

For the last several years President Truman has sponsored compulsory health insurance, better known as socialized medicine. Most Americans expected that the President would withdraw this program during the present international crisis so that all citizens could concentrate on national defense. Unfortunately Mr. Truman included funds for socialized medicine in his 98-billion-dollar budget. Congress will probably delete this item. I hope so.

However, I've noticed by reading home town newspapers that the best possible attack on the local level is being made on socialized medicine by the generous contributions of our citizens to the Polio drive. By wholeheartedly supporting the Polio, Cancer, Heart and other fund drives with nickels, dimes and dollars these devastating diseases can be licked and in the interim those affected can have adequate care and treatment. If you want to keep the federal government from meddling any further in your personal health problems, vigorously support these very worthwhile drives for Infantile Paralysis, T. B., Cancer, etc.

After some inexcusable delays the Committee on Appropriations finally got "squared-away" and is now ready to start its job of pruning the President's budget. The committee composed of 50 members, 30 Democrats and 20 Republicans, is subdivided in 11 subcommittees. My assignment is the subcommittee on Deficiencies and Army Civil Functions. Former Congressman Albert Engel of Lake City and Muskegon served on this committee part of the time and did a wonderful job for economy in government. I'll do my best to follow in his footsteps.

This subcommittee has jurisdiction over all River and Harbor and Flood Control projects including the Panama Canal, the Soo Locks, hydroelectric power dams in the Far Northwest, and Alaskan and Hawaiian Army installations. There are three Democrats and two Republicans, including myself, on the committee. I suspect there will be some knock-down battles between the minority and the majority on the President's demands for certain costly projects and programs.

Within 24 hours after my subcommittee appointment I had a telephone call from a Washington, D. C. citizen who was just a "little federal muck" for a project for the District of Columbia. According to the lobbyist the project will cost only 50 thousand and "it's so badly needed." I intend to say NO for more often than YES for Uncle Sam can't stay solvent if everyone gets his fingers in the federal treasury.

Russia and her satellite nations behind the iron curtain have flooded American markets as the result of certain trade concessions granted by the Department of State. For example, the fur trappers in Michigan have been injured by this situation.

Here's what caused the difficulty. The State Department by a trade agreement with one nation would lower the tariff on a certain product or commodity. Under this trade agreement Russia and her satellites would get the same benefits even though the State Department had negotiated no comparable concession from the Soviets. In other words, Russian furs have come to the U. S. at a reduced tariff rate while the U. S. got nothing in return.

Republican Congressman Byrnes of Wisconsin sponsored an amendment to the recently approved reciprocal Trade bill which cuts off such benefits to Communist Countries. I supported, which would exclude Soviet imports from any tariff cuts or concessions made by the Department of State.

The observance of National Boy Scout Week has brought out an interesting item in Lowell which at least one family is 100% Scouts.

Harold, the second oldest son, who is now in Army service, was a Star Scout and assistant Scoutmaster of his Lowell troop; Kay, 18, is a Life Scout with merit badges in five departments; David, 16, is nearing the end of his career as a Scout and will become a Tenderfoot Scout after his 11th birthday in April; Morris Calvin, 8, became a Cub Scout last August.

Frank Rueseger Home Badly Damaged by Fire

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rueseger, near Moseley, was badly damaged by fire early Thursday morning when fire broke out in a wall between the attic and upright of the house. Mr. and Mrs. Rueseger both heard the crackling sound and investigation confirmed their fears. Two daughters and a grandchild were also in the house at the time and all were gotten out of the house fully dressed and without injury.

The fire departments from Vergennes, Ada, Grattan and Belding responded to the call and fought the stubborn blaze for hours before bringing it under control.

The damage to the house was partially covered by insurance. The furniture which was removed from the first floor was badly damaged by smoke and water.

The Ruesegers are living in their home at Moseley until their new home can be repaired or rebuilt.

Little 20-month-old Kirk Kirk, who was staying with his grandparents temporarily while his mother was in the hospital, suffered a severe attack of bronchial trouble the following day which was probably aggravated by the smoke he inhaled.

Neighbors Find Man Two Days After Fall

Fred Williams, aged man living alone at his home near White's Bridge, fell in his woodshed last week and was found by neighbors two days later and removed to Greenville hospital where he appears to be recovering from shock and exposure. He was wearing heavy clothing which protected him to quite an extent and the shelter of the woodshed also protected him from the severe cold weather.

His condition is considered fair in spite of his age and that he was badly frosted on hands and feet.

