

THE PRESIDENT has issued an embargo against the shipment of scrap iron and scrap steel to any nation outside this hemisphere...

The United States is still shipping great quantities of aviation gasoline to Japan. If the President knows the American people and their wishes in this matter, he will also put a stop to that and should do so without further delay.

HEROES OF THE GRIDIRON

BASEBALL is called the national game. But when the football begins to thud over the gridiron field, and the grandstands are filled with yelling rovers, and the colorful girls wear their school and college flags with ecstasy, it seems to take the good old game of football to really stir the American heart to its depths.

Draft Problems Must Be Solved By Local Boards

Answers to Questions in Minds of All From 21 to 35, Inc.

The tough nuts of the draft will have to be cracked by the local boards. Before them is the vast experience of the World War, a revised system and a series of broad regulations laid down by the President.

The law was purposely written to leave the ticklish decisions to the local board, or, if a question gets too national in character for a local board to handle, to the President.

Q (By a bride)—We were married under the draft law passed. Planned it for six months. I work. Will my husband have to go?

A—You're a borderline case, but off-hand the answer is "probably no." Your local board probably will have plenty of single men to fill up calls until next year.

Q (By the same bride)—But what if things get worse and congress decides to draft a lot more men?

A—In national draft headquarters it'll soon be known how many more than usual young people got married just as the draft law passed.

Q (By the same young lady)—But we didn't marry to evade the draft. We planned it six months ahead.

A—You must have evidence of that. Your friends gave you showers. The press reported the engagement, or some church record may be cited.

Q (By a young man)—I'm 25, healthy, single, ready to serve, but I'm working at a trade hard to replace. My employer wants me to ask for deferment. What shall I do?

A—If you feel you must, go ahead. But everybody connected with that draft had rather see you think of your employer's claim on you and join you in a claim for deferment.

Your local board will be advised that certain occupations come under this heading. The advice of an army industrial adviser, it may rule that you can be deferred, subject to call any time within six months if necessary.

The village of Lowell can look the whole world in the face, for it owes not any man the year ending Jan. 31, 1940, the village owed balances on its bonded indebtedness amounting to $26,890.48.

All debts paid and the Lowell tax rate of seven mills is a cause of supreme satisfaction to all Lowell property owners.

The Vergennes Methodist Church was in days long ago, a vigorous organization. The regular church and Sunday School used to be well attended.

With the advent of good roads and better cars, everyone predicted the death of rural churches. It was expected that people would want to travel to town, and participate in the larger church.

One or more decided that the building should be kept looking decent. Some paint and willing hands for small jobs of repair—and so the church building remained.

And then they were married and lived—No, that is not correct. This is no fairy story. And then came the summer of 1940. Many new faces were seen at the preaching services.

Beginning Sunday, Oct. 6, plans have been made for a unified service. In the period between 3:15 and 4:30, there will be a combined church and Sunday school program.

Two very important parts of the law, which would help in doing away with quarantines if complied with are as follows: "It should be unlawful for any owner to allow any dog to stray beyond his premises unless under reasonable control of some person—Every dog shall at all times between sunset of each day and sunrise of the following day be confined upon the premises of its owner or custodian, except when such dog is otherwise under the reasonable control of some person." Republicans Name Balance of Ticket

The Republican state convention, held in Grand Rapids last Friday, made the following nominations for the state ticket:

For attorney general, Herbert J. Robinson, Escanaba; for auditor general, Vernon J. Brown, of Mason, renominated; for treasurer, Felix H. H. Flynn of Cadillac; for secretary of state, Harry F. Kelly of Detroit, renominated; for supreme court justice, short term, Justice Emerson R. Boyles of Charlotte.

In the recent state-wide primary the Republicans nominated Luren D. Dickinson for governor and Eugene C. Keyes for lieutenant governor.

Another big feature of the Republican convention was the defeat of Thomas Read for renomination for attorney general, the nomination going to Mr. Rushton, who had the support of delegates opposed to "boss" rule. The convention's action was a triumph for the cause of good government.

New List Out For Blue Food Stamps

Twenty items are listed as surplus commodities for the period beginning October 1 and ending at midnight on October 31, 1940, on the official list made public by Mr. Robinson, Local Representative for the Food Stamp Program.

Removed from the list are fresh corn, fresh tomatoes, and fresh peas. Added to the list are Irish potatoes.

The new designation is the sixth announced regionally this season by the Department of Agriculture for Food Stamp areas where seasonal surpluses are in evidence.

Mr. Robinson, Local Representative, stressed the fact that only the items on the official list are available for blue food stamps. He requested food merchants in this area to destroy the list when this list becomes operative, so that there will be no misunderstanding or confusion among persons eligible to use food stamps.

