David Knief's goat has a war job. David is a Boy Scout in Warren, Michigan. He and two friends collect prepared tin cans, using goat power to pull the load. With national supplies of tin rapidly approaching the danger point, the need for salvage of every tin can is growing daily. Tin can collections in Warren are sponsored by the PTA and have always been successful. Now that David's handsome namy goat and her smart cart are on the job, even more tin cans are coming in. Suzanne Kish and Bim Wilde, of Warren, are pictured making a test run with David's grat and cart.

HERE has been some rural telephone construction during these war years, but nothing compared to what we had Long before the war, Michigan Bell began an extensive program of rural service expansion and improvement. Then, in 1940, we adopted a rural construction plan recommended by the Michigan Rural Communications Committee, a group of agricultural leaders. It included a liberal free line-construction allowance, and small monthly payments where construction costs were necessary.

Under the rural construction program, there was a sizable increase in the number of rura! telephones. Then came war, and telephone factories went to work for the armed instruments and other equipment "have fone to war." After final Victory, Michigan Bell expects to launch a 5-year $120,000,000 program of expansion and improve-ment, a goodly portion of which will be used to resume our rural work. Today, 2 of every 3 of our rural telephones are dial operated. We intend to increase that number. Telephone service will be made available to more rural subscribers through the use of mportant new devices and methods. We want to reduce the number of families per rural line. We are studying special features to make telephone service more valuable.

Thus Michigan Bell will proceed with its plan to furnish the best possible service to the largest possible number of forces. Nearly all new wire, cable, people at the lowest possible cost.