Showboat Comedian Dies Near London

A Robbins, known as the country's most unique comedian, and one of the star actors of the 1950 Lowell Showboat is dead. The news was carried in Montreal newspapers recently that Mr. Robbins was stricken very suddenly while preparing to present his act on the stage in a little town just outside London.

Mr. Robbins was a born showman—in fact he was born on the show grounds in a foreign country and spent many hours in his boyhood watching the clowns in the show and meanwhile generating ideas of his own which he later put into his comic acts. He also made gadgets for show people in his little plant in New York and owned some real estate in that city.

Popular star on radio, in movies and later in television, he presented a program on television just before Christmas which gained for him the name of "the greatest clown that ever lived." Many Lowell people saw his show this winter.

Therefore, if you are interested, you are urged to attend this meeting.

Two one-act plays, under the direction of Don Mullen and Gladys Doyle, will be presented at the conclusion of the meeting. One of these will be the comedy which was presented Wednesday night before the Rotary Club.

Efforts Are Underway To Bring Defense Contracts To Michigan

Following a series of visits to Washington by Governor Williams and his executive secretary, Larry Farrell, a State Defense Production Council has been formed. In theory it will do for production what the Defense Council does for defense preparation. Actually this new organization is designed to help channel defense contracts into Michigan, to keep everyone working during conversion—and to take care of the little industry. It's too young to predict its success.

Fred J. Hosley, 80 Well Known Citizen Passes On Monday

But Williams' attempts to bring production to Michigan has gained a bit of attention in Washington. Observers there feel he is taking a 'bet' (and commendable) step in overtly campaigning for national business.

This doesn't mean he is looked upon as any more favorably as the vice presidency is concerned. Our national politicians still look upon Williams' campaigning as "juvenile and childish." But they also look right in the teeth of his reelection—with a Republican cabinet.

Michigan's deer herds have been fortunate this year. While the annual kill is expected to be up this year because of the deep snow (and the subsequent loss of forage) periodical snows have kept the toll below the danger point. In 1947-48 more than 100,000 of the animals starved.

Michigan produced minerals valued at $207,000,000 in 1949—second highest production year recorded. It was three percent less than the 1948 all-time high. Iron and copper accounted for more than 31 percent of the production valuation.

Newspapers all over the state have been shocked recently by reports of juvenile crimes. It is popularly thought that during periods of war and stress this type of crime increases. But what can be done to prevent such outbreaks? The pendulum now is on the upswing.

Michigan budget parers, looking frantically about, have seized on one bone on which they can chew—the state college. Michigan State College and the University of Michigan have asked a total of $18,000,000. Conservative estimates figure at least $3,000,000 will be lopped off.

But the U. of M. will get its new medical center and possibly M. S. C. will be given a library since that money comes under capital outlay and not the general appropriation.

With defense orders tightening the automobile market, officials are predicting car shortages in six months. That is, of course, if the present trend toward defense production continues.

Michigan's 114 bureaus, long the target for pungent remarks, have been referred to lately as the "boards, bureaus and complications."

State defense questions may be answered this month. Brig. Gen. Lester C. Maitland, state civil defense director, has called a Feb. 19 conference in Lansing of all local defense directors. He has asked the atomic energy commission and federal civil defense authorities to send teams of experts to answer queries.

Ada Man Loses Life At G.T.W. Crossing As Train Strikes Car

Basil E. White, 47, of Ada R-1, was instantly killed late Thursday afternoon when his car was struck by a passenger train at a crossing in Ada near limits. Mr. White was alone in the car, and returning home from his work in Grand Rapids when the accident occurred.

The train which struck Mr. White is the ill-fated Grand Trunk "flier" which has become known as the "hoodoo" because of its many fatal accidents—23 persons killed in the last six years.

Mr. White was a native of Grand Rapids and a graduate of the University of Michigan. He had lived all of his life in Grand Rapids and Atlanta, Ga., moving to Ada last December.

He leaves his wife, Margaret; two daughters, Jean and Betty; and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Mead of Providence, R. I.; and Mrs. Geo. Baker of Los Angeles, Calif.

Funeral services were held in Grand Rapids Monday afternoon.

From School to School

By Lynn H. Clark
County Supt. of Schools

On February 19 the people of Grand Rapids will vote on two mills for the next twenty years for the improvement of the schools of the city.

I was very happy to note in the newspapers that Bishop Haas of the Catholic Church and Mr. John Hekman and a group representing the Christian Schools have approved the proposal. Parents of children attending non-public schools are also members of the many organizations that have endorsed Proposal No. 2.

