Council Briefs

Present to petition the council not to order the vacating of King Street east of Jackson Street was Attorney Keith Vander Weyden of the law firm of Allaben, Davids & Massie in behalf of Calvin Pinckney and others who claim that closing the street would prevent access to their property. The council postponed action on the street closing until the next meeting.

Several citizens from Maple St. were present to request prompt action on relocating the street that is now on private property. The council promised to see that work was started on moving the street within a month.

Carl Christensen was spokesman for four residents of Amity Street, north of Mercer street asking to have the sewer extended one block to serve the four residents. The council proposed a plan to share the cost with the project.

Clem Grindle appeared again at the council requesting that the rocks that have rolled off the hill behind his home be removed or that he be paid damages. The hillside is plated as a street. The council is investigating the removal.

Mr. Grindle also reported to the council that big quantity of diseased elm trees that are being hauled to the dump is creating a problem, and damaging village equipment trying to move the huge chunks. He offered to manage the dump if he is given complete authority for $30 a week.

He told the council he felt sure he could more than save his wages by protecting village equipment from damage. The council decided to try out the plan for a two-week trial period. Mr. Grindle has been licensed to salvage the dump for the past year and regulate private dumping.

Bruce Walter appeared at the council meeting and requested that West Street north of M-21 be vacated for one block. West Street is platted through the Foreman Poultry Farm property but not opened as a throughfare.

Mr. Walter revealed to the council that he has negotiated the purchase of the Foreman property and would like the street closed. The council called for a hearing on closing the street at the next meeting Tuesday, September 2.

Mr. Walter also requested the council to survey the Boynton property north of Sherman Street and west of Monroe for plating for low cost housing development. He told the meeting that he has an option on the property and would like to know what would be required to open streets and provide sewer and water service. A check will be made with village engineers and a reply forthcoming in the next few weeks, he was told.

Bids for a new street department truck and grader were requested to be presented to the council at its September 15 meeting. Requests for bids were sent to all local dealers.

Windstorm Wednesday Morning Damages Buildings, Downs Trees

Telephone and electric light poles were severely damaged and several were knocked down east of Parnell, in the Murray Lake area and on Four, Five and Six Mile roads Wednesday morning about 10:30 when a windstorm swept through the area, accompanied by much-needed rain.

Tractors immediately removed the trees from the roads which were blocking cars and trucks. Residents in the area were without electric current for several hours as crews could not move in until the storm had cleared. Telephone lines, which were off for an hour in some places, were repaired and the Kent County Road Commission went to work clearing debris near the roads.

John Jakeway, Six-Mile road, reported that the south portion of his barn roof had been blown off. Other similar reports were made in that area.

Reserve Signup Available Soon

Farmers of Kent County will have the opportunity within a few weeks to get full information about the Conservation Reserve program of the Soil Bank for 1959 and decide on participation, according to Joseph Schweitzer, Chairman of the Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

The Conservation Reserve is being opened early this year because the other part of the Soil Bank—the Acreage Reserve Program—will not be in effect in 1959.

Under the Conservation Reserve Program, farmers contract with the U. S. Department of Agriculture to reduce their acreage of harvested crops for a period of up to 10 years, and devote this acreage to conservation practices.

In return for this contribution to production adjustment the Government makes an annual rental payment to the farmer based on the productivity of his land. The Government will also share in the cost of establishing the conservation practices.

Attention is called to three major changes in the 1959 Conservation Reserve from the program in effect this year. They are:

1. A higher average level of rental payments with the individual rate depending upon the productivity, agricultural value, and rental rates for similar land in the locality.

2. A higher payment rate as an incentive for a farmer to place all eligible cropland in the Reserve.

3. A priority system for accepting contract applications which gives preference to those farmers offering land at the lowest cost per unit of productivity.

Publication will be made as soon as the information relative to the 1959 Conservation Reserve Program is received in the County Office.

Unwise Buying Habits Cost Money

"Bait Advertisements Hook Suckers"

(This is the second in a series of articles prepared by the Michigan Retailers Association in an effort to better educate the buying public of Michigan in improving their buying habits. This newspaper is cooperating with WELLS DRILLING in this series.)

