

The number of persons who live to be 100 should be greatly increased as the result of modern methods of treatment of disease. People's success in attaining that age depends to a large extent on how far they obey the laws of health. The doctors give them excellent advice, but if they disregard that advice they may take chances of not living so long.

Some persons are so constituted that their chances of long life are affected by their mental attitude. If they worry constantly, this may affect their health. Some are naturally apprehensive, and such constant anxiety may lower their physical vitality. If they could acquire some form of philosophy that would help them to take a more confident view, it should help to prolong their lives.

People help to prolong their lives by avoiding harmful habits and overwork, by getting sufficient rest and sleep, and by healthful recreation and exercise. Sorrow and trouble create nervous strain, but a calm philosophy helps one over these hard places.

LET 'ER BURN!

The attitude of the American people toward fire seems to be, "Let 'er burn!"

That is the only way our record fire waste can be explained. This year we will burn some $200,000,000 worth of property—and 10,000 or more lives will be lost. And, if the rate of increase continues, we will reach the billion-year point in a comparatively short time.

This record is a national disgrace. Fire waste involves far more than the destruction of dollar values. It means the loss of irreplaceable resources—the loss of jobs—the loss of taxable assets—the loss of business opportunity—the loss of food, machinery and other supplies which the whole world needs.

Private and governmental authorities are now carrying on the most aggressive campaign to conquer destructive fire in history. It began last May, when President Truman called a national fire prevention conference in Washington. An all-inclusive program was laid down then, and it is being followed. But any program is doomed to failure unless it is given a full measure of public support. The experts can't lead you around by the hand and force you to make your property safe. They can only advise and instruct. Then, it is up to you.

Nomination Dates For Election of 3A Committeemen

Surprising facts of "believe it or not" caliber spice the life stories of the state's game mammals that appeared serially in "Michigan Conservation" and now are reprinted in booklet form for school use and general sale.

Sample eye-openers are that a newborn bear is smaller than newborn porcupine; that dog may chase cat in the city, but a lynx will kill a fox in the north woods; that stink fish is excellent eating; that otters enjoy sliding down 40-foot slopes as much as small boys with sleds; that badgers fight regardless of odds and never surrender; that the wolverine, giant of the weasel family, is not known to have lived in Michigan; that longer hind legs help a snowshoe hare run uphill faster than down; that moose may be trained to pull sledges.

It is only human to conclude that all the bright sayings people use today are newly coined. Actually many of them were first said years ago, points out Ink White in the Clinton County Republican-News.

Thomas Jefferson in 1891 spoke of "holding the bag," Cervantes in "Don Quixote," written in the 16th century, fashioned "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition." William Graham Sumner spoke of "the forgotten man" in an 1883 lecture and Mark Twain used the term "New Deal" in "The Connecticut Yankee."

Such terms as "on foot in the grave," "fly off the handle," "gift of gab" and Mae West's "I'm no angel" were current from 1650 to 1825. "Fried in his own fat" goes back to Chaucer in 1383, "By hook or by crook" first appeared in print in 1500, "hen-pecked" in 1600, "kick the bucket," 1735 and "knock-off" in 1922.

The Superior Furniture Company of Lowell was awarded the Industrial Safety Award for 1947-48 by the Michigan Mutual Liability Company in a state wide contest among woodworking plants, completed this week. This is the second bronze award received by this company, the first being in 1945-46 contest.

The award was presented by Ray H. Olson, supervising engineer of the Michigan Mutual Liability Company, who commended the local plant, both managers and employees very highly.

"This is the first time any plant in the twenty years of the contest," Mr. Olson said, "has won the award two years in succession." To win the award the employees in the plant had to operate a full year without losing a single day due to a plant injury. The winning of this award is an outstanding accomplishment as they were in competition with other woodworking plants in the state which were much larger and had many more employees.

"To win the award meant a sincere safety effort by every individual in the plant, good team work and personal interest in each other's welfare, good house-keeping, and the safe operation of hazardous woodworking machinery resulted in this outstanding achievement," Mr. Olson said.

The bronze plaques reads as follows: "Industrial Safety Award, awarded to Superior Furniture Company and employees for their service to humanity through outstanding achievement in safety. Admonish the thoughtless, educate the inexperienced, protect the careless. For it is written, the careful worker shall live long and prosper."

All Lowell Stores Set For Christmas

Many Gift Items Are Making First Appearance Since 1941

There will be bands, floats, gifts for kiddies, and of course, Santa himself, in Lowell's first Christmas parade, on Saturday, Dec. 13. The parade, sponsored by Lowell Board of Trade, will be the first ever held in Lowell and promises to be an annual event hereafter. Cary Stiff is in charge of the parade, which will start from the school at 3:00 p. m.

There will be prizes for the most original float entered by classes of the school. The high school band will be on hand to furnish music on the Lowell Saddle Club is providing several horses for the parade.

The Board of Trade is again staging a contest to find the best Christmas decorations, one class for commercial buildings and another class for residents. Judges will be Norton Avery, Mrs. Huld Finels and Elmer Schaefer.

