Proclaim This Library Week

William Jones, jr., Lowell Village President, Monday issued a proclamation declaring April 12-18 National Library Week.

Jones declared in part: "Since ours is a society based on the choices made by the many rather than the few, its greatest concern must be the development of every individual to his highest capacity. Its vitality, its very existence depend upon the extent to which all the people have formed the habit of finding out; of weighing alternatives intelligently; of reading to be informed,

"Although reading has always been an unparallelelled source of entertainment, suddenly 'a better-read, better-informed America' is imperative. The printed word has imperative. The printed word has more than the state of the state become a necessity to keep us in ponsible citizenship. Only a wide variety of reading can inform us of what has been and what is, and can train the imagination to forge ahead into what might be in the

and its branches and Kent County Library headquarters and five branches at Casnovia, Grandville, Lowell, Paris and Wyoming.

Miss Joyce Pleune, acting director of Kent County Library, and Dr. Donald Kohlstedt, director of Grand Rapids Public libraries both gave hearty endorsement to observance of Library Week throughout the nation.

This is the second year the event has been held. Both city and county libraries report current memberships and circulation at all-time highs. "People in this area are reading more than ever before, it would appear." Miss Pleune said. "Howbetter-informed citizenry' is great- of a farm fish pond. er than ever. Offer Friends Chance To Participate

The friends who are planning the erection of the plaque on a 20 ton boulder at the park, are also going to provide all the many friends of Frank McMahon an op-portunity to sign a letter of recog-nition to be sealed in copper and placed beneath the plaque on the stone. This letter to be signed, will be placed in several Lowell offices and business places, Also anyone who wishes to take a part in erecting the plaque and stone may make any contribution they may wish.

Vernon pointed out increased benefits of Fescue Grass for orchard cover over June Grass, Red Top and Timothy. Stanley Sias, employed on the Jost farm for several years, mentioned benefits of tile drainage and how the sodded waterways had prevented gullies while carrying off excess surface water.

Farm plan revisions Vernon and Stanley will now use are: Field re-arrangement for longer fields and for a balance of crops to fit increased livestock needs. Some land formerly used for field crops now to be used for permanent pasture. A more intensive crop rotation to be followed on the better crop land. Use of field strips. Additional sod waterways and more improved orchard seedings.
