Five years ago, Communist China announced the mobilization of 600 million people for "The Great Leap Forward."

Decades of industrial progress, party leaders proclaimed, was to be "concentrated in a single day." Frenzied slogans urged everyone to work "harder and harder, faster and faster" to

Today, the slogans are silent, the delirious dreams dead. The Blind concentration on industrial progress resulted in almost total neglect of agriculture. Farm productivity dropped to near disastrous levels. Critical food shortages developed. To avoid widespread starvation, millions of workers were forced to remain on the land, crippling the build-up of an industrial workforce.

The lesson is clear. An industrial economy is only as sound as its agricultural foundation. Neglect the foundation and the

Of course not! But when a Christian church believes, preaches, teaches, and strives to live strictly according to the Bible, the word of God, do you say that church is "to strict"? It is so strange that many people want to be strict about many things, except the religious and the spiritual and the eternal things.

Luke 13:23, 24 "And one said unto him, Lord, are they few that are saved? And he said unto them, Strive to enter in by the narrow door; for many, I say unto you, shall seek to enter in, and shall not be able."

What is your relationship with Christ and the Christian way of life? How strict are Between Mary's Little Lamb and dy they brought me when I got counting sheep, we Americans seem to do a lot of talking about lamb, but we don't eat a lot. In fact, only about three per cent of the meat we eat is lamb.

Lamb is always tender, never tough, that is, if it's cooked properly. According to Michigan meat laws, lamb must be under one year of age. Mutton comes from older sheep.

Some people say they just "don't like lamb." However, they may not be able to tell roast lamb, from roast pork or veal if properly prepared.

Lamb does have a delicate, but distinctive, flavor, Some connoisseurs prefer the strong flavor of mutton to lamb.

Young lamb is easy to identify by its pink, fine, firm lean meat, its abundant fat and pinkish cut bones, and a smooth covering of clear, white brittle fat.

When selecting lamb, remember there's more to lamb than legs, loins and ribs. These are the most popular cuts, so they carry a premium price tag, and they make up only about 2-3 of a lamb carcass. The less-demanded cuts often sell for only about one-half of what the The W.S.C.S. Thrift Sale will be retailer must pay for lamb. To

> Cuts from the neck, shoulder, breast flank, and foreshank, can provide a lot of thrifty and tasty meals for families. Lamb shoulder roast, or shoulder chops, are generally very low in price. The meaty ribs on a breast of lamb are mouth-watering when barbecued. Tender lamb shanks make generous individual servings, and may be either roasted or braised. Don't forget to take advantage of lambburgers, The thin paper-like covering over the outside of lamb is the fell. It is not necessary to remove it unless you are making stew, or other meat mixtures. When roasting, leaving the fell on helps to hold the shape of the roast, cuts cooking time, and holds in the juices. Serve lamb hot or cold, but never in-between. The delicate flavor of lamb is at its best when either hot or cold. Lamb is at its juiciest when cooked about medium-done. Your favorite cookbook will provide you with many new ideas for taking advantage of price bargains in lamb. Your family may just decide to become lamb lovers.
