CODE BUNGLES ECONOMIC BALANCE

THOSE who are blithely campaigning for the 30-hour week might possibly do well to note the report from New York that "about 50" shirt and blouse factories have decided to close because they can no longer pay the NRA scale of wages. The number of unemployed in Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey will thus, it is estimated, be increased by 20,000. The plan will remain inactive until the public is willing to pay the higher price for shirts and blouses necessitated by the restrictions of the codes.

It is said that adoption of the 30-hour week, without reduction of weekly salaries, would further increase prices without any equivalent increase in general purchasing power. Possibly the American Federation of Labor should give attention to the essential relationship between increases of wages and the volume of goods which can be sold at higher prices. Failure to maintain this vital economic balance can only result in an intensification of unemployment and depression.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

WITHOUT attempting to pass upon the merits or otherwise of the bill which has been introduced by Senator Wagner for a national system of old-age pensions, we believe that the great majority of Americans are in hearty agreement with the fundamental principle involved. We know of nobody who is not in favor of some effective system of providing for those who in old age, are unable to support themselves in decent comfort.

We believe that the plan of building up, during an individual's working life, a fund to which the worker, the employer and perhaps the State are contributors, which will provide an annuity for old age, is the soundest possible way of accomplishing this end. It removes completely any possible stigma of pauperism, which is inevitably attached to gratuitous grants of unearned benefits.

As to what the amount of such pensions should be, and whether the compulsory retirement age should be 60, 65 or 70 years, there is a great diversity of opinion. There is much to be said for the voluntary annuity system proposed for the "self-employed," whereby the farmer, the doctor, the lawyer or anyone else who is not attached to a payroll, can place a small part of his or her income in trust with the Government, from year to year, to accumulate until the retiring age is reached, when an income for life may then be derived from the accumulated fund. We understand such a system has been employed in England for more than two hundred years.

To the hopeful elderly persons who have been looking forward to immediate old-age pensions, the bill as introduced offers little solace. Provision is made for joint state and Federal relief for those who are practically destitute, but the age at which this relief shall begin may be placed as high as 70 years. This does not bring much comfort to those in their sixties who have been led to believe there was a chance of getting $200 a month right now.

At any rate, the Wagner-Lewis bill is a start toward a goal at which the nation, sooner or later, must arrive.

Check-Up Coming On Drivers' Cards

Dangers which threaten otherwise law-abiding motorists whose licenses have expired, are again emphasized by the Secretary of State's office. Few motorists realize that prosecution under the strict financial responsibility act, can be brought against them for failure to renew an operator's license.

The act was framed in this particular to give the state control over drivers who take to the road during periods for which their licenses are revoked. The fact remains, however, that consequences of simple expiration can be equally serious with those arising through willful evasion.

Conviction under the act entails revocation of operator's license for three years, unless the motorist posts with the Secretary of State, in the form of insurance, bonds, or cash, evidence of financial responsibility to the extent of $1,000 for property damage, with $5,000 and $10,000 personal liability added. Insurance companies charge extra premiums for filing the information required of them; the motorist is caused great inconvenience. There are at present, more than 205,000 motorists of the state operating automobiles with operator's licenses expired. Forgetfulness explains the bulk of these instances, but a check-up will soon be started.

FORTY-SECOND YEAR

TOWN MOURNS THE PASSING OF DEXTER G. LOOK

ESTEEMED CITIZEN WHO GAVE MORE THAN 50 YEARS OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY LAID TO REST SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Dexter G. Look, for more than half a century active in the business and civic life of Lowell, passed away last Friday morning, Jan. 25, at about 2:30 o'clock, at his home, 204 Vergennes Road, where he had been confined with illness for the past several months. Although not unexpected, Mr. Look's death came as a distinct shock to the people of this community, by all of whom he was held in the highest esteem and affection.

Former Governor Chase S. Osborn made this statement in a recent letter: "When I was governor there were enough normal schools and there are more than enough now!"

Aged Kent Farmer Freezes to Death

Peter Hoolsema, 80, of Saul Ste. Marie, formerly of Grand Rapids, and an uncle of Rev. A. J. Hoolsema of Lowell, was found frozen to death Saturday night in a field about 80 rods from the home where he lived alone for several years.