Do you like being a sucker? If you do, don't bother to read this article. For instance, you may see an item advertised that appears to be a tremendous bargain. Naturally you rush to the store or call the salesman for a "free home demonstration." You will soon discover that the product advertised in the paper is what he really wants to sell you. He will probably brush off the advertisement as being of inferior quality and then go into great detail to tell you about a product that will cost you a lot more money. If you are spending a lot on "bait advertising" of products that he never intended to sell you in the first place, he now "has a fish on the line, and is reeling for the fish."

This bait advertiser usually doesn't have, or wouldn't sell you, the product he advertised in his ad, whether it is a kitchen range, a new car, a TV set, jewelry, a washer and dryer, or even a house. When you ask for his advertised item, he is either "all out" or "the new shipment hasn't arrived." He may also either knock the product that he advertised or claim that the price as quoted was a mistake.

These bait ads hurt you, your family, friends, neighbors, and anyone who is taken in by their hooks. They bring in an awful lot of business to the advertiser who will stoop to use trickery to get you in their store. Probably the most unfortunate result of these bait ads is that it often causes many reputable businessmen to try to sell their goods in the same way. Soon you have a whole bunch of unscrupulous businessmen who will stoop to use trickery to get you in their store. Probably the most unfortunate result of these bait ads is that it often causes many reputable businessmen to try to sell their goods in the same way. Soon you have a whole bunch of unscrupulous businessmen who will stoop to use trickery to get you in their store.

Most of our newspapers, radio and TV stations will refuse these bait ads when they spot them, but many times they are difficult to recognize, as many of the most ethical retailers run "price leader" ads which are good, honest bargains. If you bring into their store where you may buy other items at regular prices. You must also remember that any good salesman who is selling a product that he may remind you that a more expensive product than the one advertised is of better quality and will probably last longer in the long run. The difference between the ethical salesmen of this nature and the sales techniques of the bait advertiser is that the latter tries not to sell you the "bargain" that he advertised to get you in the store.

Watch for these common schemes: (a) food club plans claiming to pay for a freezer out of food savings; (b) referral or hop-along plans, offering a "free" incentive, or washer in return for a list of your friends as prospects; (c) phony contests with credit checks or other discounts gimmicks as prizes. Without exception, these something-for-nothing appeals have proved to be a delusion and a snare, hoodwinking the victims in 10 months of debt, price-padded products, or slippish workmanship.

Being taken in by the price is not the only danger that you may encounter when you answer a bait ad. If there are people who trick you by advertising when they usually will also not hesitate to trick you in their service offer, or their guarantees.

Most advertisers are making honest efforts to sell you their products and to get you into their place of business. However, the rotten few can really hook you where it hurts—in your pocketbook. You are the only one who can effectively use these traps. Just follow these few simple suggestions:

1. Don't be taken in by the old something-for-nothing or free appeal. The stores you know and trust will seldom use such terms as "amazing" or "fantastic" bargains. They don't have to.
2. Ask your friends and people in your community about the reputation of a store in which you may be planning to buy. Be sure that the merchant is established and reliable.
3. Before you buy an item, stop and think.

Restore Site of Fort de Buade

It is considered poor form to open a story with a negation. But who ever heard of a strip of uninhabited rocky shoreline becoming a tourist attraction? It just doesn't happen.

Yet, at the north end and just to the left of the Mackinac Bridge is a spot of land, soaked in history, which is getting an uncommon amount of attention from the Michigan traveler. This is the site where Fort de Buade will be reconstructed.

For this is the land of Father Marquette, greatest of all the missionaries; of Sœur de LaSalle, most intrepid of French explorers; of Sœur de LaMoigne Cadillac, most colorful of outpost builders. It is the St. Ignace country—once the last outpost of civilization, a place of terror and opportunity, of wealth and spilled blood. But history plays an important part in today's recreational travel business, according to Robert J. Purting, executive secretary of the Michigan Tourist Council.

"A recent survey of 10,000 Michigan vacationers showed history to be among the top attractions of our state," he said, "and while the reconstruction of this ancient fort still is in the planning stages, already it is attracting attention from the early publicity these plans have been given.

"And nowhere is the romance of the past linked so closely to the present," the tourist chief said. "The site where the reconstructed fort will stand commands a sweep of the Straits of Mackinac and of the two inland seas of Lake Huron and Lake Michigan as far as the eye can see. This channel and the bridge which now spans it are today's corridors of commerce. But the Straits was a highway of the past, and the ghosts of the course de bois penetrate the mists of time."

