

Successful deer hunters continue to return from the north with their bucks among whom are Earl Evans, Clark Fletcher, and Chief of Police Frank L. Stephens. Roy Carpenter of Saranac who was in the same party as Fletcher also brought down a deer, and arrived home the first of the week.

Clare, Lewis and Don Phillips and Don Phillips, Jr. and Wayne Marker returned with four deer and a huge bobcat. They were hunting in the region of Marquette on Lake Superior. Lewis knocked one down but lost him.

Forrest Buck reports seeing lots of deer but not even one with horns.

Extensive repairs, remodeling and redecorating has been done in the Leonard Studio and makes a much more convenient and attractive building for the Camera and Gift shop.

The Sanitary Market has also been redecorated during the week end and is all bright and shiny for the holiday trade.

We hear a lot about highways and their deterioration these days and it is small wonder that the roads are not holding up. When one stops to consider, the big highway construction program of the twenties, which gave us most of the roads we are using today, was aimed at the requirements of that time, not of today.

The obvious, urgent need there was for improved surfaces on existing roads. The idea of re-designing highways to make them adequate for much greater traffic demands did not occur to most people, because few could foresee the tremendous growth of car and truck travel which was ahead.

Highway construction in that road-building boom was planned for life expectancies of 15 to 30 years. Their number is up.

Another new family arrived in Lowell last week and is comfortably settled in an apartment in the Smith house on N. Washington st. They are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hasselman, Mr. Hasselman is associated with the Skelly Oil Co. which is constructing a propane storage plant at Alto.

Jokes, jests and jibes just by Jeff: A loafer is described as a person who tries to make both week ends meet. The weekly newspaper people try to keep them from meeting, these holiday weeks . . . A Lowell woman tells us it is just as hard to find a husband after marriage as it was before . . . Did you ever notice how much bigger opportunities always look going than coming? . . . Most vegetables of high color such as greens, squash, broccoli, carrots and tomatoes are said to be high in vitamin A—and chlorophyll. . . "H-m-m, it all comes back to me now," sang the little black and white waltz kity as the wind changed direction.

'Any Deer' Season Last Three Days In North Half of Lower Peninsula Hunters Keeping Fingers Crossed

Crossed fingers are the high sign as Michigan's first large-scale "any deer" season draws near. Hunters and game technicians are hoping for the best while half expecting the worst.

The "any deer" season means just what the term implies. During the last three days of the regular season, November 28-30 inclusive, hunters can take any deer in the north half of the lower peninsula. Bucks, does, even fawns—all will be legal targets. It's a drastic measure designed to make a bad condition better.

The bad condition is the demonstrable fact that there are too many deer in large areas—even whole counties—in the lower peninsula deer range.

The consequence has been that many thousands of deer—an estimated 40,000 in one recent winter—have starved.

The condition isn't something that has come overnight. It has been building up over a period of a quarter-century or more. In brief, what has happened is this: The herd never was large until woodsmen chopped down most of Michigan's trees. Deer don't have giraffes' long necks and they can't get enough to eat when trees grow tall. In the first decades following the lumbering era when second growth trees were small, deer multiplied rapidly. But the new trees grew taller and the deer range shrank as intensive resort development materialized. And the herd was in trouble as soon as the food supply started dwindling.

Starvation Losses Heavy

Areas in the north half of the lower peninsula where losses of deer from starvation have been heaviest include Oscoda, Crawford, Roscommon, and parts of surrounding counties, running north through Montmorency county into the southern edges of Presque Isle and Cheboygan counties and including the Pigeon River country in Oscoda county and, farther west, taking in the northern part of Wexford and Manistee counties.

New Lowell Showboat Signs Erected by Board of Trade

Jack Fonger, president of the Lowell Board of Trade and Cary Stiff, chairman of the retail business committee were happy Friday to see the newly erected entrance signs on M-21. The new, original, and colorful signs proclaiming Lowell as the home of the Showboat are the work of "Hal" Votey who builds signs in Traverse City. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Votey of Ada and a neighbor of Cary Stiff.

The signs, built of plywood with the cut out design raised from the background are visible at night with Scotch light silver against the royal blue enameled background. The Showboat design was taken from original Mississippi pattern after several months of research work by Mr. Stiff. The Board of Trade has a contract with the manufacturer to have the signs maintained over the years in like-new condition.