Dog Owners Should Comply With Dog Law

With the rescinding of all dog quarantines in Michigan, Agricultural Commissioner Elmer A. Beamer said that if all dog owners in the state would comply with regulations as set up in the Michigan Dog Law, it is quite likely that quarantines would never be necessary.

Two very important parts of the law, which would help in doing away with quarantines if complied with are as follows: "It should be unlawful for any owner to allow any dog to stray beyond his premises unless under reasonable control of some person—Every dog shall at all times between sunset of each day and sunrise of the following day be confined upon the premises of its owner or custodian, except when such dog is otherwise under the reasonable control of some person." Old-Time Rivals Taken by Lowell

The Lowell High School football team swamped the Ionia squad by a score of 37 to 6 at Ionia last Friday night before a large crowd of football fans who were on hand to cheer on the fast local team.

The Lowell High School band did their bit by rendering several fine selections during the course of the game, including a specialty number.

After fumbling the kick-off and losing the ball to Ionia, Lowell showed only one sign of life for three downs. Then Hanni gains for three downs. Then Hanni gains for three downs. Then Hanni gains for three downs.

The local squad's biggest weakness was in getting that sometimes important extra point. In trying for the point the team made three plays into the line, two passes and one kick, scoring only once on a pass from Wingeier to Stukkie.

Yetter and Wingeier did the principal yard gaining for Lowell with Yetter leading with 172 yards, Wingeier having 119 yards. Both teams made 5 first downs.

The Lowell team plays Hastings at Hastings this week Friday night, beginning at 8:00.

What looks like another cash crop for Kent county farms in smooth brome grass seed? In the past, the bulk of this seed has come from western prairie states but two local farms have demonstrated that the brome grass seed can be grown here.

A couple years ago Henry Hoekstra, on the Cannonsburg Road, and who probably grew the first brome grass in the county, combined quite an acreage with a good seed production. This year the Hoekstra farm produced another crop of seed. Stopping at the Elwin Parmeter farm, in Courtland township, the other day, to plan a potato spray meeting, we were shown a fine lot of brome grass seed recently combined on that farm. The Parmeter's have 25 acres of this grass.

Smith-Hughes agricultural departments of high schools in this county are planning their adult night schools for the coming winter. Most of the courses will start soon after the new year. Caledonia school is planning monthly meetings, holding their first one October 14, when Russell Hill, of Michigan State College, will discuss the topic "Relations Between the Farmer and the Hunter."

Rockford schools will present a dairy course. Sparta will feature a program devoted to fruit work. Lowell and Sand Lake programs will be announced soon.

These courses have been very popular in the various schools for the past two years.

Our office was greatly surprised one day last week to have Mr. Ray Turner, of the Extension Division of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, call. We regret we didn't know he was coming and were not in. But he had a good chat with Miss Denmore and Mrs. Sattler.

Mr. Turner has charge of 4-H Club work in eleven north central states. He was particularly interested in the development of the Kent County 4-H Club fair at Lowell and the 4-H Club Camp at Eastwick Lake.

The Vining household is rather silent and empty these days. Both of the youngsters are away at school.

Daughter Jeanne, after two years at Grand Rapids Junior College, is enrolled at Michigan State College, as a Junior in the home economics division. She is taking a course to teach in high school.

Both youngsters profited by two years at the Grand Rapids Junior College.

There will be plenty of State vs Michigan rivalry and discussion in the family, and naturally Jeanne will have some support from her dad.

Recently the Grand Rapids Press carried a story about the picturesque little town of Cross Village, up in Emmet County.

Never hear of this place but what we think of an experience there early in our career as an extension agent in that county.

We had become acquainted with Father Luke, the pastor of the Cross Village Catholic Church. He suggested we have a meeting in the town hall to talk about our work.

All four seats running around all four sides. When we arrived we found 42 people present. Thirty-seven were Indians. In the five white people were Father Luke, John Sullivan, the township supervisor, Mrs. Shurtliff and her daughter, and the town blacksmith whose name we have forgotten.

We did our best at explaining the county agent's job and some of the things that had been suggested at Emmet County. At the close of the meeting the Indians clapped their hands and walked out in single file. Not a change of expression on their faces during the evening. It was a hard group to talk to. Father Luke asked me how I would like it three times on Sunday.

Many of us came to know a good many of the Cross Village Indians and worked with them. The night of the Cross Village fire, in 1918, Father Luke was ill with flu but got out of bed and helped find places for the homeless. The over exertion brought on pneumonia and his death a short time later.

