Gen. Eisenhower Wins in Landslide As Record-Breaking Yote is Polled Williams, Moody Slightly in Lead

General Dwight D. Eisenhower won his election to the presidency by a vast majority practically all over the United States by piling up masses of votes in places which had been considered uncertain and the surprise of the republican landslide for Ike has thrilled the nation. He even split the Southland and has made friends everywhere as a great leader. When Governor Adiai Stevenson of Illinois, Ike's opponent, conceded his defeat he spoke the highest words of praise and pledged his support to the newly elected president and urged all Americans to give Gen. Eisenhower the same support and to have the faith of a united people in democracy "to move forward with God's guidance in freedom, dignity and peace."

The election returns have been very gratifying in that such a large percentage of votes were cast in precincts all over the nation. Locally the voting is estimated at from 75 percent to 90 percent of the registered electors.. The large vote has signified from the first that the people favored a change; and when the votes were counted Eisenhower and Nixon were way out in front leading to a worried for fear they would have sweeping Republican victory.

The contest for governor is very close and as we go to press the final count has not been announced, though Alger had big majoritles throughout the state with the exception of the Detroit area. Williams has a strong lead in that locality

Amendments were unusually well voted, very few ballots being cast in blank as is often done when promitions are not generally understood. Farm organizations and others flave worked all through the campaign to educate voters on the importance of casting their vote on the constitutional amendment proposals and the results point to well organized work and the rural plan carried in most precincts in the state which also stamped approval to Proposal No. 1.

Lowell township turned out a large vote in each of the two precincts which totalled 1752 from a registration of some 2200 resulting in big Republican majority in each office.

Ada township had a high percentage of voting with 1078 ballots from a 3226 registration. The proposition for repealing the present Zoning Ordinance was defeated 752 to 289.

Cascade township turned out with 1053 electors at the polls and in the two special propositions it was voted 2 to 1 to close taverns on Sunday and the proposal to sell liquor by the glass was turned down 2 to 1.

Our neighboring townships, Boston and Keene, in Ionia county report a heavy vote, Boston with 1000 on the registration passed out 910 ballots and true to form Boston went strong for the Republican ticket. Keene experienced the largest election in years when 327 of the 394 registered voters were at the polls and of the number Eisenhower had 240 votes to Stevenson's 81.

The Propositions to increase Tax for new jail in Kent county and to levy Tax for the jail were both defeated by strong majorities. On the Proposed Amendments to the Constitution No. 1 was voted "Yes", No. 2 "No" and No. 3, "Yes".

Green, succulent pasture, containing many of the elements needed by livestock, is not available in winter. It must be replaced by ingredients in the feeds you give your birds and animals. Livestock and poultry profits, under existing conditions, require high production. Working and highproducing animals need concentrated feeds containing a wide range of nutrients in their proper amounts. You can be sure your livestock and poultry get all the feeding nutrients they need when you use the feeds we offer you.
