Early-Day Village Ordinances Now Make Interesting Reading

The seventy-one ordinances by which the village of Lowell is governed are contained in a 91-page typewritten book bound in green covers. Since only one copy exists, Clerk L. E. Johnson accords it a measure of the watchful care given medieval bibles which were chained in the churches.

What would happen if this volume of promulgated edicts were destroyed is open to conjecture. Residents along Riverside Drive might permit their swine to run at large without fear of punishment.

The modernizing of the municipal "laws" has been under consideration for twenty years, but it is one of those desirable things which towns, like individuals, forever put off until tomorrow.

Theodore C. Shepard Laid to Rest Monday

Theodore C. Shepard, 60, an esteemed resident of this community for many years, died unexpectedly at his home here last Saturday.

Brief Paragraphs of News and Information on a Variety of Topics

Schools of the United States employ more than one million teachers, one-fourth of whom are men. All the school property in this country is valued at twelve billion dollars.

Ten States, reports the Census Bureau lost in population from 1930 to July, 1935. These states were California, Arizona, New Mexico, Nebraska, Kansas, Mississippi, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Twenty-six cents a day pays for one day's education of a city child, according to the United States Office of Education which estimates that the bill for teaching the "average" child amounts to $96.18 a year.

At 4 o'clock every morning of the year, except under extraordinary circumstances, regular United States fliers take to the air to make weather records which are the basis for daily weather forecasts.

The United States not only has the fastest long distance trains, 800 miles or more, but has a greater number of trains running 60 miles or more per hour, than any other country in the world, according to a survey by the Association of American Railroads.

The war against "Sudden Death" is showing results: Automobile deaths in 86 principal cities during the first 33 weeks of this year totaled 4,814 compared with 5,181 during the corresponding period of 1935, according to the Bureau of the Census.

Almost two million dollars in fines were collected by the Federal Government in criminal cases, originating from law enforcement operations of Treasury agencies during the six months ended June 30, 1936. Bulk of the fines came from violations of the alcohol tax regulations.

A confidential study made by an eminent Governmental economist, contrasting recovery in this country with the rest of the world, shows that progress in the United States has been slower than in most other nations. The study shows that world recovery started in 1932.

Dairy cooperatives, the largest of farmers' marketing organizations, had an $80,000,000 increase in business during the 1935-36 marketing season compared to 1934-35. Total sales of 2,270 dairy cooperatives reporting from 45 States to the Farm Credit Administration amounted to $520,000,000 during the recent season.

More than 150,000 fingerprints now are filed in the civil identification section of the Justice Department. Filing of prints in this section is on a voluntary basis and is being stressed by the Department because a complete file of this type would enable identification of unknown dead and persons wandering the country as amnesia victims.

Recalling that not long ago pictures of prize-fights were banned from the theatres, the Osage Press hazards the guess that "it may not be long before we pack the theatres to see official pictures of hangings." Maybe, maybe—but it isn't likely a movie of a hanging will engender in the mind of youth an ambition to show as the chief figure.

Bids for the construction of a new ferry boat to be placed in operation at the Straits of Mackinac will be opened October 1. The boat, which is to be in operation by next June, will be of the motor type and will have a capacity of 150 motor vehicles which will double the transportation capacity of the state-operated fleet of boats at the Straits.

More than one-fourth of all radio sets now in use in the country are six years or more old while only about four out of every hundred were made last year. Two-thirds of all the sets have five to seven tubes, one-fourth have eight or more tubes while only six out of a hundred have four or less. These facts were revealed in a Federal Communications Commission survey.

Federal Reserve Board has used for the first time its power to cite a bank official for "continued unsafe or unsound practices in conducting the business" of his bank. In such cases, after the Board arrives at a decision on the alleged "unsound practices," if circumstances warrant, the banker may be removed from his office unobtrusively so that no harm to the bank's credit occurs.

The enormous toll of lives exacted by the prolonged heat wave in July was brought forcefully home in the final compilation of death rates during that period by the Michigan Department of Health. Commissioner C. C. Slemmons announces that 956 deaths were directly attributed to excessive heat during that single month, 336 being recorded in Detroit alone. This was a startling contrast with the 25 deaths recorded in July, 1935.

Thursday, Oct. 1, has been named by Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald as the special day on which the schools may "mobilize for safety." His proclamation brings added emphasis and importance to the new curriculum bulletin, "Education for Safety," just released by the Department of Public Instruction and the Michigan Safety Council. On that day, it is hoped, every teacher and every group of children will begin plans for a definite program of safety education which will result in the reduction of accidents in the school, in their homes, and on the streets and highways.

