

600 Blood Donors Must Be Recruited In Kent by May 12

A minimum of 600 volunteer blood donors must be recruited in Kent County by the Kent County Chapter of the American Red Cross for participation in the Civilian Blood Donor Clinic, to be held May 12.

"One out of every 50 people in Kent County will need blood during the coming year," states Mrs. Stewart J. Bell, chairman of the Red Cross Blood Donor Committee.

This has been proved by statistics of past use of plasma in the county. In order to supply this plasma, the citizens of Kent County should cooperate with the State Department of Health during these semi-annual clinics.

The mobile unit of the Department of Health will be in Grand Rapids May 12-13 for the Blood Donor Clinic. Registrations will be taken during the week of May 5-9 at the Red Cross headquarters, 25 N. Division, or by telephone, 6-9951.

Clubs and organizations can make group registrations for the clinic, according to Mrs. John Lindemulder, chairman for county areas. In all cases the registrants will be notified as to the time of appointment and will be given any further information necessary. It is stressed that only a half hour is needed to take blood and there is no pain.

Plasma is not sold. It is made available for local emergencies when needed. The only fee is that allowed to be charged by the hospital for administrative costs.

Ledger Clarifies Statement in Ad.

On another page of the Ledger the NPTW, Grand Rapids area, points out in a paid advertisement that the Ledger was in error in stating that all telephone operators in Lowell were back to work last week when the paper came out.

The Ledger was correct in its statement at the time of writing (April 23) that all telephone operators were back at work.

After the Ledger was printed last week two operators out of the 12 regularly employed decided to go back on strike.

One thing we believe and which is echoed by practically everyone, is that all appreciate the 10 operators who are at work and keeping telephone service going in Lowell.

Lowell Man Tells of Harrowing Experience in Atlantic Storms

Mrs. Maude L. VanDusen of Lowell is in receipt of a letter from her son, Frank VanDusen, which gives a graphic description of battling for days on the Atlantic on a disabled ship with waves 60 to 70 feet high. We quote the following from Frank's letter:

"When I left you two months ago I was planning on a nice South American cruise; well, I almost got it. After I received your wire, I went down to the hall and got a ship. She was going to the French Mediterranean. I figured that was as good as a S. A. cruise, but I got fooled up.

"We left Norfolk, Va., on the 13th of February, that old unlucky 13 again, as you remember the last trip. The articles we signed for were for the French Med. and we wound up in Antwerp, Belgium. "It was a lovely trip all the way over. Two hours and twenty minutes after leaving Norfolk, we dropped the pilot and one hour later, our engines broke down and we were broke down 84 hours and finally they got the works going again. We proceeded nicely for one day and then we hit a storm.

Storm Troubles Begin

"We were in a continuous storm which was uncharted by the weather bureau. The storm that we should have been in was 200 miles away. Nevertheless, we got in it. "Well, we proceeded along in that storm until George Washington's birthday, then she became calm for a whole period of 24 hours. Then she broke loose again—all the wind she had pushed up beyond us must have been irresistible. We were bounded right back at us and kept it up all the way into port.

"Speaking of port covers a period of time and things which I am not going to tell you about and I can hardly believe them myself.

"During this storm, the day after G. W.'s birthday, a wave hit us and if it had had a light on it, you would have called it the Empire State building. When the wave left, she took No. 4 lifeboat and that was the last we saw of that. That was 5 o'clock at supper time. Well, as she hit, naturally we all left chow and went topside to lifeboat deck.

"The first man on the job up there was the Skipper. We lost two more lifeboats same time the next two days and the first man on the job those days, was also the Skipper.

Legionnaires Hold Successful Meeting

The Clark-Ellis Post of the American Legion enjoyed a delicious chicken dinner at South Boston Grange on Monday evening with over 60 in attendance.

There was a short talk by W. W. Gummer, followed by discussion and report on the progress of the new memorial building by William Christiansen and Roger McMahon.

