INDIAN SUMMER

THE POETS become ecstatic about Indian summer, but who can tell when it comes? Is it in September, October, or November? Anyway, the ancient traditions have it that the old Indians were too indolent or absorbed in hunting to attend to their crops when the palefades did. So they postponed cultivation until the warm days of autumn, when it might be too late.

New Laws Effective Soon Of Concern To Nearly Every Citizen

Loyalty has been checked against primary poll lists. An effort to erase racial lines is implied in a new law that provides triple damages in cases of proved discrimination in treatment by hotels, restaurants, or other public places, because of color, race or creed. Extensions of time for the purchase of automobile license plates will be held under a new law that fixes the date for the purchase of plates at March 1 instead of Jan. 1 as has been the case in the past. The license year still would begin as of Jan. 1. Truck drivers may not work more than 12 consecutive hours under another law, designed to prevent accidents caused by sleepy men at the wheel. Other new laws of general concern provide: For the free textbooks for needy pupils if boards of education so desire; for revision of game and fish laws; for standardization of state inheritance tax; for membership of the township treasurer on township boards for standard prices on standard goods as a curb on price-cutting practices; for a 24-hour limit on duty for firemen in every 48 hours except in emergencies; for higher type juries by eliminating exemption for ministers, doctors, and others who hitherto have been excused; for increased penalty for tossing stench bombs by making such act a felony, and for the establishment of uniform traffic signs by the state highway department and the state police.

Tucker, registered nurse and nursing instructor of the Kent county chapter of the American Red Cross, each Tuesday morning from nine to eleven for a twelve week period.

"The Red Cross not only serves the people in great disasters, like the 1937 flood, but also continuously serves each community in life saving, first aid and home hygiene training. It is for such worthy purposes that local funds are raised each year during the Roll Call, and helps us all realize that the American Red Cross is always prepared."