This is as it should be for the public school is the foundation of a strong democracy and a strong democracy makes it possible for us to worship as we please and send our children to the school of our choice.

Good schools are also reflected in higher property values and voters by approving the millage are voting to increase the cash value of the property which they own. Several times a week we receive calls from prospective buyers who wish information regarding the school in that district. Is your school good enough to attract new families? If not, then your farm or house will sell for what it really worth.

I am sorry that Frank Holmquist will no longer be supervisor of Sparta Township. Frank has served for 13 years and will be missed. When he first became supervisor there were many critical problems, one of which was the financial situation of the Bass school, which had been closed.

Mr. Holmquist was extremely cooperative and sincerely interested in the welfare of the boys and girls. It took a lot of time and effort to solve that one.

"It would be good for the country if everyone realized that a billion is 1,000 million."

Lowell Girl at NWU Outstanding Junior

Phyl Glatfely, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Philip R. Glatfely, of Lowell, was chosen as the most outstanding Junior in activities at Northwestern University, at her seniority initiation banquet on Feb. 3, 1951. This award is given each year to the most deserving Junior.

Miss Glatfely has been active in many campus activities, this year about that railroad strike? Ain't Uncle Sam running the railroad? Can't they get ammunition to us, and clothing, and food? Who's stuck over there? The railroad men? What's the matter with them? They got gunshot wounds? Are their hands and feet frozen? Are they weak from lack of food? Are they lying beside the road shot down by enemy gunfire? What are they bellyaching about? And then we'd bow our heads in shame. What could we answer? We'd know full well sacrifice for all. We'd have to admit just where the yellow streaks are. Not in Korea. We'd hate to tell the boys the ugly truth about conditions at home.

But among them there might be one, maybe many men, who would give the answer:

"We wonder over here if there is enough left in our country to be fighting and dying for?"

Mrs. Sarah Davenport Passes at Age of 84

Services were held Monday afternoon at Morris Funeral Home in Saranac for Mrs. Sarah Davenport who died Friday, Feb. 9, at the home of her daughter, Miss Clarissa Davenport, at Dearborn.

NO PRIMARY ELECTION IN VERGENNES TOWNSHIP

Fred L. Rickner, Clerk of Vergennes township, states that because there was no opposition in either the Democratic or Republican party there will be no primary election in Vergennes township on Monday, Feb. 19, 1951.

Dr. and Mrs. B. H. Shepard and sons, Terry and Ricky, who have been spending the past two months at Ft. Myers, Fla., returned home late Monday afternoon. The doctor was seen along the Main street Tuesday with a nice coat of tan and is looking fine after the much needed rest.

Henry Marshall, convicted killer of Officer Charles Knapp, on Lowell's Main street and who was sentenced for life, in 1932, is again seeking his freedom. Last year he made a request to the state parole board which was denied after the Monday Book club at Lowell circulated petitions asking that he be kept a prisoner to serve out his life sentence.

Mrs. Jerry Devine who is one of the Ledger correspondents, made a call recently on a friend in Greenville hospital who had fallen and broken her leg. When leaving the hospital Mrs. Devine fell on the ice and fractured a bone in her leg. She was hospitalized but is now recuperating in her home near White's Bridge after having had a walking cast placed on the injured leg.

Jerry Roth who underwent emergency appendectomy last Wednesday in a Grand Rapids hospital is recovering nicely. He returned home Saturday and on Monday was back on the job at the Roth & Sons Furniture store.

A pretty good example of speed and endurance.

It would be quite an experience for Americans to pay a visit to Korea at this very moment, in the hardship of winter, in the roaring din of battle. It would do us good to follow beside our courageous young men, trudging wearily over snow covered roads and rough terrain. We might hear some things that would make us feel pretty cheap.

Something like this from a soldier:

"How are things back home? You folks got plenty to eat? Are you comfortable in your warm homes? How's the car situation? Everyone got a car? Are you making money? Are folks boarding? Any folks cheating on us?"

And then we'd have to answer "yes" to all the questions put to us by our fighting men, weary, cold, hungry, sleeping in frozen fox holes. And we'd see the dead lying beside the roads, and the wounded being picked up from the frozen ground, and hear cries of pain and misery.

