The Howard Heffelbower farm near Clarksville was our "misslery turn" last week. The Heffelhowers purchased the place, located onehalf mile west and a mile north of Clarksville, from Samuel Kline nine years ago, Since living there they have painted all the buildings, erected a pole shed 30 x 60, and put most of the acreage to general forming. Last week's mystery picture was identified by Mrs. Ernest Roth, 124 S. Grove st., Lowell, who will receive a gift subscription to the Ledger. This week we have pictured another "mystery farm", to tease your memory and give you a chance to win a subscription. Just phone the Ledger office after 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon (in order to give all rural route patrons a chance to get their Ledger) and see if you can't give us the correct information. If it is your farm which is pictured you will receive an attractively-framed picture of your place, the same one from which we made this news engraving. Other details about the Heffelbower farm are that they have 118 acres in corn, oats and hay, except for 80 which they rent out. They have a herd of 40 Holsteins and 50 or 60 Yorkshire hogs. Mr. Heffelbower uses the row crop method of farming, and believes in balanced rationing of all livestock. His future plans are to build a new milk house to increase his herd of milking cows from 18 to 24,

Then the California Highway Patrol chose Pontiac after three days of grueling competitive tests of aix of America's top performers.