Non-Partisan News Letter
By Gene Allen
Michigan Press Association Service
Wendell L. Willkie and Governor L. D. Dickinson have one trait in common: Neither man will make a political speech on Sunday.
When the Republican presidential nominee greeted audiences from the rear platform of his train on a recent Sunday, he said he did not intend to campaign on the Sabbath.
Well, Governor Dickinson doesn't either.
In fact, when an Upper Peninsula editor visited the executive office recently, Dickinson remarked he was not going to campaign in an old-fashioned barn-storming way.
The editor smiled in agreement, and then asked: "And how was the audience yesterday (Sunday) at Owosso?"
Michigan's 31-year-old executive, who addressed a Bible Fellowship rally, responded glowingly that several thousand people were present. He said he had "visited" with quite a few.
For Sunday "visiting" during a political campaign, Dickinson's tactics are highly effective. He doesn't talk politics. He just emphasizes the value of personal character and public morality.
You can't argue with God; neither can you secure the governor of being insincere.
It's one of those things.

Discipline
Last summer the state newspaper sponsored a national defense program at Port Huron. Among the speakers were Governor Dickinson and Murray D. VanWagoner.
Because last-minute complications prevented a visit of Michigan editors to Canada, the enterprising Floyd J. Miller, daily publisher in Royal Oak, obtained as a pinch-hit attraction a Michigan-born newspaperman by the name of Fred Brace from Sparta.
Brace was a Paris correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune in 1919-20, and he had been with the American Chamber of Commerce at the French capital until its fall to the Nazis in 1940.
"Look at history," he said, "and you will find that it has been a constant swing of the pendulum of public opinion—either towards individual freedom or a disciplined state. France under tyrannical kings had a disciplined state; Bastille Day brought just the opposite—freedom for the individual which in its excess led to terrorism of the guillotine.
"Russia's history is almost parallel. Who can say that the dictatorship of a Stalin is not worse than the autocratic hand of a czar?
"Germany had disciplined control under Bismark and Kaiser Wilhelm. In the first and second reich the Germans had individual freedom, but they were not happy. Hitler restored the pendulum it is accepted course by a powerful central government of discipline, of law and order.
"In the United States we had individual initiative under Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. Now we are getting a strong disciplined state under Roosevelt. If centralization of power goes too far, public opinion will demand a return to less regulation by Washington, more freedom for the individual."
The Ledger Want Ad Department will almost always find a buyer for any useful article, or will rent or sell real estate. Remember the Ledger is read and enjoyed throughout eight townships. Turn to the Want Ads on page 5.

Draft Problems
Q. What is the difference between being deferred and being exempt?
A.—A man who under no circumstances would be acceptable to the army is exempt, such as a man with one leg or a necessary public official the law specifically exempts. Regular employees of cities, counties, states or the federal government are no more exempt than anybody else. A man who is not called in turn, but who is told his case may be called up for further examination at some future time is "deferred" such as a married man with dependents.
Q. (By a wife)—My husband can't get a job. Temporarily my job supports him and our child. He wants to work. I don't want him to leave us. Will they take him?
A.—Maybe not, but that kind of a case may require a hearing or special examination. Discuss this with the local advisory board if you aren't sure about the facts. If what you say is true, they might help him get a job. But an habitual idler wouldn't have a chance to escape, if the draft board knew it.
It would be embarrassing to you and your husband and the local board if your husband couldn't prove he was not an habitual idler. Doubtless some family who sent men into the service would write indignant letters to the board about not getting idlers.
Q.—I'm an ex-convict. One conviction. Forged a check several years ago. Been going straight since. Unmarried and ready to serve, but what about my fingerprints? And my record? Am I morally unfit?
A.—You are neither automatically disqualified because of a crime, nor are you automatically acceptable. Your fingerprints are not taken in the draft, and your record won't be traced from the draft card.
But once you're in the army, you're under military law—not civil law. If they should find out about your record, the question would be: Are you morally fit to wear the uniform of the United States army? Your superior officers would have to answer that, and the answer would depend on whether your associating with other men would tend to corrupt their moral standards. If so, you'd be kicked out. You'd be wise to take up your case with the local registrant's advisory board.
Q.—I've got flat feet. Am I exempt?
A.—Not necessarily. Ordinary flat feet no longer are considered a cause for exemption. It depends on the condition of your arches. New instruments can tell whether your feet can stand the pounding of army life.

Big League Games Indoors
Huge sports stadia of the future in which major league baseball teams will play under roofs and with indirect lighting, rain or shine, are predicted by Robert J. Swackhamer, G-E engineer. Such stadia might be built in the next 10 or 15 years, he believes.
Admitting that the idea seems radical, Mr. Swackhamer points out that baseball was scoffed at in the early stages of its development at Lynn, Mass., but now night baseball is being played by 75 per cent of the clubs in organized baseball. Swackhamer, who designed the lighting for the fields of the Cincinnati Reds, Brooklyn Dodgers, and Cleveland Indians, recalled how his proposal of night ball in the majors was ridiculed at one time.
The indirect illumination of such stadia probably would be accomplished by projecting the light, from concealed locations below the roof, to the ceiling of the stadium where it would be reflected downward to the playing and seating areas.