Mr. Hoolsema went to the village for provisions last Tuesday. He returned toward his home, about four miles from the village, and stopped a half mile away to visit neighbors. He then walked to within 30 rods of his home and apparently was blinded by the stormy weather. Tracks in the snow showed he wandered in circles to the point where his body was found, the groceries nearby. He was not missed until Saturday when two grandsons went to his home to cut wood for him. They reported to their father and a searching party found the body.

HUGE SUCCESS MARKS ANNUAL LOWELL B. OF T.

250 PERSONS HEAR ADDRESSES BY DISTINGUISHED GUESTS W. V. BURRAS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT, W. A. ROTH VICE PRESIDENT—FINE MUSICAL PROGRAM

The 29th annual banquet of the Lowell Board of Trade, held at the City hall on Wednesday evening, was a brilliant success. Nearly 250 persons were seated at the table and listened to a fine program of inspiring and instructive addresses, pleasing instrumental and vocal music.

Immediately following the dinner, a brief business session was held for the election of officers and the hearing of reports. W. V. Burras, who has given untiringly of his efforts for the success of the Board of Trade during the past year, was unanimously re-elected to succeed himself as president for the current year, and W. A. Roth was unanimously chosen as vice president. Three new directors were elected as follows: J. M. Hilderley, D. A. Wingeier and Bruce McQueen. The annual reports of Secretary J. K. Allard and Treasurer D. A. Wingeier were received and placed on file. These reports recited the achievements of the past year and revealed that all bills were paid and a small balance on hand. The report of the by-laws committee, composed of J. A. Arhart, E. C. Foreman and N. E. Borkerson, was unanimously adopted. These amendments corrected some features of the constitution of the B. of T. which had become obsolete through the passing of the years.

The entertainment features of the program included community singing led by W. W. Gunster, two violin solos by Bruce Walter, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. David Cox; a group of songs by the Melody Singers of Grand Rapids, composed of Russell Forward, Sydney Straight, Lynn Clark and Richard Bowen, Mrs. Dorothy McGraw, accompanist. Music was rendered during the banquet by an orchestra composed of Russell Smith, Royden Warner, Glen Converse and Ray Gates. All of these features were much enjoyed by the audience.

Preceding the dinner invocation was asked by the Rev. R. S. Miller. Following the dinner President W. V. Burras made a brief address in which he thanked the members of the Board of Trade for the splendid cooperation each one had given during the past year. He expressed his confidence that the organization would carry on in the future with even greater achievements than in the past, after which Mr. C. H. Runciman, who introduced as toastmaster, who introduced the distinguished guests of the evening, Hon. John C. Ketchum of Hastings, William Otto, secretary of the Lansing Chamber of Commerce; and Judge William W. Potter, Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court. The inspiring addresses of these distinguished guests were listened to with much interest and were greatly appreciated by all. Others who avoiced their presence and their presence and who responded with brief but appropriate remarks were State Tax Commissioner M. B. McPherson, who paid a deserved tribute to the memory of the late Dexter G. Look; N. C. Thomas and Frank W. Peterson. Other visitors introduced included Rep. Charles Feenstra, Atty. Gen. Jay W. Lindsey, Judge Taylor, Ivan E. Hull, Pros. Atty. Bartel J. Jonkman, County Road Commissioner Otto Hess, Atty. Gerald E. White, Atty. Ralph Hughes, Mr. Martin, Mr. Hovey, Mr. McDonald, Mr. Fisk, Mr. Watson, Mr. Jones, W. W. Gunster and Donald McPherson.

Address by Judge Potter
The "Yankee urge for self-government," which Michigan settlers brought here in their baggage, started Michigan on the road for more autonomy in territorial government and ultimately to full statehood. Judge Potter said in his address last night.

