is one task of the Kent County relief commission. This work is done by Miss Elisabeth Whipple, a worker trained as a nutritionist as well as in other lines of relief work.

It is Miss Whipple's task to figure how grocery allowances can best be arranged to provide essential food elements. Canning demonstrations and diet instruction classes are other means of helping relief families get the most good out of their food budgets. Patients of the medical department needing special diets are instructed in proper foods and helped in arranging their budgets to meet their needs to the best advantage.

"In time of depression," Miss Whipple says, "diets needs are too often disregarded. The results of this neglect frequently are felt long afterwards, in loss of costly illnesses that ravage blood, bones and teeth. From a purely utilitarian standpoint it is necessary that the public be shown how to guard its health, especially at a time when so many families have limited funds with which to purchase food, and meagre knowledge of food values."

"Such a course saves the taxpayer money in the long run, in addition to preventing human suffering. The children of today will be better, healthier citizens tomorrow because work has been done to show their parents how food elements necessary to bodily well-being can be secured with the least expense."

Livestock and Poultry Judging Champions

Indiana and Illinois Boys Corn Growing Winners

CHICAGO . . . The 1934 National Corn Growing championship went to boys from Indiana and Illinois. On the right (above) is Lester Schuts, age 17, of Lafayette, Ind., who produced 78 to 92 bushels of corn per acre on his 4-H Club project in 9 years to win the championship and a $400 scholarship. On the left is William E. Hamilton, 19, of Good Hope, Ill., reserve champion and winner of $200 scholarship.

Confident of Future

DETROIT . . . A new portrait study of Henry Ford made at his home which shows the automobile magnate as he appears today. His faith in the future is best shown in his program of spending millions enlarging his great plant to make 1935 his greatest production year.

No human is a failure who retains goodwill towards men.