These attractive introductions to Lowell will, according to traffic surveys, have an average of 5,000 cars a day pass by them with two persons per car, making a daily impression on approximately 10,000 people. It is hoped in the near future that similar signs may be erected on US-16 with its 7,000-car-a-day traffic count and bring the Lowell Showboat to the attention of an average 24,000 persons daily.

Horton Trespass Act Holds Good as Hunter Loses Deer to Farmer

Deer hunting customs down here in southern Michigan are a little different than those in the northern part of the state. A Pevamo hunter found that out last Saturday, according to Conservation Officer Earl Goff.

The Pevamo man was hunting over in the northwest section of Clinton county. He sighted a nice buck and put a good shot in him. The buck leaped a fence and fell down dead.

As the hunter prepared to go over the fence and claim his prize, he was accosted by the owner of the property, who refused to let him enter. "It's my land, so it's my buck," said the farmer. The farmer had no license, but he went into town and got one and then tagged the buck and dressed him out.

To say the Pevamo hunter was a little put out is definitely an understatement. The air was blue. He complained to Conservation authorities but to no avail. They pointed out that, under the Horton trespass act, the farmer had every right in the world to keep the hunter out.

The farmer had not violated the law, since it wasn't he that shot the buck. If he had killed it without a license, he'd have been dead wrong. But under the circumstances, the Conservation officer was helpless to prosecute.

There's not much question that the sympathy of most experienced north woods deer hunters will be with the Pevamo man in this instance. On the other hand, hunters should remember that most of the deer country down here is private property, while up north it is largely public, state-owned land.

Cong. G. R. Ford Reviews Aspects Of New Congress

Despite the many precedents and singular events which marked this presidential election, one of the most unusual in history, when January 3 rolls round traditional procedures will usher in the new 83rd Congress and install the new administration.

Before Congress convenes on January 3, House members-elect, both Democratic and Republican will meet in their respective party conferences to select candidates for House offices. A Speaker and Clerk of the House, Sergeant at Arms, Chaplain, Doorkeeper, and Postmaster of the House will have to be elected by the members of the 83rd Congress. In addition, the groups also select their party officials. These are the floor leader, party whip, assistant whips and committee on committees.

Organize 83rd Congress

The first roll will be called by Ralph Roberts, Clerk of the 82nd Congress. Nominations will be made by a member from each party and the entire body will then proceed to a vote. Republicans have the right to call the roll. The Democrats in the new Congress, the Republican nominee for Speaker (probably Joseph Martin of Mass.) will, no doubt, take the election and senior Republican, Rep. Daniel A. Flood of N. Y. will administer the oath of office. The newly installed Speaker will then administer the oath of office to the entire body of members-elect.

Various organizational resolutions will be brought up and voted upon during the first day or two, although committee membership may take considerably longer because of the change in party control.

Same System in Senate

In the Senate, much the same system prevails with the exception of the election of a President pro tempore, who presides in the absence of the Vice-President. Official appointments may be delayed in the higher body until after January 20 when Sen. Richard Nixon is sworn into office.

The year, the first business of the joint Congress will be the counting of electoral votes, which according to Federal law takes place on January 6.

All in all, the Congressional organization ought to be ship-shape in time for the inauguration, or at least well under way when the president-elect himself, Dwight D. Eisenhower, the other bore the letter head of Senator Estes Kefauver. Both ironically stated that they looked forward to our working together in the new Congress.

For my part, I sincerely hope it will be possible for the safety and well-being of the Nation, for all branches of our Federal government to work together with world peace and national security and stability as our goal.

Much to be Thankful For

With the traditional Thanksgiving dinner sending all sorts of heavenly aromas through the house, and friends gathering to spend a happy and peaceful day together—it's not hard to remember that we all have much to be thankful for. For those to whom the year has brought misfortune this day of gloom. To those I express my deepest sympathy as also my hope that the future will bring blessings merited by their suffering.

But to all . . . Betty, Mike, Jack and I, as well as my staff, send our best wishes for a Happy Happy Thanksgiving Day.

Study of Log Markings Recalls Romantic Lumber Era in Michigan for Wayne U. Coeds

Twins Erina and Galina Smyrnoff of Chelsea, Wayne University students, try to operate a woodman's saw. The border of log markings by counties is an indication of the variety of types of markings used during Michigan's great pine harvest.

The lumbering era in Michigan was one of the grandest and most colorful this State has known. The early history of Michigan is, in fact, the development, growth, and decline of the lumber industry.

