BUCK SHOT Engagement Told by Norman Gotschall **********

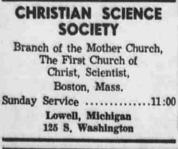

It is certainly a pleasure to watch 7th grade basketball team play. These boys have many of the good habits of a fine varsity team. Outstanding is their ability to see openings quickly and to pass well. qually startling is their interest n defense. This grade promises to e the most outstanding team in he history of Lowell if their atitudes continue to be good A group like this could well win the state tournament if they keep improving at the same rate Much of this ability results from the time their three coaches have spent with them: Mr. Venema, Mr. Bieri and Al Eckman.

the Doubles Match throne at the Legion Lanes was produced last Engaged by the duo consisting of hil Kropf and Ron Winks, This eam, paced by the ever dangerous Phil, looks as though it is enrenched for a long stay at the top

Though Winks had trouble getting started, Phil took off with a string of 5 strikes in a row and it looked as though they would run oughshod over their opponents from the beginning. In the 6th and 7th frames, however, Phil ran into successive splits and this brought his game down to respectable proportions. Meanwhile, back at the ranch, Dick Johnson was sneaking up the ravine and overtook Phil while his partner, Howard Hobbs, was experiencing average success and the team of Johnson and Hobbs emerged triumphant to take the first game by 13 pins, 391 to 378.