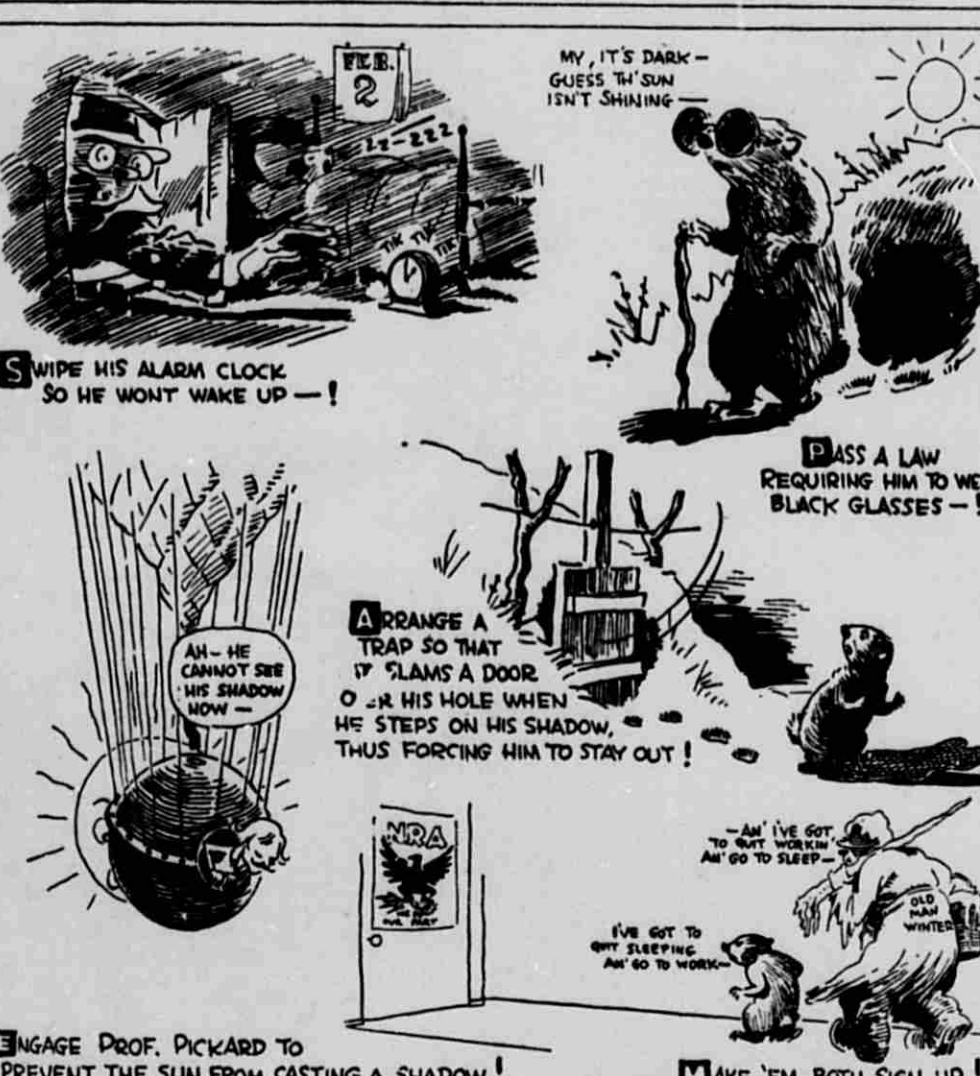

French and other early settlers in Michigan had been content under territorial government with all authority imposed upon them, Chief Justice Potter said, but when, with the opening of the Erie canal, Yankee settlers began to pour into Michigan, they early sought to have a say in their own government such as they had been accustomed to in their old homes. They first obtained the privilege of electing a territorial legislative council, subject to approval at Washington and ultimately certain other local offices of the state. As soon as the settlers believed they had the 60,000 inhabitants required under the ordinance of 1787 for admission to the state, the chief justice said, they proceeded to take a census in 1834. The results showing they had more than the required population, from then on they pushed their claims for admission as a state.

Traditionally Michigan's statehood has been dated from 1837, when congress adopted the resolution admitting the state.

Michigan was pictured by Chief Justice Potter as a decidedly progressive state a century ago. The new state sought railroads and canals and other internal improvements, he said, and took a whirl at government ownership of railroads, only to sell them to private parties a few years later, when it was discovered that the state-owned railroads had simply served to build up a mighty political machine without returning any profit to the government.

"At one time," observed Chief Justice Potter, "it was impressed upon the people of Michigan that it was the business of the government to attend to the affairs of government and that private enterprise should be left to private initiative and private capital."