— More Gifts in Lowell —
There are more gifts for everyone on the shelves and counters of Lowell business places this year. Showcases are filled with fine gift items that are making their first appearance in quantity since 1941.

Prices of most articles are higher than in 1941, but many suitable pieces of merchandise can be purchased without taxing the family budget too heavily.

There are plenty of toys, sleds, wagons, dolls and other gifts for the younger set.

Wrist watches radios and small electrical appliances are much more plentiful this year than last and can be had in almost any price range, depending on the quality of course.

Lowell men's stores have a good stock of winter clothes that have been hard to get for many years.

Women's wear, household items such as blankets, bed linen, towels, etc., are in good supply. Furniture is in much better supply than any time in the last five years and selections in Lowell equal any.

Michigan's Fighting Governor Makes Boards and Commissions More Responsive to the Voters

By Gene Altman, Sec'y-Manager Michigan Press Association

In his new crusade to make state commissions and boards more responsive to the voters, Governor Kim Sigler is again in the role of a bold reformer, a knight in shining armor, astride a traditional white horse, giving battle gallantly to the forces of entrenched vested interests—this time, state bureaucracy itself!

Here is an issue obviously cut out for Michigan's fighting governor. There is little doubt that he will try to make the most of the opportunity during 1948, an election year.

The governor's announcement that he will seek to make directors of commissions and boards responsible directly to him, and in turn dependent on the State Senate for appointment, was made in the triumphant wake of a successful legislative session. There the governor displayed new and aggressive powers. No longer was he content to submit his recommendations and then leave solons to their own prerogatives, thus keeping the executive branch separate from the legislative branch, as he has done earlier in the year.

With the aid of state GOP chiefs, he applied the pressure convincingly and effectively. A 22-page bill abolishing the corrections commission and replacing it with a non-civil service appointee, was considered briefly by the Senate judiciary committee, sent without change to the floor, explained for six minutes and approved 25 minutes later. That is speed!

Observers have pointed out that the present position of the governor is a reversal of his earlier stand regarding the commission. Last May he indicated that the corrections commission was one of the best in the land. He asked Austin H. MacCormick, executive director of the Osborne Association and a noted penologist, to appear before a legislative committee that was considering a bill to revise the Michigan set-up. MacCormick declared that Michigan's system was a model.

With his November bill approved overwhelmingly by the legislature, Sigler then disclosed that he would ask the legislature to vest power in the governor to appoint commission directors, subject to Senate approval.

Therein lies the great weakness in the governor's armor. For the past 18 years only one Michigan governor—Harry F. Kelly—has served two successive terms. Every two years, with one exception, a new governor took office. In the department of agriculture the result was a new director every two years with a new director every two years of continuity prompted the legislature, spurred by farm organizations, to take the directorship out of politics and into the hands of a new commission, Charles J. Kelly appointee, was re-named director.

The governor's critics may refer to him as another Don Quixote dueling with a windmill. But there is no doubt Michigan's crusading governor has started out on a new plan for reform. We would be surprised if he didn't do so. After all, Kim Sigler is Kim Sigler.

Kent Fire Fighters Make Great Showing In Past Five Years

Kent county's efficient rural fire-fighting program and some of the men who made it possible and have directed it, are featured in an illustrated article in the December issue of Capper's Farmer by H. L. Bradford, entitled "A County Fights Farm Fires."

"Property worth $1,350,000 has been saved in five years at a cost of $60,000 by modern equipment, volunteer departments operating in Kent county, the article in the nationally-circulated farm magazine points out.

Among men cited in the article are Mayor George Welsh of Grand Rapids, who got the program started back in 1941; Richard Machiele, assistant county agent, who took over the job of setting up the volunteer departments; John Herford, rural fire chief; the county's supervisors who have become volunteer township fire chiefs; and Earl Williams, district rural fire chief, and Fay Benjamin of Nelson township.

The article relates how up to 1941, Kent county like a lot of others in rural U. S. had endured tragic farm fire losses and done little about it. What has been accomplished since then, writes Bradford, "is a shining example for any county that hasn't started its rural fire-protection program."

Bradford describes how the program was set up, how equipment was purchased, how the county highway department has cooperated in servicing trucks and providing drivers, how township supervisors and two alternate chiefs have been responsible for the successful operation of the program in their communities and how farm families throughout Kent county have cooperated.

"Over 700 calls were answered by the Kent county fire fighters from October, 1942, through April, 1947," the article says. "Estimated damage from these fires is $60,000, and the value of the property saved was $1,350,000. The saving was made at a cost of $60,000, including the trucks. Cost to the farmer is 35¢ a $1,000 assessed valuation a year."

Kenny Drive Here Starts December 9 Aid Worthy Cause

William G. Baxter, executive director of the Sister Elizabeth Kenny Foundation of Michigan, announces that Dr. J. A. MacDonell has been appointed chairman of Lowell's Kenny Drive, in which he will receive the full support of the Michigan Headquarters.