WILLING TO BARGAIN

"Well, I never," murmured Smith, looking up from his paper. "It says here that a man out West bartered his wife for a cow."

His little wife looked shocked. "You wouldn't barter me for a cow, would you, Henry darling?" she purred.

He was silent. Then: "Of course not, Henrietta," he replied. "But I'd hate to have some one tempt me with a good second-hand car."—Answers Magazine.

The minister met a gamekeeper. "Come, my good fellow, why is it I never see you at church?"

"Well, sir, I don't want to make your congregation smaller."

"I don't see very well how you could."

"Well, sir, you see, if I came to church the rest of the parish would go poaching."

Muse?

"Did you ever hear anything so perfectly stunning?" exclaimed the daughter of the house as she turned the radio on to a new jazz tune.

"No," replied her father. "The nearest thing I ever heard to it was when a truck loaded with empty milk cans collided with another truck that was loaded with live ducks."—Prairie Farmer.

Government Beef

By GLENN R. VERNAM

DETE TURLOCK never did like Indians. "A lazy, thieving lot!" he always called them. He had had trouble with them even before Uncle Sam set them back on a smaller reservation in the dry hills and opened the Cherokee Strip for white settlement. Then after he and his three boys homesteaded a section of the choice end of Bull Creek Bottom and started up the P. T. ranch his complaints increased. Bull Creek had been the pet stamping ground of old Chief Red Robe's outfit for years, and every chance they got the reds would slip off the reservation for a few days' hunting and fishing around the old home.

This always got under Pete's hide. He said his government had given him that land to have and to hold, and he didn't want any sneaking heathens prowling around over it. He claimed that congress had donated them more land of their own than they deserved after the way they had acted toward the settlers, and if they would stay home and farm it they would have enough to eat without catching his fish and stealing his beef.

With the buffalo and antelope practically cleaned out they had a pretty hard time filling the stew pot. And their sporadic attempts at farming didn't help much. It is hard to make successful soil tillers out of hunters right off the bat, especially on that kind of land.

Altogether it was kind of a tough set-up. When the reds got about so homesick they would drift over around Bull Creek and start trespassing on Pete's domain. Pete would run them off to preserve the sanctity of his home and they would slip a knife under a few steer hides to preserve their taste for red meat.

So it was quite a relief to everybody concerned when the government began issuing beef rations to the Indians. Pete did plenty of complaining about the use of good government funds to feed the lazy rascals; but the reds found it easier to ride in to the agency and get their rations than to pull off night raids on the P. T. Herds, so he didn't say too much. Most of his talk was slurring comment on what he called "the worthless, no-good beggars. Rather lay around the agency and live on government beef than work for a living!"

Red Robe's bunch naturally caught plenty of these remarks, but they never took any visible notice. Just went on drawing their rations and going home to smoke in the shade and watch their ponies graze on the sun-cured grass.

Then almost over night everything changed. A couple of wildcat old men were the main cause. They drifted up to Red Robe's corner of the reservation and started backing a lunch with a hole in the ground. The result surprised them about as much as it did everybody else. By the time they finally got the grease capped and some of the grease wiped out of their eyes they saw old men coming over the horizon like a grasshopper plague.

The Indian land had grown thin grass and thinner corn, but it knew how to produce a real crop of oil. Within five years the oil rigs had the whole reservation looking like a harrow turned wrong side up. The reds had discarded their buckboards for twelve-cylinder cars and were living fourteen-cylinder lives with the cutouts open.

It was kind of a joke on old Pete and his boys, though they couldn't seem to see the funny side of it. In fact, they were so busy trying to raise fifty dollar steers on fifteen dollar hay, besides keeping up their taxes and mortgage interest at the same time, that they had about quit laughing.

Pete finally surrendered to old age and adversity and moved to town. In the meantime, old Red Robe had taken out citizenship papers and bought up the mortgage on the old P. T. so he could spend his declining years among youthful memories. The forty-room wild-up he built down among the cottonwoods on Bull Creek was big enough to accommodate all his kids and in-laws. Most of them moved in with him to help him raise cows and breed polo ponies.

It was one morning last summer right after the big drouth had made its sweeping clean-up that Red Robe rode into town in his latest snub-nosed, stream-lined rolling castle. As he came up Third street on his way uptown he suddenly eased up on the throttle and slanted a glance across the street. Smith's old hardware building sported a brand new sign. "Federal Relief Headquarters," he thoughtfully spelled out. There was quite a crowd gathered around the front of the building watching a man unload a truckful of boxes which were labeled "Packed for Government Use. Not to Be Sold!"