The building, which has been temporarily held up by CPA authorities, is expected to be under way again in a few days. A misunderstanding by government officials has been cleared up and C. J. Place, contractor, expects to have the building completed by fall.

At the meeting members of the Legion contributed $25.75 to the Cancer fund.

Prisoner of Japs For 2½ Years to Speak Here May 7

Miss Mary Scott, for two and one half years a prisoner of the Japanese at Weihsein, China, will speak Wednesday, May 7, at the Church of the Nazarene, Lowell, according to Paul Z. Hoornstra, pastor of the local congregation.

Miss Scott sailed for China September 18, 1940, as a missionary under appointment by the Church of the Nazarene, with Headquarters at Kansas City, Missouri. When she was taken inside the city of Taming Fu and interned with other missionaries and nationals.

"On August 17, 1945, American paratroopers dropped out of a clear sky. There was bedlam in camp that day. I had to work in the hospital kitchen, but I didn't miss the excitement. Later, B-29's made three trips over the camp and dropped food and clothing," relates Miss Scott, in telling some of her experiences. On October 17, two months later, the group was flown out.

She sailed from Peking, China, January 13, 1946, on the cargo ship, Carrier Pigeon, arriving in Los Angeles, February 19. Since that time, Miss Scott has spoken in several districts. The public is cordially invited to hear this missionary address.

Miss Scott is a graduate of the University of Michigan and of Olivet Nazarene college.

Up and Down Kent County Roads

K. K. Vining, Kent County Agricultural Agent

Kent County folks who have known O. I. Gregg over the years he has served as an extension specialist in landscape gardening at Michigan State College will be sorry in a way to know that he retires July 1st. Gregg's first work as a specialist in Kent County when he made planting plans for Roy Smith at Caledonia, how long ago we don't know. Probably more than 400 planting plans have been made for Kent County folks, and the most of these have been completed. A lot of satisfaction has come to farm folks in planting shrubs, trees, and making the home place look a lot better. Then a lot of folks have enjoyed Gregg's lectures and the fine colored pictures he has had to show with his work. He made his last trip to Kent County last Wednesday when he made plans for five farm homes.

A new landscape specialist will go on the job July 1st. He will find a background of good work to start from.

To Gregg we extend our best wishes and hope he has many pleasant days at his cottage on Houghton Lake.

Another good county herd is being sold this week. The purebred Guernsey owned by Neal Lamoreaux at Comstock Park are to be sold on Saturday. This herd has been built up through the years into one of the good Guernsey herds of Western Michigan. The sale is this week Saturday, May 3. A person can buy most any age cattle from calves to mature cows. All free from Bangs disease and with C. T. A. records.

Another resort season will soon start in Michigan, in fact, the trout season really opened it up. Sometimes folks don't think too much of Kent County as a resort area, but as I look at the map on my desk and see the lakes in the northeast half of the county, we really are in a resort area. But that isn't all, another look at the map and we see four trunkline highways crossing the county all of which lead to some of the major resort areas in the state. Roads will soon be full of cars going to these resorts. Not a few of these will be coming to Kent County lakes. These folks are going to buy gasoline, meals, look for a place to sleep when night comes. In other words the resort business really means dollars and cents to Kent County folks. Food alone is a big item and no small part is raised in Kent County.

We are interested to see new tourist cabins going up along our highways. We hope they are comfortable and such that folks will like to come back to.

Kent is a fine county, has a lot to attract folks both in the county, small towns and city. But a lot can be done to keep our highways, small towns and even our city attractive so folks driving through will have some pleasant memories. Better look along your roadside or town and see what can be done to improve conditions.

Oregon wheat farmers have asked the legislature of that state to enact a law to collect one cent per bushel on wheat, not to advertise, but to be spent for research work in ways and means to better use of wheat and fine new uses for the grain. A five-man commission will oversee the work. We hope the Oregon wheat growers are united in this idea and will not have the bickering and biting that has followed the enactment of the Baldwin Apple Bill in this state.
