

Registrations Break Records

In checking over the last minute applications for voting reveals an enthusiasm which has been lacking for the past several years, and if citizens remain that enthusiastic throughout the elections that are coming, it is a safe prediction that the successful candidates are the choice of the people.

Grand Rapids city clerk reports record registration in the signing up of 5,084 persons on Monday, the deadline date. The townships throughout the county have held a similar record in proportion to their population.

Ether Farnal, Lowell township clerk, had a heavy day with 169 applicants appearing on Monday. More than 200 new voters have been added to her registration book which already recorded upwards of 1500 voters.

In Ada township, Mrs. Blanche Lovelless reports the number of voters has been almost if not quite doubled in the past eight years. Monday she registered an even 100 bringing the total to 1106 who are ready to vote at the primary August 5.

C. Harold Buttrick, clerk of Cascade township, reports the number of registrations went way over his expectations and his list is larger by some 300.

Mrs. Smith, Bowne township clerk, reports she never has seen more interest shown in any election and while she did not give the exact figures as to the number on the register, she said she received more than 50 applications Monday.

Mr. Geldersha of Grattan also had close to 50. Cascade, Vergennes, and the other clerks in the various neighboring townships have each added considerable number to their voting power.

Nearby Boston township over the border into Ionia county, always a heavy voting precinct, reports that there are now 950 registered voters, 141 of whom are new in the book. The clerk predicts the next registration which will be just before the presidential election will bring the number up to at least one thousand.

New Bookmobile For Kent Readers Added to Service

A new bookmobile has been put into operation on the Kent County Library summer bookmobile schedule. The new vehicle was custom built by the Gerstenlager Company of Wooster, Ohio, on a one-ton Chevrolet chassis. Except for minor improvements in design, it is a replica of the bookmobile added in December, 1950.

The new bookmobile will be used this summer to replace in turn each of the other two bookmobiles, which will be taken off the road for complete overhauls and paint touch-ups. In the fall all three bookmobiles will serve the schools of the county.

In accordance with the practice of giving each vehicle a one syllable name, the new one has been named "Van." The other bookmobiles are called "Mike" and "Pat." During June, 11,467 books were circulated from Mike and Pat, an increase of 2,560 over the circulation for June, 1951.

Community Spirit Beats Defeat in Light Plant Fire

Fire which broke out around the exhaust stack of No. 3 diesel at the Lowell Light Plant about 3:00 o'clock Thursday morning did damage estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $50,000 to repair.

The fire was discovered by Hugo Connors who was operating the engines and he called diesel engine foreman, Gerald Staal, who with Connors attempted to extinguish the fire. This practice of the plant crew in putting out the fire is standard practice as these engine stacks have caused several small fires which have been successfully stopped.

Diesel plant foreman Staal reported that when he found the fire was more serious than expected, he asked village nightwatch Carl Kyser to summon the fire department. The fire siren blew only a few blasts when the wires connecting it burned off.

Both pieces of Lowell fire equipment and the Kent County truck from Ada responded and Staal shut down the plant at 3:45 a. m. when water from the department began playing on the fire. The fire which spread in the false ceiling of the old section of the plant, housing three diesel units, required heavy machinery to extinguish and gutted the roof of this section of the plant.

Lowell Families Unaware Most Lowell families awoke Thursday morning not knowing of the fire until the coffee failed to boil. Camp stoves, outdoor fireplaces and retired kerosene stoves were brought into use. Several down town restaurants which use bottled gas for cooking were crowded with families seeking breakfast.

By 8:00 o'clock street department workers, volunteers, C. H. Runciman employees and trucks were busy cleaning up the debris left by the fire. Over twenty truck loads were shoveled up and hauled away. The loose material on the roof was torn down and the rebuilding of the plant was under way.

Electrical assistance was called from Grand Rapids and employees of the Light and Power, and former employees all went to work at 10 a. m. Service for all the community was going before noon.

The plant was fortunate that no rain fell throughout the week end and temporary housing was built over the No. 2 and 3 diesel units and over the switchboard. Electrical crews labored steadily until Sunday at 2 p. m. when service was again cut back to the regular board and No. 2 diesel which caused the fire was placed back in operation.

The No. 3 diesel unit is expected to be back in operation this week and the emergency is over.

In an emergency council meeting on Thursday afternoon the council hired the engineering firm of Williams & Works to plan a fireproof roof for the old part of the plant. Work on this will be under way this week. Steel for the roof was found in Detroit and is on its way to Lowell.