There might be more queries from our fighting men: "What about that railroad strike? Ain't Uncle Sam running the railroad? Can't they get ammunition to us, and clothing, and food? Who's stuck over there? The railroad men? What's the matter with them? They got gunshot wounds? Are their hands and feet frozen? Are they weak from lack of food? Are they lying beside the road shot down by enemy gunfire? What are they bellyaching about? And then we'd bow our heads in shame. What could we answer? We'd know full well sacrifice for all. Kent Ag. Topics

Notes from Kent County Extension Agriculture

We noticed as we were driving north on Fruit Ridge Avenue yesterday the McKinneys were moving into their new building. This building is certainly a credit to the community and we wish the McKinneys every success in their new environment.

A fine program is in prospect for the potato growers at their annual meeting of February 18. Lynn Post, president of the potato growers' association, would like all growers to hear the worthwhile topics to be discussed. A detailed program will be found elsewhere in the paper.

Our supply of red pine for which we have been taking orders for the Department of Conservation is exhausted. There certainly must have been a run on seedling pine this year. White pine and Jack pine, both seedlings, are still available. We, however, have a few private sources of Scotch pine. You can call for this information.

In a note from Bill Love, Michigan State College extension forester, he says, "Be sure to prune your farm plantation for both Christmas tree and lumber production." A mimeographed sheet of instructions on the subject "Pruning the Plantation for Lumber Production" and one on "Summer Pruning for Christmas Tree Production" are available from the extension forestry department, Michigan State College.

There's a new tool on the market for deboning calves. This is an electric deboner. Reports are that this does a good job and that it is easy to use.

Order fertilizers now if you want to be sure of having some. If you have already purchased it, you would do well to check and see if it is caking. Stacking fertilizers under damp conditions on piles that are too high will cause caking and loss of time in the spring.

Home Economics
Of interest to women in Michigan is the proposed bill for compulsory enrichment of white bread and flour—soon to come before the state legislature.

Many states already have passed laws to that effect. There seems to be some confusion in the minds of people as to just what this law means and why it is necessary. Perhaps a little explanation would be helpful.

First of all, the average person's diet (and that means you and me and not just the underprivileged) is low in three of the B vitamins and in iron. Folks just don't like and consequently won't eat enough whole grain bread to give them an adequate amount of these essential vitamins and minerals. So, since we are "white bread" eating people, the next best thing is to add the vitamin and iron to white bread and flour. Almost everyone eats bread or flour in some form every day so that benefits from enriching these foods are wide spread.

It costs about 6 cents to enrich 100 pounds of flour and about 1 cent to enrich 25 one pound loaves of bread. The miller may enrich the flour or the baker may enrich the dough. Some of them are already doing it, because they think it is imp "fast"—but there are no definite standards set up under this "do as you please" plan. The law would require all white bread and flour to be enriched with definite amounts of the three B vitamins and iron and would set up machinery for inspection and penalties for violation.

Toler of "poisonous" substances being added have no foundation of truth. Science has recognized the importance of the vitamin B family and minerals for years.

4-H Club News

The past six weeks has certainly brought in many good secretary reports. It makes a good way for us to keep up with your club activities. Keep it up!

4-H Club secretaries will again be glad to hear that there is a secretary's book content again this year. Your leader will tell you when to send them in.

County achievement days at Rockford are March 19, 20 and 21. Final reports are due in the county extension office March 10.

Club members interested in entering the Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest should contact the county extension office for further details.

4-H Service Club will head north on February 23. Older club members are looking forward to their annual week-end camp at Twin Lakes 4-H Camp, Traverse City.

Honey Bee Gives Much To Farmers in Honey And Crop Pollination

Emphasizing the importance of the honeybee to Michigan agriculture, a bulletin by the Michigan State College extension service points out that for each dollar the beekeeper receives, fifteen to twenty dollars worth of crop pollination is returned to the farmer.

The folder points out that 80 percent of the cultivated crops require insect pollination and that clean cultivation practices in orchards hinder operations of the bee. Clean cultivation destroys the nesting places of wild insects, which feed on nectar and pollen.

The bulletin emphasizes the fact intensive farming practices, thru the elimination of permanent pasture fields, wood lots, and fence rows, have upset the balance between plants and pollinating insects.

Pvt. Edward J. Minard Writes About Life in Early Army Training

Through courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Minard, the Ledger is privileged to print the following interesting letter which they have received from their son, Edward, Jr., who is in training at Army Chemical Center, Md.

Feb. 4, 1951

Dear Mom and Dad:
Well how are you all getting along? Fine, I hope. We finally got to our basic training camp and will be here quite some time.

To begin with I will tell you a little of what has happened in the past week since I left home.

Friday morning when I left home and Jim took me to the bus station, Tom Campbell the boy I had met from East Grand Rapids and me have been together ever since and even went to the same training base.