As his glance finished its swift scrutiny, Red Robe's old eyes picked out Pete Turlock and his three boys among the crowd. He grunted disdainfully. "Lasy damn' tribe! All time lay 'round town like big bums. No save, no work, no try. Just smoke in shade an' beg for govment beef. Huh!"

Hidden Taxes

"If the major portion of the government's income is obtained from indirect and hidden taxes—taxes upon such things as food, clothing, gasoline and cigarettes—then the main burden falls upon those of small income and the cost of government is hidden. In this case, it is the wage earner, the salaried worker, the farmer, and the small business man, who have to pay most of the bill."—Alf M. Landon at Buffalo, N. Y., August 26, 1936.

Along Main St. Taking Steps To Kill Amendments To Constitution

Bids for the construction of a new ferry boat to be placed in operation at the Straits of Mackinac will be opened October 1.

Ten States, reports the Census Bureau, lost its population in 1930 to July, 1935. These were California, Arizona, New Mexico, Nebraska, Kansas, Mississippi, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Twenty-six cents a day pays for one-day education of a city child, according to the United States Office of Education which estimates that the bill for teaching the "average" child amounts to $96.18 a year.

The war against "Sudden Death" is showing results. Automobile deaths in 86 principal cities during the first 33 weeks of this year totaled 4,814 compared with 5,181 during the corresponding period of 1935, according to the Bureau of the Census.

A confidential study made by an eminent Governmental economist, contrasting recovery in this country and in the rest of the world, shows that progress in the United States has been slower than in most other nations. The study shows that world recovery started in 1932.

Dairy cooperatives, the largest of farmers' marketing organizations, had an $80,000,000 increase in business during the first 33 weeks of this year compared to 1935. Total sales of 2,270 dairy cooperatives reporting from 45 States to the Farm Credit Administration amounted to $520,000,000 during the recent season.

More than 150,000 fingerprints now are filed in the civil identification section of the Justice Department. Filing of prints in this section is on a voluntary basis and is being stressed by the Department because a complete file of this type would enable identification of unknown dead and persons wandering the country as amnesia victims.

Recalling that not long ago pictures of prize-fights were banned from the theatres, the Osage Press hazards the guess that "it may not be long before we pack the theatres with a variety of pictures of hangings." Maybe, maybe—but it isn't likely a movie of a hanging will engender in the mind of youth an ambition to show as the chief figure.

The council has approved three building permits, that of Gary C. L. Bradley for a gas station and garage at Monroe Avenue and East Main St., the Norman E. Borgerson property, Mrs. Jennie Nash, a garage, and L. A. Weaver, a 10 x 12 extension on the rear of his meat market.

More than one-fourth of all radios now in use in this country are six years or more old while only four out of every fifty are under one year old. Two-thirds of all sets have five to seven tubes, one-fourth have eight or more tubes while only six out of a hundred have four or less. These facts were revealed in a Federal Commission survey.

Federal Reserve Board has used for the first time its power to cite a bank official for "continued unsafe or unsound practice in conducting the business" of his bank. In such cases, after the board arrives at a decision on the alleged "unsound practices," if circumstances warrant, the banker may be removed from his office until such time as no harm to the bank's credit occurs.

The enormous toll of lives exacted by the prolonged heat wave in July was brought forcibly home in the final compilation of death rates during that period by the Michigan Department of Health. Commissioner C. S. Simons announces that 956 deaths were directly attributed to excessive heat during that single month, 336 being recorded in Detroit alone. This was a startling contrast with the 25 deaths recorded in July, 1935.

Thursday, Oct. 1, has been named by Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald as the special day on which the schools may "mobilize for safety." His proclamation brings added emphasis and importance to the new curriculum bulletin, "Education for Safety," just released by the Department of Public Instruction and on that day, it is hoped, every teacher and every group of children will begin plans for a definite program of safety education which will result in the reduction of accidents in the school, in their home, and on the streets and highways.

IMPORTS WORRY THE FARMERS OF Michigan

THE FARMERS of Michigan have been greatly worried about the greatly increased imports of farm products into the United States and especially Michigan since the tariff reduction have been made. While Michigan is not a government-owned state, the commission of agriculture, however, has repeatedly pointed out that it is in process of becoming a government-owned state.

HOME TOWN THOUGHTS

People are always complaining about the things which do not go to their benefit. It is the duty of the home town to do on behalf of the home town. The complainants would do all they could, if it would help a lot.

