The message for all women voiced by the speakers emphasized the fact that Woman's club was international in scope and influence at the present time to do all it can for our country supporting the government and standing strongly against subversive elements seeking to tear it down. Every woman should be affiliated with a club federated with the National and State Woman's Club.

Some of the outstanding speakers at the Convention were Lt. Harold Mulbar, Deputy Chief of Detectives for the State of Michigan; Alonso L. Baker of Battle Creek; Sally Woodward of Minneapolis; Minn. H. C. Yudin, Superintendent of the La-per State Home and Training School, Miss Allyn Rice of New York City, better known here as Elizabeth Metzger of Greenville, presented an excellent dramatization of "Pride and Prejudice". Mrs. Lee Lampkin introduced the speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Hugh Blacklock, wife of the sheriff of Kent County, who gave a talk to the women who are housed at the Detention Home at Grand Rapids. She gave an interesting picture of the prison life of these women of no vision.

Secret of Trees Told by M. S. C.

Four million tiny tree seedlings comprise the crop expected by the nurseryman in charge of the Clarke-McNary forest nursery at Michigan State College from the plantings going into the ground this fall.

That crop will come from the seeds that will be gathered from underneath trees. In fact, 200 pounds of tree seeds will supply the new nursery stock.

The process is likened to that of a farmer gathering in a grain crop, says P. W. Robbins in charge of the college nursery. Seeds are gathered, ripened and dried, threshed and cleaned and planted. Nature's way.

Cones are picked up from beneath such evergreens as white, Norway, Jack and Scotch pine, and white, Norway and black spruce and northern white cedar. From the hardwoods the ripe fruit or pods are picked up from oaks, black locust and maples.

Treatment of the cones is interesting. Gathering is completed while the cones are closed or in a green to purple stage, so that seeds are still in them. This process is carried on from early September until late October for some species. Curing is done in trays or on canvas. Some cones open naturally, while others must be killed dried or heat treated.

Threshing takes place in a shaker with one side open to permit seeds to come out through a screen. Then the wings are taken off the evergreen seeds by rubbing over another screen and a farm faning mill completes the cleaning.

One bushel of white pine cones will produce one half to three-fourths of a pound of seed, or 15,000 to 20,000 seedlings. Trees grown in the nursery are subsequently sold at cost to farmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Williamson.

Michigan will lead the nation again this year in rate of increase in miles traveled over her highways, it has been estimated by the planning division of the State Highway Department. The report just compiled indicated 1940 would see an all-time record of more than 15 billion vehicle-miles of travel on Michigan streets and highways, or nearly double that of 1930. Popularity of Michigan's highway system was credited by the Highway Department for at least a major share of the tremendous increase.