The chief justice continued: "People fight over the same things again and again, you see. They begin again as soon as those who had to pay off the debts the last time die off."

The following resolutions were presented by M. N. Henry and on motion were unanimously adopted:
Resolutions of Respect
WHEREAS, Death has removed from our midst one of our most esteemed members, Dexter G. Look; therefore, it is fitting that we pause to pay tribute to one who has been so closely associated with us, and to give expression to that affection that flows so freely from all our hearts, Lowell and the State of Michigan have lost a most noble and useful citizen. He will be greatly missed. We have all been enriched by our association with him. It has been a privilege to have known him;

THEREFORE, Be it resolved, that we extend our deepest sympathy to Mrs. Look, Mr. and Mrs. Sewell and other relatives and friends; that this resolution become a part of the records of the Lowell Board of Trade; and a copy be sent to the family.

McConnell Home Destroyed By Fire

The large frame residence on the David McConnell farm in southwest Lowell was almost completely destroyed by fire on Wednesday forenoon of this week. The cause of the fire is thought to have been a defective chimney.

The fire department and a large number of neighbors responded to the alarm and succeeded in saving the household goods, but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save the house. It is understood that $3,000 insurance was carried.

Howard Peckham has been offered and has accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Grand Rapids Press and will begin his duties Feb. 1. Mr. Peckham is well fitted by education and experience for this kind of work and will render valuable service to The Press and its readers.

Wonder if we will see the new Flat River fountain moved this summer to a better location—say at the head of Picnic Island. "Distance lends enchantment to the view," you know. We should not be too critical of first efforts. The fountain erected last summer may not have been all that could be desired, neither was the first automobile possessed of the streamlined beauty we see in cars of today.

Two local men have recently been honored by the state organizations in which they hold memberships. M. N. Henry, local druggist, was on Tuesday of this week chosen chairman of the State Board of Pharmacy and M. B. McPherson, Vergennes-sp. farmer, was recently chosen chairman of the State Tax Commission. Both men have been members of their respective organizations for the past few years.

CHANGES MADE IN 'CORN-HOG PLAN FOR 1935

LESS REDUCTION IN GRAIN AND MEAT REQUIRED—PAYMENTS ARE ON DIFFERENT BASIS IN ACCORDANCE WITH DEMAND FOR THESE COMMODITIES

Plans for handling the 1935 Michigan corn-hog contracts were announced by John B. Wilson, AAA, Washington, D. C., at meetings for county agents and local allotment committees held at Flint, Kalamazoo and East Lansing.

The major phases of the 1935 contract are similar to those of the 1934 contract which was approved by a majority vote of Michigan hog and corn producers. The government agrees to make certain payments to corn and to hog producers who regulate their production in accordance with the demand for these commodities.

Contract signers are asked to reduce their corn acreage at least 10 and not more than 30 per cent of their base acreage for 1932 and 1933. This is the same base period as was used for the 1934 contract. The reduction asked for corn this year is less than that required in 1934.

For the reduction in corn made by Michigan contract signers, benefit payments of 35 cents per bushel will be made upon the estimated yield of the land retired from production. The growers pro-rata share of the administrative expenses will be deducted from the benefit payments.

Signers of hog contracts are asked to reduce hog numbers by not less than 10 per cent of their base production. Benefit payments of 15 dollars per head on the 10 per cent reduction will be made by the agricultural adjustment administration. The base period for the 1935 contract is the same as for last year's contract. Pro-rata shares of administrative expenses are deducted from the benefit payments.

Signing contracts is entirely voluntary; local meetings will be held in each producing section to discuss the contract requirements and each grower will determine for himself if he wishes to cooperate with the controlled production plan. Local meetings will be held in the hands of local men known to the producers.

Benefits on the corn contracts will be made in two payments, the first 15 cents a bushel after signing the contract, and the second 20 cents per bushel on proof of compliance with the contract. The payments on hogs are made in two installments of $7.50 per head on the 10 per cent reduction.

Restrictions on planting crops on contract acreages will be somewhat less stringent than in 1934. Each contract signer should talk with his local committee or with the county agent about the planting restrictions. The restrictions are subject to change by the secretary of agriculture in case of any necessity such as last year's drought.