Anyway, we took the bus to Detroit and killed some time in the afternoon until about seven o'clock at night they finally put us on a train for Ft. Sheridan, Ill. There was a group of about 140 men that went from Detroit to Ft. Sheridan. We were on a pullman sleeper and traveled all night. Went through East Lansing, Battle Creek and headed southwest for Ft. Sheridan. We slept all night and about seven the next morning we were at the army post. This is where all the men from Michigan and surrounding states go to be processed to find out what they are best suited to do in army life. While there we received a pair of dress shoes, a complete dress suit outfit, army style of course, about four pairs of army socks, two fatigue outfits for drilling or working in and also a light tan summer outfit.

We were at Ft. Sheridan from Saturday morning until last Friday afternoon, a period of about six and a half days.

One whole day was devoted to taking aptitude tests which determines the type job you are best suited for in the army. Another day we spent taking shots, getting a haircut, shining our shoes, etc.

We were kept busy most of the time. This Ft. Sheridan army center is located just about a half mile southwest of Lake Michigan and it was terribly cold there all the time. It got down as low as 24 degrees below zero and in the daytime it wouldn't warm up more than 10 degrees. A couple days were spent laying around not doing much of anything. Lights had to be out at 9 in the barracks at night.

Evenings of Leisure
Everyone got off duty at five o'clock at night unless they were assigned to some detail, which is some kind of job or errand they must do for a certain period of time. Between five and nine o'clock at night you could walk around the base, go to a movie, go over to a day room, which is a place with furniture where you can write letters, read magazines, drink coffee and in general a sort of lounge room. They also have what they call the P. X., this stands for post exchange and is actually an armory where you can buy most anything slightly cheaper than in civilian stores. That's where I got that scarf I sent you. I hope I put enough postage so you got it. It's just a sort of souvenir of Ft. Sheridan. Well that's about all I can say about that place. They checked our tests and we spent another half day being interviewed and they got our shipping orders for Maryland.

So on the seventh day after getting there we left. It was about five o'clock Friday night when we left Chicago by Pullman train for Maryland. After being about 300 miles southwest of Michigan, we're now about 700 or 800 miles southeast of Michigan.

Anyway the train ran all night and by Saturday morning we were somewhere in Ohio. Missed all the scenery that night. Because of snow and ice the train got eight hours behind time. We really had good meals on the train, a lot better than back at Ft. Sheridan.

The rest of the day we spent reading and watching the scenery. We were supposed to be in Maryland by 10 o'clock Saturday morning, but since we got behind eight hours we got a chance to travel in the daylight all day Saturday and really saw some scenery in Pennsylvania. We were about four hours going through the mountains and this was really something to see. The train ran around through the valleys and gorges along side of a river. Before we got to the mountains we followed the Ohio River for about a hundred miles and saw a lot of big industrial plants, auto plants, and oil and steel plants.

Winding Through Mountains
The mountains in Pennsylvania are really something. The train would just wind around one big hill after another working its way through. Most of the time we were at the bottom and the hills would rise up maybe nearly a mile high on both sides of us. There were big rocks and boulders laying here and there on the sides and there was small timber all over it everywhere. There wasn't any vegetation growing anywhere, just the small trees maybe from four to seven or eight inches tall. Lots of times they would not be able to get around a high piece of land and so we would go through tunnels right under the mountains. They had two engines pulling a twelve-car train. You wouldn't see any houses or sign of life except along here and there. They were few and far between.

We finally got through the mountains and through Pennsylvania into Maryland. We got off the train at Baltimore and took another train forty miles farther east and arrived at our training base at about seven o'clock at night. We were assigned a barracks, six supper and went to bed. Today is Sunday and this is the first time I've really had time to write. As I said before I will be here from eight to fifteen weeks, don't know for sure. If you can't read this take it over to Feg and maybe she can say hello to Lyle, Peg and Billy for me.

We just got here and don't do anything on Sunday so by next week-end I will be able to tell you what's going on.

I suppose it got pretty cold there, too. Has Dad drove my car any? I hope it didn't freeze up. I never thought it would get that cold.

Well I hope you are all getting along fine. The time is rough but if the next guy can take it, so can I. Starting this week we will have just what training is really like. When you write back send me Bob Andrews' address. Well I guess I had better close, I've seen so much that I could write another ten pages but have already written a lot. So write back right away. My address: Pvt. Edward J. Minard, RA 16862995, Co. B, CRTG, Army Chemical Center, Maryland.

Wildlife tracks are best observed after rains, as in mud along stream banks, or following light falls of wet snow.