"Seeing is believing," they say. When people see what Michigan does for them, they believe it, because they know they would not spend money advertising to buy a product.

UNJUST AND UNAMERICAN

MICHIGAN ranks eighth among the states in the amount of money contributed to the Tennessee Valley Authority, according to figures just received by the Committee on Public Expenditures on the basis of its own collection in the fiscal year 1935.

Seed From Canada Makes Joke of Wallace Warning

CHICAGO—Continued dumping of Canadian alfalfa and clover seed into the United States has made a joke of the warning of Secretary Wallace that such a practice would be a national disgrace.

The proportion of the alfalfa seed in the alfalfa crop is about 10 per cent. The alfalfa crop in the United States is about 100,000,000 bushels.

Politics

By JOHN H. O'BRIEN

Republicans and Democrats are taking what comfort they can from the fact that the state primaries—with the G. O. P. following setting much the better of the lot.

In the first place, the Republican vote was checked by the fact that sixty per cent of the total vote was Republican—demoting a lively interest in Republican politics this year.

The followers of the elephant are also taking a quiet satisfaction in the fact that the Republican vote was checked by the fact that sixty per cent of the total vote was Republican.

Too True

The schoolmaster wanted to know whether the boys had an understanding of the functions of a British consulate.

"Supposing," he began, "someone took you up in an airplane, and after a long flight, dropped you thousands of miles from home in a country quite foreign, what place would you seek first of all?"

An eager hand was raised. "Please, sir, the hospital!"—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Hardly Worth It

The conceited young man had talked about himself till the girl felt she could endure it no longer.

"It costs a great deal more than one would think to become a broad-minded and intelligent man of the world," he remarked, solemnly.

The girl saw her chance and took it.

"I suppose so," she said, "and I don't blame you for saving your money."—Stray Stories Magazine.

SOMETHING

Genius

A surgeon, an architect, and a politician were arguing as to whose profession was the oldest.

Said the surgeon: "Eve was made from Adam's rib, and that surely was a surgical operation."

"Maybe," said the architect, "but prior to that, order was created out of chaos, and that was an architectural job."

"But," interrupted the politician, "somebody created the chaos first!"

A Few Little Smiles

WILLING TO BARGAIN

"Well, I never," murmured Smith, looking up from his paper. "It says here that a man out West bartered his wife for a cow."

His little wife looked shocked.

"You wouldn't barter me for a cow, would you, Henry darling?" she purred.

He was silent. Then:

"Of course not, Henrietta," he replied. "But I'd hate to have some one tempt me with a good second-hand car."—Answers Magazine.

Not to Be Forwarded

"So far, so good," said the examiner. "Now, then, in case of fatal accident, where do you want your body sent?"

"Where do I want de wch sent, boss?" inquired the applicant.

"Your body—it would have to be shipped somewhere, you know."

The candidate made answer as he edged toward the door.

"Er you don't mind, mister," he said, "I'll take it along wid me now." And he did.

Fooled for a "D"

"I fooled them at school today," announced Johnny.

"How's that?" asked dad.

"They asked me to give Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and I said he never lived there."—Our Paper.

SURE SHOT

"Do you think women would make good soldiers?"

"If they were as persistent in battle as in argument they would be invincible."

Cat's Away

The minister met a gamekeeper. "Come, my good fellow, why is it I never see you at church?"

"Well, sir, I don't want to make your congregation smaller."

"I don't see very well how you could."

"Well, sir, you see, if I came to church the rest of the parish would go poaching."

Musical

"Did you ever hear anything so perfectly stunning?" exclaimed the daughter of the house as she turned the radio on to a new jazz tune.

"No," replied her father. "The nearest thing I ever heard to it was when a truck loaded with empty milk cans collided with another truck that was loaded with live ducks."—Prairie Farmer.

Warrior

A man on trial for his life was being examined by a group of alienists. Suddenly one doctor shouted at him: "Quick, how many feet has a centipede?"

The man came back in a dry, dry voice:

"Gad, is that all you have to worry about?"

Government Beef

By GLENN R. VERNAM
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

PEPE TURLOCK never did like Indians. "A lazy, thieving lot!" he always called them. He had had trouble with them even before Uncle Sam set them back on a smaller reservation in the dry hills and opened the Cherokee Strip for white settlement. Then after he and his three boys homesteaded a section of the choice end of Bull Creek Bottom and started up the P. T. ranch his complaints increased. Bull Creek had been the pet stamping ground of old Chief Red Robe's outfit for years, and every chance they got the reds would slip off the reservation for a few days' hunting and fishing around the old home.

