the motorist a talse sense of security.

"Such roads," he points out, "encourage travel at high speeds because they separate traffic and provide additional room for maneuverability. However, they still subject the motorist to friction from vehicles or pedestrians moving in and out of roadside services, business establishments and residences.

"They require stop lights at major intersections which vastly increase rear-end collision potential They also require left-turning in the face of oncoming high speed traffic.

"In short." Mackie says, "although they are capable of carrying a greater volume of traffic than a two-lane highway, they still expose the motorist to the same hazards, at a higher rate of speed, as the obsolete two-lane highway they were designed to improve upon or replace."

Mackie believes that the present controlled access highway system in Michigan, along with the 900 miles of premosed sim-

Smart looking? You bet! And comfortable, too!

Sure, styling is important in a new car. You expect a new car to be sleek and smart - but not at the expense of comfort. Yet in trying to design a car as low and modern looking as the Swept-Wing Dodge, some '59 cars have practically designed out the people. Not Dodge. It's designed around you. It's easier to get into (no protruding door posts), easier to get out of (no high door sills to trip over), more comfortable to sit in (there's room to spare). All this and Swivel Seats, too! New '59 DODGE