Dr. Bert Judkins, head of the geography department at Wayne University in Detroit, points out in his study Michigan, Geographic Backgrounds in the Development of the Commonwealths: "It is true the lumbering era was spectacular and romantic, but there was loss of life and property in fires and the logging and river driving often took tolls in lives of men.

One phase of this glorious era was the marking of logs to facilitate the identification of ownership by the numerous boom companies that sprung up during the great harvest years. These companies ran logs down the river, sorted, graded and sent them to the sawmills immediately to make way for more and more logs.

The early log marks were merely hacks cut into the bark with an ax—simple straight-line symbols. However, in the 1840's when logging increased to a grand scale, the necessity for more and different types of markings arose.

Similarly, on the log, markings were the cause of many disputes over rightful ownership of log property. Thus, in 1842, the Michigan Legislature enacted a law requiring log marks to be registered in the county where the logs were to be manufactured into lumber.

Michigan's many tributaries, rivers, and falls carried a tremendous load of the great pine harvest. North of Saginaw Bay, the Hills, Au Gres, Au Sable, and Thunder Bay rivers each had separate boom companies to handle the river loads.

With this great increase of logs, markings became so complex and varied that it was reported that one boom company had a standing offer of $50 to anyone who could design a mark of three letters in any arrangement that had never been used before.

Many humorous markings came out of this era, such as "Dumbell", "Chicken on a Fence", "Red Bug", "Snuff Box", "Pair of Legs", "Fig's Head", "The Tobacco River Lumber Company of Saginaw County" (apparently enough selected the marks "Tobacco", "Snuff", "Clair", "Fig's", and "Head" to identify their logs, and "Snuff" to identify their logs).

The 4 Potter men and Ralph Wheaton returned from deer hunting Thursday evening. Byron and Bill Potter each got a deer.

Paul Potter returned his wife Maude home Friday evening from the James Dean home where she stayed while he was north hunting.

Mrs. Mitzie Scimmon stayed at the Blough home while Mr. and Mrs. Louis Blough attended his father's funeral in Belding Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Fitzsimmons spent Wednesday evening with Edna Johnson. Coles, Shores and son were Friday evening with Mrs. and Mrs. Ralph Wheaton and Marie in Saranac.

Colin Blough will be taking any news for the Ledger during the next 2 or 3 weeks as I am in bed again. My leg has opened again.

THAT DEER PROBLEM

Several months ago before we get any definite figures on the deer kill in Michigan this year, we get an idea of the deer problem. These months are sure to be filled with arguments pro and con, and there are bound to be many diehards who will believe that deer hunting is just another way of exterminating a valuable resource. Experienced game management men know better.

Our neighboring state of Wisconsin, with a smaller herd than our own, has been battling public opinion for 15 years in an effort to control the welfare of their deer, and the Conservation Commission of that State is finally getting a nod of approval from the people. They began broad control in 1939 with a 5 day season on antlerless deer in addition to their regular buck season. A harvest of 150,000 deer resulted in 1950 and again in 1951 the state had a seven day antlerless season. Despite predictions that the deer herd in Wisconsin was "all but exterminated," 150,000 were killed in 1950, and another 150,000 in 1951. The 3 year take of more than 450,000 deer is actually as many as would have been taken in 10 years with a buck law.

Effect On Herd

A better balance has been established between the range and the deer herd in Wisconsin—a balance which will result in a healthier, more productive herd, and a larger one.

The Michigan picture may be no different. Michigan buck hunters will probably kill the usual 150,000 deer in the first 13 days of the season this year. . . 30,000 of which will come from the upper peninsula. Another 100,000 may be taken in the final 3 day antlerless period. The experts say we can easily afford it. There are an estimated 500,000 deer in the northern part of the lower peninsula—55% does, 15% bucks and 30% fawns. Our deer herd is larger than that of Wisconsin. It is estimated that we have 1,000,000 deer in Michigan. It is estimated that we have 1,000,000 deer in Michigan. It is estimated that we have 1,000,000 deer in Michigan.

Report Fire Property The Minutes You Save May Save Your Home

Wintertime, when snow drifts and icy roads may slow down the fire engines, is an especially dangerous time for fires. When fire strikes, every minute counts. Don't delay the firefighters even further by your carelessness. Be sure you know how to call the fire department.

The time to brief yourself is now, before you smell smoke. The National Board of Fire Underwriters suggests these simple steps:

Write down the correct telephone number of your local fire department, and place it near the phone. Or, if the procedure in your town is to call the operator, make note of that.

Give your address clearly and distinctly when you call.

Find out about your alarm box—where it is located and how to operate it.