This always got under Pete's hide. He said his government had given him that land to have and to hold, and he didn't want any sneaking heathens prowling around over it. He claimed that congress had donated them more land of their own than they deserved after the way they had acted toward the settlers, and if they would stay home and farm it they would have enough to eat without catching his fish and stealing his beef.

With the buffalo and antelope practically cleaned out they had a pretty hard time filling the stew pot. And their sporadic attempts at farming didn't help much. It is hard to make successful soil tillers out of hunters right off the bat, especially on that kind of land.

Altogether it was kind of a tough set-up. When the reds got about so homesick they would drift over around Bull Creek and start trespassing on Pete's domain. Pete would run them off to preserve the sanctity of his home and they would slip a knife under a few steer hides to preserve their taste for red meat.

So it was quite a relief to everybody concerned when the government began issuing beef rations to the Indians. Pete did plenty of complaining about the use of good government funds to feed the lazy rascals; but the reds found it easier to ride in to the agency and get their rations than to pull off night raids on the P. T. Herds, so he didn't say too much. Most of his talk was slurring comment on what he called "the worthless, no-good beggars. Rather lay around the agency and live on government beef than work for a living!"

Red Robe's bunch naturally caught plenty of these remarks, but they never took any visible notice. Just went on drawing their rations and going home to smoke in the shade and watch their ponies graze on the sun-cured grass.

Then almost over night everything changed. A couple of wildcat oil men were the main cause. They drifted up to Red Robe's corner of the reservation and started backing a bunch with a hole in the ground. The result surprised them about as much as it did everybody else. By the time they finally got the gusher capped and some of the grease wiped out of their eyes they saw oil men coming over the horizon like a grasshopper plague.

The Indian land had grown thin grass and thinner corn, but it knew how to produce a real crop of oil. Within five years the oil rigs had the whole reservation looking like a harrow turned wrong side up. The reds had discarded their buckboards for twelve-cylinder cars and were living fourteen-cylinder lives with the cutouts open.

It was kind of a joke on old Pete and his boys, though they couldn't seem to see the funny side of it. In fact, they were so busy trying to raise fifty dollar steers on fifteen dollar hay, besides keeping up their taxes and mortgage interest at the same time, that they had about quit laughing.

Pete finally surrendered to old age and adversity and moved to town. In the meantime, old Red Robe had taken out citizenship papers and bought up the mortgage on the old P. T. so he could spend his declining years among youthful memories. The forty-room wicket he built down among the cottonwoods on Bull Creek was big enough to accommodate all his kids and in-laws. Most of them moved in with him to help him raise cows and breed polo ponies.

It was one morning last summer right after the big drought had made its sweeping clean-up that Red Robe rode into town in his latest snub-nosed, stream-lined rolling castle. As he came up Third street on his way uptown he suddenly eased up on the throttle and glanced across the street. Smith's old hardware building sported a brand new sign. "Federal Relief Headquarters," he thoughtfully spelled out. There was quite a crowd gathered around the front of the building watching a man unload a truckful of boxes which were labeled "Packed for Government Use. Not to Be Sold!"

As his glance finished its swift scrutiny, Red Robe's old eyes picked out Pete Turlock and his three boys among the crowd. He grunted disdainfully.

"Lazy dums' tribe! All time lay backin' town like big bums. No work, no work, no try. Just smoke in shade an' beg for gov'ment food. Huh!"

King Now Deal Prizes

During 1936 the Roosevelt administration caused crop reductions of $1,427,000 acres. During the same year the importation of foodstuffs that previously had been grown in this country represented the production from 33,483,236 acres. Farmers in foreign countries are loud in their praises of the Roosevelt administration.

Hidden Taxes

"If the major portion of the government's income is obtained from indirect and hidden taxes—taxes upon such things as food, clothing, gasoline and cigarettes—then the main burden falls upon those of small income and the cost of government is hidden. In this case, it is the wage earner, the salaried worker, the farmer, and the small business man, who have to pay most of the bill."—Alf M. Landon at Buffalo, N. Y., August 26, 1936.

SOMETHING

Genius

A surgeon, an architect, and a politician were arguing as to whose profession was the oldest.

Said the surgeon: "Eve was made from Adam's rib, and that surely was a surgical operation."

"Maybe," said the architect, "but prior to that, order was created out of chaos, and that was an architectural job."

"But," interrupted the politician, "somebody created the chaos first!"

Wear—I read de odder da; dat at de age of sixty-five a man has taken in 95 tons of food.

Happy—Ahl! Dat would be a grand life's work to point ter.