Offers of Help Pour In Soon as knowledge of the fire became known electrical contractors offered assistance. Clement Electric Co., who have been doing work for the village had men here by 8 a. m. on Thursday.

Village citizens, former employees all dropped their regular work to help in the emergency. Frank McMahon, retired superintendent, who went through a plant fire in 1941, was on the scene, gloves in hand, to do his part. This was a real show of community cooperation.

John Phelps and his press carriers distributed an appeal by Light and Power Superintendent Thomas Moore to conserve water and electricity. Citizens of the community cooperated with this 100% and the emergency was over by Sunday afternoon.

Consumers Power Co., hearing of Lowell's plight, offered to install emergency service for the community within six hours if it became necessary.

This is another show of Lowell's ability to overcome any emergency and meet any disaster.

Neighbors Make Hay For Adelbert Odell

Neighbors of Adelbert G. Odell made quick work of 25 acres of hay last week when they learned Mr. Odell had been taken to Butterworth hospital for an emergency appendix operation, and that James Holliday, his hired man, was struggling alone trying to put up as much of it as he could.

Frank Ryder heard that Mr. Holliday was having machine trouble also and he, with his own baler, moved into the hay field, taking help with him. This was Friday afternoon and Saturday morning other neighbors and two men sent out by C. H. Runciman completed the job of putting 25 acres of well cured hay into the barn.

Those who helped were Virgil and Dan Goldner, Lewis Dewey, Ted Comdure, Frank Ryder, John Huntly, Wess Griffin, Denton and Gordon Wilcox, Robert Hale, Jim Holliday and Bill.

Mr. Odell is grateful to his helpful neighbors in time of need and while he is home from the hospital and getting along nicely, he keeps thinking how lucky he is.

Social Security Checks No Levy On Uncle Sam

Remarks of Rep. Ralph W. Gwinn of New York about the thirty-seven million persons getting government checks are widely circulated.

We go along with the New York Congressman's alarm at the increasing number of persons being paid for one thing or another by federal, state and local governments.

But Gwinn weakens his cause when he lists as a case in point the several million persons receiving aid under Social Security programs.

The money that these Americans get by way of checks was not raised by taxation, nor is it a drain on the U. S. Treasury. Social Security money comes out of the workers' pay and is matched by the employer. Uncle Sam doesn't contribute a nickel.

IN APPRECIATION

We wish to acknowledge with grateful appreciation all the kind expressions of sympathy and friendship with which our friends welcomed us home. Lowell citizens have no equal for kindness and neighborliness. Bill appreciated the kindnesses of our friends during his illness and would have loved everything that was done for him during the past week.

We wish to mention in particular Mr. Giffelty, Bill's Masonic brothers, and the American Legion who made his burial service so lovely and heart warming. Also David Coons and Mrs. J. E. Kammeraad for their beautiful music. Wes and Jerry Roth for their many courtesies, our neighbors and tenants who are always so kind, Gould and Ethel Ann Rivette, who have done all that a son and daughter could have done for us during the past year, our faculty colleagues for letters and the memorial fund, our friends at the Bank who managed our business affairs so well during our absence, and all others who helped us through this very difficult time. Truly, friendship is one of God's greatest gifts.

Campaign in Primary Becomes Family Affair For John B. Martin, Jr.

The campaign of Auditor General John B. Martin, Jr. to win the Republican nomination for United States Senator in the August 5 primary has become a family affair.

Helen Martin, attractive wife of the senatorial aspirant, maintains a busy household in Grand Rapids for the four Martin children, yet finds time to lend a hand in direct aid for her husband's campaign. An accomplished public speaker, Mrs. Martin fills numerous campaign speaking engagements and recently was selected as keynote speaker at a county Republican convention. In addition, she maintains an active interest in civic work, particularly the activities of P. T. A. and Camp Fire Girls. She also writes a weekly column for a Grand Rapids newspaper.

Richard, 16, eldest of four Martin children, travels with his father

Tough Plastic

A new plastic is as tough as any now on the market and at the same time is easy to mold, extrude, and machine with conventional equipment. The toughest of three grades when extruded as black pipe or tubing can be used in wells of farm-water supply. It can be pinched nearly flat without cracking or crazing. The pipe is light in weight and is easily machined or threaded.