Any bona fide producer is eligible to sign a contract. Owners of farm land who have ceased the production of hogs or corn can not sign contracts nor obtain benefit payments. Producers who did not sign contracts last year can do so this year if they wish.

Some interesting statistics are contained in the Secretary of State's annual abstracts of sheriffs' reports, compiled this week, for the year ending June 30, 1934. Total jail commitments for the year then ending, were 51,369 people; average duration in jail was slightly over 11 days; 1,740 were convicted of crime and sent to state prisons. Total cost of jail maintenance was $1,514,192.53, of which $935,062 was for sheriffs' salaries, fee board and keep of prisoners. The average weekly maintenance cost of jail prisoners was $14.10 per person.

Detroit automobile workers have written the first chapter of their declaration of independence from the rule of all union organizers. Five, unaffiliated labor stood 90 per cent strong Friday on the face of returns from eight major factories in which the Automobile Labor Board has conducted elections by direction of President Roosevelt. The combined strength of eight unions totaled only 10 per cent. Most aggressive in attempts to organize the industry, the American Federation of Labor had suffered perhaps its greatest loss of prestige. Slightly more than 5 per cent of the vote was cast with allegiance to that organization.

One evening in October When I was far from sober And dragging home a load with manly pride, My feet began to stutter, So I laid down by the gutter And a pig came up and parked right by my side. Then I warbled: "It's fair weather When good fellows get together." Till a lady passing by was heard to say: "You can tell a man who boozes By the playmates that he chooses." Then the pig got up and slowly walked away. —Charlotte Republican-Tribune.

Farm Account Books Are Now Available

Kent County farmers who are keeping account books in cooperation with the farm management department at Michigan State College will meet specialists from that place next week Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 4, 5 and 6, to have their 1934 books checked in and those started for 1935. Farmers who are interested in this work and desire to start books should get in touch with County Agent K. K. Vining who will be glad to discuss this project with them and assist in starting a book. The account books are 20c.

The county agent's office has a quantity of account books supplied by the AAA which are free for the asking. Farmers desiring these books may have them for the asking.

Lecture courses don't seem too popular, and many people seem afraid that if they attend them, they might learn something.

THE administration's $4,000,000 work relief bill delegates to the President huge powers. They are demanded in the name of emergency. The theory is that in times of great stress a Chief Executive must be able to act swiftly in the public interest and that his hands must be free. No one would dispute the need of such powers. The bill has been made under the New Deal during the greater part of two years. The question arises whether the underlying causes of the emergency are being met by the bill, or whether delegations of power to the Executive and the program which has been undertaken.

This is the bill which is to be put through the House under a special rule permitting no amendments to be offered except by the committee which is sponsoring the measure. It is to be hurried through the Senate by the same rule. It is in the name of emergency, to make the emergency nature of the bill effective as an argument for speed. There has been included provision for the transfer of $100,000,000 from former appropriations to care for the relief rolls until the work relief program is put into effect. The need of such powers to keep the relief work going is said to be imminent.

The bill provides that the money may be used for any useful Federal or non-Federal work. Could any description be wider, could more money be given? There is a work relief bill which carries the largest single appropriations ever sent to Congress, and which includes delegation of power, which ostensibly give to the President the right to make over the Federal or non-Federal work. Editor Spicer must have had a vision of what was going on in more than supervision of the old-age pension law in Michigan for and promotion of the general welfare. Nevertheless, it is to be hoped that Congress will be recreant to its duty if it fails to back up the Welfare Director. Mr. Dilman moved the old-age pension bureau up to its high-water mark of a hundred employees last Friday. He finds that a total of $306,618 had already paid out $287,958.64 in administration costs and only $18,659.36 for pensions. Mr. Dilman proposed to remedy this. When he was state highway commissioner he refused to allow politics to interfere with his business. He said that the welfare department must be considered on a non-political basis. Using the welfare department to create political jobs or to aid in political advantage is a flagrant misuse of public funds and must be stopped.

4-H Club work in Kent County will be guided in the future by a county club Council of seven members. These people were chosen from a group of 30 people who met with State Club House Leader A. C. Kettner, Mrs. Mary Thompson, District Director, and County Extension Agent and K. C. Vining, County Agent.

