LOWELL SOLDIER BEING
SEPARATED FROM AARMY

The Fourth of July, nationally proclaimed Independence Day, is annually observed in every state, in the District of Columbia, Alaska, Canal Zone, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. However, the method of celebration has greatly changed through the years.

Some fifty or more years ago every citizen, still feeling deeply the sense of security provided in this free country, took the day off. Picnic baskets were packed, horses hitched to the surrey or the wagon, and the whole family went to the nearest town to celebrate. The streets were gaily bedecked with flags, lanterns and streamers. Let the national colors, hands played and there were games, sports and fun galore. Firecrackers were sold everywhere and, of course there were powder burns occasionally when some youngster forgot to be careful. There was usually a parade (everyone loves a parade), and an orator made an address.

At noon groups gathered for the picnic dinner with friends and neighbors. Side shows and benefit sales, balloon ascensions and fireworks, then came the bowery dance where square dances were called to the music of the "fiddle" and whatever accompaniment was handy. Dancing under the stars with boughs and bunting marking off the space and lighted jack-o-lanterns hanging wherever there was a place to hang one.

Each generation has changed the ways of celebrating the Fourth until the original purpose is but dimly remembered. Now we go to one extreme or the other. Either we spend the day in relaxation and dread to look at the morrow's headlines, or we get into our high-powered automobiles and see just how long a drive we can make in the long week end.

Crowding a week's trip into those few days can be done by cramming four lanes of traffic into a two-lane highway. The least we can do is "Take it Easy."

Vandalism seems to be one of the most popular sports of late. Vandals break into schoolhouses, destroying contents, break down mail boxes, and more recently one of the Rapids Public Library bookmobiles was broken into on a parking lot in the heart of the city, the vandals gaining entrance by breaking the glass in the door of the vehicle. There was about a dollar in change taken and books were strewn all over the floor.

Looks very much as though someone is opposed to any type of education.

Procers along our Main Street and on all the streets in the country seem to agree with a woman grocer in Miami, Florida, who thinks O.P.S. regulations are all but impossible to comply with, would like to see Price Boss Ellis Arnall try his hand behind a counter just one week.

Maybe then, said Mrs. Marie Kiefer, Arnall would realize the size of the task presented grocers by his "half-million" words of O.P.S. regulations.

Mrs. Kiefer of Chicago is secretary-manager of the National Association of Retail Grocers. In a recent convention she told delegates she was serious about her idea.

"He could return to his desk in Washington enlightened," she said. "Surely, he would realize that it is the 45 regulations and 42 amendments of price laws presents an absolutely impossible task for the average retailer grocer."

She proposed the association pay Arnall's salary for one week's work in a grocery store.

The Ledger job printing department has printed illustrated maps of the Village of Lowell which will be distributed through the Lowell Board of Trade.

George S. Arnold who has been with the C. H. Runciman Co. the last year, has been transferred to Michigan to assist in the management of the elevator purchased there at week by the Runciman Co.

Jokes, jests, jabs and jibes just Jeff: In these prosperous times, which our country is enjoying, politicians keep telling us, we have too much money left at the end of our noses. "A Lowell housewife says we have to do without things we need, we just grin and bear it; it's living without unnecessary things that makes us want to scream. . . . he story is told of a one-eyed circus visiting a town in the hills where all of the citizens were deaf and engaged in the success of all acts. An old hillbilly watching a slide suddenly called out, "There's trick to it, he ain't really allerin' it."

Burnett Condon Dies From Burns In Sunday Fire

Burnett Condon of R-1, Lowell, died Sunday night from second and third degree burns which he received when his home in Vergennes township was destroyed by fire. He was alone in the house at the time and it is believed he was asleep when the fire of unknown origin broke out in the second story.

A neighbor saw the flames coming through an upstairs window and called the Lowell fire department. When Fire Chief Dave Clark arrived on the scene Condon was rolling on the ground in an effort to extinguish the flames which enveloped his entire body. He was taken to Biogdget hospital at approximately four o'clock in the afternoon and passed away six hours later without regaining consciousness.

Ada, Vergennes and Grattan fire units assisted in controlling the blaze but the two-story frame house was completely destroyed.

Neither have they ever come from as wide a territory as this year. He has received applications from Lansing, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Alma, St. Louis, and other cities as well as from smaller communities and local.

Showboat Club Choses 'Riverside Gardens' Flower Show Theme

Riverside Gardens will bloom in the Lowell City Hall on July 21-22. Jean Watterson one of the co-chairmen of the theme committee of the flower show sponsored by the Showboat Garden Club announces that the theme of the show this year will be "Riverside Gardens" and visitors will find beautiful flowers blooming at the stimulated river's edge beside pier and pilings. The committee expects to use the showboat dock painted last year by Philip and Janet Johnson. A nautical twist will be used in creating a background for the arrangements and specimens.

The Showboat Garden Club is working again this year in cooperation with the Showboat Association by beautifying the village for Showboat time, and by providing an added attraction for visitors coming to Lowell to see the Showboat.

School Electors Told Importance Of Registration

In another column of this paper will be found the official notice for the registration of electors who are not now qualified but who wish to qualify for the right of franchise in Graded School District Number One, Township of Lowell.

The registration law was changed in 1951 and there is still some question as to certain aspects of the law. Professional opinions that have been rendered provide that electors who registered with the Board of Education but not in either the village or township have lost the right to vote in the school district. Such electors have already been notified by letter and advised to register in the other units, which automatically give them the right of franchise within the school district.

A school elector, who lives in the school district, qualifies or loses the right to vote as he qualifies or loses the right in the village or township. Each year the secretaries of these units of government notify the secretary of the Board of Education to add or subtract from the list of voters maintained by the school district.

The law, however, provides that the secretary of the Board of Education must announce the registration of those who wish to qualify for school elections by the village and township clerks. It is to be noted that voters who are not qualified in either of these two units are qualified for the school district also.

New Polio Discovery Holds Great Promise

Virus First in Blood

The end of polio may be in sight due to a surprising discovery that polio strains first in our blood instead of nerves. The discovery already is used to prevent polio in monkeys and chimpanzees.

Two reports of the blood discovery, one from John Hopkins University and the other from Yale, were made last week to the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

Polio virus was supposed to go from the stomach to the nerves. However, it is now known that it can be taken into the blood by the mouth.

The basic reason for the present situation of a continuously increasing upward in automobile liability loss costs, Mr. Carlson pointed out, lies in the apathy of the people of this country toward the entire problem of automobile accidents.

Insurance Companies Suffer Heavy Losses

In Auto Liabilities

Stock insurance companies alone suffered underwriting losses of more than $200,000,000 on their automobile liability insurance business from 1945 through 1951, Thomas O. Carlson, secretary of the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters, declared recently.

The National Bureau actuaries stated that the net underwriting losses suffered by the stock companies on automobile liability coverage for the single year 1951 are making that year the most adverse ever experienced for automobile liability insurance by the stock companies.

Lowly Potato Is Source of Vitamin B1
Housewives, faced with planning menus without potatoes, are advised by the Michigan Department of Health to make sure the foods they substitute meet daily nutritional requirements.

While the potato has been much maligned as being "fattening" and providing only calories to the diet, nutritionists have come to its defense. They declare that potatoes are a valuable source of iron and thiamine (vitamin B1).