Through the great financial strain imposed upon the Michigan Foundation in rendering free treatment to polio-afflicted Michigan veterans or their families, the need for generous contributions to the Foundation, via Lowell's drive, is vitally important. In addition to the care of the needy veterans, it is the aim of the Foundation to erect within a year, a Michigan Institute staffed by fully-trained Kenny personnel under the supervision of Sister Elizabeth Kenny and her Board of Directors.

The Foundation plans, also, to establish mobile units which, with nurses graduated from the Minnesota Institute, can reach the most isolated portions of the state to give needed treatment to those unable to be moved.

Your help is desperately needed—NOW—if these humane achievements are to be realized.

Give and give as generously as you can to your Sister Kenny Drive. . . . and they shall walk." Dr. J. A. MacDonell will be assisted by Mrs. James Gee, Mrs. John Coe, Mrs. Arnold Wittenbach, Mrs. E. C. Foreman and Dan A. Wingler.

Mrs. David Coons, chm. of the Girl Scouts, will have charge of Tag Day, Dec. 20. Lew Morse and the Boy Scouts will have charge of canisters at the theatre.

Off to school... to serve you better

Special schools train Standard Oil Dealers in "Personalized Service" to keep your car at par.

1 Today you want more carefree driving than ever before. To get it, you need better servicing for your car. To supply that service, Standard Oil Dealers take time out from home and job to go away to school. They attend special Standard Oil refresher clinics where they review the best and newest ways to care for the individual needs of individual cars.

2 Thousands of dealers now display auto, presented to those who satisfactorily complete our modern training course. And new classes start every two weeks, to teach additional Standard Oil Dealer the art of "Personalized Service." This training in "Personalized Service" is Standard Oil's newest assurance to you of safer, more pleasant driving, and of longer life for your car.

Up and Down Kent County Roads

K. K. Vining, Kent County Agricultural Agent

Harold Buttrick, Cascade township farmer, has been elected secretary of the Kent County Farm Bureau and with it has another farm bureau job, county organization director. This is a new job in 1948 farm bureau circles but not new in Michigan for several other counties have similar setups.

Buttrick's job as "C. O. D." will be to direct all farm bureau activities, the development of community farm bureaus, membership drives and program planning. There will be enough for him to do. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Buttrick of Cascade township.

Some of you folks who read this column will see it in time to be reminded of the annual meeting of the Kent County Safety Council. It's this week Thursday night at the Paris Grange hall on the South Belt Line, at 8 o'clock.

A most interesting meeting has been planned. The program has been set up to furnish material for granges, farm bureaus and other groups who want to hold safety programs.

A demonstration and play by 4-H Club members and a fine new farm safety picture are some of the features. Fred Roth, safety specialist at Michigan State College, will be in the program. The public is invited to attend.

Old Man Winter has really descended on Michigan. This brings fire hazards from overheated stoves, poor chimneys, and also traffic hazards. If you haven't done so, better check your heating equipment, stove and furnace pipes. See that no trash is near the heating unit. How long since the chimney was cleaned or looked over for cracks?

You are going to be driving. Snow makes vision poor and slippery roads. Remember the A. E. C. of safety "Always Be Careful."

Should you by any chance read Coronet magazine, turn to page 17 in the December issue and read the article, "Pride of American Farm Hand." It is a good story of 4-H Club work. Club members and leaders should take pride in the article.

Then, if you read Hoard's Dairyman, turn to page 907 of the last issue and read "Planned Agriculture." It's a story of agricultural conditions in England today. Be glad you farm and live in the U. S. where your daily living isn't figured out for you even if some folks would like to do it.

A letter from Kenneth VanHoesen, farm shop teacher at Sparta, tells us that school will sponsor another series of night schools for farm folks who want to repair machinery or make new gadgets. These night schools have been successful, popular and well attended. If we lived in that neighborhood would surely belong.

Classes will be in session Tuesday and Wednesday nights from 7 to 10 o'clock, starting January 6. If you are interested get in touch with VanHoesen at Sparta high school.

Folks keep calling us about old fruit trees they want the state to remove. When this program first started it was hard to get a lot of folks interested.

But right now, the State Department of Agriculture has no money to remove trees. The last legislature failed to appropriate any funds for this work. Perhaps the session in March will do so. In the meantime we are forwarding all requests to Harold Hill of Rockford. If and when the state has funds, Hill will take care of the trees. C. E. Boyer tells me they have 100 more requests than they have money.

In a daily market report that comes to our office we were struck by an item about live weevils in grain arriving at terminal markets. Detroit recently received several cars of barley well infested with weevil. Wheat inspections show the same. Many cars are rejected. One shipper hired a chap to fumigate a car of barley. When the job was done they still had live weevils and a bill for $35.00.

Better check your grain in storage on the farm.

West Michigan Fat Stock Shows 16th annual event will be held next week Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Exhibits are placed on Tuesday, judged on Wednesday and sold on Thursday. Cattle, sheep and hogs are to be shown and sold. Judges will be James Hoeksema of Three Rivers and Harold Starwood of Ionia. Auctioneer is Allen Haskin of Ionia. The public is cordially invited to attend. Show and sale in Municipal Garage on Market St.