The growing demand for club work necessitated the help and assistance of a group in planning and carrying out a well rounded club program.

The county was divided into six districts and representatives elected from each with one at large. The northeast section had as its representative, Homer Armstrong of Sand Lake East Center, E. V. Cregar, electrician, of Sand Lake, and Mrs. M. J. Spangenberg of Spartan West Center. Kelvin Lewis of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was elected representative at large. Mrs. Kelvin Lewis of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was elected representative at large. Mrs. Kelvin Lewis of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was elected representative at large.

Much is said about the wolf at the door, but if the wolf comes down the door nowadays he is likely to find several snakes lined up ahead of him.

As Washington declared its farewell address, "Reason and experience forbid us to believe that national morality can long prevail where religious principles are disregarded." These principles are understood by both capital and labor and diligently applied to the social structure are the only effective answer to the communist.

Ultra-Violet Lamps Aid Doctors

An aid to the doctor in treating certain ills is the ultra-violet lamp. Such lamps with quartz bulbs have been used but are necessarily expensive because of the quartz. Glass is much less expensive and also much less effective, since only a fractional part of the ultra violet rays filter through the ordinary glass bulb. The solution lies in making the glass as thin as a soap bubble—2/10,000 of an inch. Certainly a whole bulb made of this glass would also have about the durability of a soap bubble. The secret lies in making the bulb of normal thickness and setting it in a window made of the thin glass. This passes a concentrated beam of ultra-violet with which the doctor may treat various ailments.—Scientific American.

Dexter G. Look

Biographical Sketch

Dexter G. Look was born on a farm at Farmer's Creek, Lapeer county, March 3, 1863. His antecedents were French on his father's side and English on his mother's side, his father's grandfather having been born in France. He attended country school winters and worked on his father's farm summers until he was 14 years of age, when the family moved to Lowell. Here he attended the high school, graduating on the English course in 1880. He started at once to learn the drug business, working the first year without pay in order to get a start in the business he had always wished to follow.

He clerked six years in the drug store of his brother, John G. Look, at the end of which period he purchased on borrowed capital a half interest in the drug business conducted by J. B. Yeiter. At the end of six years he purchased his partner's interest and conducted it alone until October, 1932 when he sold the business to John M. Hilderley, rounding out 32 years as a Lowell druggist.

Mr. Look had always taken an active interest in public affairs and in the progress of Lowell and Kent county. He was a member of the village council sixteen years and six years its President. During these years a municipal lighting plant was installed, a new City hall was built and other improvements made. He was a member of the school board about fourteen years, five years its president. He was actively interested as director and Vice President of the City State Bank of Lowell, was treasurer of the Lowell Specialty Co., the largest manufacturer of hand sprayers in the United States, for twenty years until the business was sold to H. D. Hudson, of Minneapolis. He served as director of the War and acted as secretary. He served several years as chairman of the Michigan State Pharmaceutical Association and was actively interested in all meritorious measures for the improvement of the public health which came before the legislature during the fourteen years of service on this board. Mr. Look was first elected to the legislature in 1922 where he served 12 years, completing his last term on Dec. 31, 1934. For the past five sessions he served on the Ways and Means committee, the most important committee in the Legislature. In 1927 he was offered the Speakership of the House, which he declined, preferring to serve on the floor. He was an ex-president of both the Michigan State Retail Club and the Michigan State Pharmaceutical Association. He was a member of the Blue Lodge and Chapter of the local Masonic fraternity, the O. E. S., local lodge of Odd Fellows, and of the Consistory and Shrine of Grand Rapids, and a trustee of the Lowell Congregational church.

Mr. Look is survived by the widow (nee Evelyn Rickert), to whom he was married on Dec. 3, 1885, and by one daughter, Mrs. Frank Newell, to whom the sincere sympathy of the entire community is extended in the loss of the beloved husband and father.

As the party was passing over this rudely constructed bridge, two members (namely Mrs. Day and Mr. Lampkin) fell into the water, and although only their feet got wet, they were made the targets of jests by their more sure-footed friends the rest of the evening.