Here to the St. Ignace country in the 1690's came the remnant of the Huron Indians, fleeing their ferocious neighbors the Iroquois. Accompanying them was Father Marquette who stayed to minister to their spiritual needs. He established in 1672 the Mission of St. Ignace at the place called Missishkibiak, the present day St. Ignace region.

This mission soon became a focal point of fur traders and adventurers, some seeking gold—of which there was none, some seeking copper, but which was there in plenty, but which was to elude the white man for another century.

And with them came the first traders—the couriers de bois. In 1685 they brought 100 barrels of brandy and trade goods. This act of business brought on the building of Fort de Buade.

But there was another reason for establishing Fort de Buade. English fur traders were reported penetrating to the Great Lakes. A garrison at St. Ignace could block them. De LaBarriere erected a fort in 1697. Then in 1698 came Cadillac, a prosaic Gascon, quick tempered, and equally quick with sword or pen, who left a colorful description of his command. He tells us that the French colony now numbered 60 houses, and that 7,000 Hurons and Ottawa lived in a huge palisade—lost forever to three concentric rows of palisades. Fort de Buade was puny by comparison, lacking even block-houses.

"The houses of the French are of wood, one log upon another," he wrote, "but they are roofed with the bark of cedar trees. Only those of the Jesuits were roofed with plank. The roofs of the houses were made of birch bark. The roofs of the houses were made of birch bark. The roofs of the houses were made of birch bark."

Annual Report and Financial Statement of Lowell Public Schools

Fourth Class School District No. 1, Fr., Lowell Township, Kent County, Michigan

The Sputniks, Vanguard and other Explorers of the Stratosphere and beyond have caused many well-meaning citizens to go up in the air over the American Educational System. Courses of study, procedures and, indeed, the entire American Philosophy of Education has been more closely scrutinized than ever before, and those engaged in teaching should not resent such questions. The educational system belongs to the people and they not only have a right, but they have a duty in evaluating what is being attempted in our schools and colleges.

However, in comparing courses pursued by virtually ALL of our children with those offered to the FEW in foreign lands it should be borne in mind that in our democracy our philosophy demands that we strive to do what we can FOR ALL while in many lands the selective FEW are made to specialize in an effort to SERVE THE STATE. However, complacency, self-satisfaction and smugness should never be a part of American educators. An analysis and an appraisal of procedures and subject matter are always in order. The furor caused by comparative scientific accomplishments has given impetus to a searching examination of what is being attempted in our schools. Those who criticize the most, however, would do well to evaluate very carefully—they should not be guilty of expounding the same type of careless philosophy that they insist is in vogue in the programs of education.

On the other hand the schools must reflect the wishes of the public and to that end educators on all levels must be willing to listen to those who are earnest and thoughtful in their criticisms and suggestions.

The Lowell Board of Education and the corps of teachers have always striven to keep an open mind as to what is best for the child—in the light of local and state desires and also according to law. An examination of the Lowell course of study will reveal that an effort has been made to provide sufficient courses to meet the demands of intelligence at all levels. At least one year of mathematics has been required of all pupils in high school. Emphasis has been placed upon the academic as well as on the vocational subjects. Records of graduates at higher institutions of learning have been very satisfactory. The records of those entering industry have also been good.

However, in the light of self-appraisal and suggestions by others, the Board and faculty instituted the following changes for the school year 1957-58:

- reading courses for the slow readers during the Summer.
- an entire new course in Science throughout the grades.
- more comprehensive courses in Mathematics in the high school.

In teaching subject matter the Lowell teachers also are aware that the teaching of attitudes is also very important. Financially the Lowell Schools are in a satisfactory position as an examination of the following report will disclose. However, receipts per pupil from tuition, transportation, and the general property tax is on the decline and if this trend continues, it is likely that the patrons will be asked to vote on a special levy to help in the operation of the schools. The total tax on the State Equalized Valuation will be not to exceed five mills for debt service and about eight mills for operation. By comparison these figures are low.

Citizens are asked to examine the financial report for 1957-58.

Place the roast fat side up in an open pan. The backbone acts as a natural rack for pork loin. Roast in a slow oven (325° F.). For a crusty and sweet coating, cover the outer surface evenly with a mixture of 1/2 cup brown sugar, a dash of ground cloves, and about a tablespoon of vinegar before placing roast in oven. Estimate cooking time, allowing about 25 minutes per pound or longer, but for finest flavor and to insure meat that is completely cooked, roast pork to an internal temperature of 185° F. as shown by a roast meat thermometer.