Once you have turned in the alarm, wait by the box to direct the firemen to the fire.

The minutes you save may save your home—in any season!

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all our neighbors and friends both in Lowell and Fallburg Park for their many kindnesses during our recent bereavement. Each act is deeply appreciated.

Kent Ag. Topics

Notes from Kent Co. Extension Office

E. W. Ruess of Caledonia has a registered cow, Rosemont C. Candy, which produced 12,614 lbs. of milk and 669 lbs. of butterfat during her last lactation. She is a five year old. Candy is the daughter of Carl of Hickory Grove who has 49 daughters and 1 son in the performance register of the American Guernsey Cattle Club.

From Arthur Rosenberger, D. H. I. A. tester, for the Central Kent Association, we have the following report. High cows for the month of October are Vernon Dunn of Rockford with a Guernsey producing 84.6 lbs. of butterfat. Second high a Guernsey owned by Adrian Alles and Sons. Third a Holstein owned by Lynn and Norman Bradford. High medium herd is the Holstein of Plog Bros., Rockford; second high medium herd, Arthur P. Edison of Grand Rapids; Large herds, Lynn and Norman Bradford of Sparta, first and Roy T. Smutz and A. C. Blaser of Lowell, second.

New ventilating systems for dairy barns seem to be popular. Many installations are being made. Bill Zimmerman at Cedar Springs has recently installed one as did Nelson Potter of Caledonia. If you need some help in this project give us a ring.

Roy T. Smutz and A. C. Blaser sold the top cow in the State Holstein Sale held this fall. Congratulations.

A Freemartin heifer—that is one born twin to a bull, can be blood typed as a calf to see whether she will be a normal breeder. If the calf checks out with the same blood type as her twin brother she will not breed. A local veterinarian can draw the blood samples and send them to a special laboratory at Ohio State University.

Farm auction sales listing dairy cattle to be sold for beef are potential sources of infection for "Bangs Disease". State Department of Agriculture representatives here recently points out that purchase of the animals for other than immediate slaughter is a violation of the law. Cattle over one year old for breeding purposes must have a negative Bang's test within the specified time limits prior to sale. The current Bangs testing program in the county using the milk ring test is not sufficient evidence. Individual blood tests are required on each animal, which your local veterinarian is prepared to take. Of course, it's common sense to isolate all purchased animals for at least a couple weeks to avoid spreading disease.

GI Problems Require

Just Plain Old Caution Saving Veteran Homes

Veterans certainly have their share of problems these days, according to Congressman Gerald R. Ford who submits the score of letters on allotment checks, GI loans, GI education, etc., received at his office almost daily. Many of these problems are unavoidable but some might be escaped if just plain old caution were used.

For example, when it comes to buying something as expensive as a house, nearly all of us have to borrow money to swing the deal. That involves regular payments every month. Now, sometimes, in spite of everything that can be done, a few fall behind on their payments—and of course, that holds true for some veterans who have bought homes with GI loans. So here's a warning. Watch out for "sharps."

The bait used by these tricksters is a promise to help you wipe out your accumulated debt and bring you up to date. But to do this you have to sign the sharper's papers. Too late, you learn that what you really signed was a deed to your property. That makes you pay plenty to get your own house back. If you can't raise the money, he takes you to court. He produces the deed signed by you and puts you out of your own house. And that's only one of the tricks they use.

May Buy Your Equity

A faker may offer you a small sum of money for your equity in the house. As bait, he offers you the opportunity to buy a less expensive house in a cheaper location. It looks plausible. You think you're swapping a place you can't afford for a place you can afford—and paying the sharper for helping you. But here's the catch! Later on you are informed that there are "no listings available" in the lower cost neighborhood. You are then legally out of the house you signed over to the swindler for a lot less than your equity in it.

Now it may happen that you'll never run into a financial jam—or run into one of these slick operators. But it'll pay you to be on the alert. Remember this common sense rule: Don't ever sign anything unless you thoroughly understand it. So, if you own a GI home and you have trouble meeting your payments check first with the bank and the VA. Remember this too: If you need information or help on any other benefits provided for you get in touch with the one place that has all the dope—your nearest Veterans Administration office.

GASSING THE SOIL

Anhydrous ammonia is ammonia gas handled in liquid form under high pressure, explains Paul J. Rood, extension soil scientist at Michigan State College. When pressure is released, the liquid changes to gas. When injected at least four inches deep in soil and covered, the ammonia readily combines with soil as fertilizer, he notes.
