'Pony Boy' Won by Kim McKay at Fair

Kim McKay, 6, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Orval McKay of 12411 Gee Dr., Lowell, was the lucky winner at the annual pony drawing held last week at the Kent County 4-H Fair, Approximately 8,000 contestants under the age of 18 years entered their names in the drawing. Kim, who will enter the first grade in Lowell this fall, is very proud of the 15-month-old, sorrel and white Shetland stallion which she won and has named "Pony Boy." She will keep the animal at the "Park Place" farm of her horsetrainer uncle, A. E. Potter, near Bertha Brock park in Ionia County, and, along with her older sister Kara and little brother Kent, hopes to be able to ride it often. The pony, which came from the George Baker farm on 36th street, was donated to the Fair by the Fairchild Oil Co., which encourages each year's winner of the animal drawing to exhibit the animal at the next 4-H Fair, A calf given away in a similar drawing two years ago placed first in its category at last year's Fair, and the pony given away last year won first place at this year's event,
