Cancel plans for 1965 Showboat; delay election of new officers

Only 21 members of the Lowell Chamber of Commerce and the Clark-Ellis Post American Legion were on hand Monday night for the annual meeting of Lowell Showboat, Inc., when the group voted to not hold a Showboat in 1965.

The vote, to postpone the 1965 show, was not unanimous; with 4 present voting to hold a Showboat in 1965 and 17 voting along with the directors' recommendation to postpone the show.

The resolution reads: "Inasmuch as the 1964 Showboat Program lost approximately $4,000 and due to the condition of the boat and the bleachers which both need extensive repairs; it is the recommendation of the Showboat Board of Directors that the Showboat Corporation itself be kept intact but the annual show be postponed for the 1965 season. We recommend that the cash or equivalent be invested, the assets such as the callope, boat, bleachers, etc. be cared for the best of the ability of the board."

Reports Reveal Losses
Mrs. Lyla Johnson gave the secretary and treasurer's report which listed total income for the 1964 Showboat of $29,616.49 (this includes $4,000 in bonds cashed and a $2,000 loan from the bank).

Total disbursements were $28,426.68 with $1,154.80 taxes remaining to be paid, which will leave a cash balance of $1,194.76.

The Showboat Corporation has $13,000 in bonds and certificates of deposit remaining after this year's losses were paid.

Discuss Future
In the discussion period, before voting on the resolutions offered, Norm Borgerson talked of how to cut expenses to fit income; and Elmer G. Schaefer discussed the need for more participation by community, industry, and business to provide the leadership necessary to make Showboat a success.

Dave Clark, Jr., a member of the board of directors, pointed out that to move Showboat to a new site, with ground seating, a new boat, our own sound system and lighting, it would cost approximately $29,000. The Showboat has no way of borrowing this much money, he stated.

Leonard Jackson spoke of the efforts that this year's Showboat organization and the good show offered; this, he said, is discouraging to not be able to at least break-even in revenues.

Most Agree on Postponement
Most agreed that to postpone the Showboat for a year was very likely to be the death of the show in Lowell.

The same problems will still face whom ever wants to revive the show in future years. Only a miracle can save Showboat from extinction.

The running attack looked pretty good and the defensive play has improved over the previous year.

Lowell's coach Charles Fierce said that the scrimmage last Friday with Hudsonville showed the need for improvement in passing defense and down field blocking.

Fierce told the Ledger Tuesday that he was pleased with the showing of several boys on defense. There were at least a half dozen boys looking good in line. This will give some reserve strength in these spots.

Village of 500 fixes up and renovates downtown
A Michigan small town that is doing something about its downtown problems is tiny Akron (population 503) in Tuscola county. The village is fighting the trend that dooms many small communities.

Concerned businessmen of the town realized three years ago that unless they did something soon, Akron was washed up as a trading center. Their customers were driving to the cities.

They did some pretty bold planning. Acting a couple of years ahead of most other small towns, they hired professional planners.

A layout for a community shopping center with brand new stores and lots of convenient parking space was drafted.

There were a lot of skeptics, and there still are. There is reason to be skeptical because shopping centers take a lot of money and no one is guaranteeing success.

But the town had spunk and a majority of businessmen agreed they weren't just going to roll over and die. The nucleus, which is now complete, is a new 87 by 60 building housing the bank and post office.

Planned for the center of the big block, and to be surrounded by parking lots will be an 8,000 square foot super market located at the west end with loading area.

A men's apparel store and a shoe store, both with 2,500 sq. feet.

A barber shop with 600 square feet and a beauty salon with 800 square feet.

A 2,100 square foot hardware store.

The bank with 2,800 square feet and post office with 1,800 square feet now complete.

A drug store with 3,500 sq. feet.

And a service station with 2,200 square feet.

"We hope that the construction of the bank and post office will be the start of the fulfillment of this shopping center," commented Village President Theron Steele.

The village government and planning commission is cooperating with the Development Corporation in the developing of the center.

"When it first was talked about, few people thought we'd ever even get the thing off the ground," commented Postmaster Nelson Kramer.

"However, now we have got some genuine enthusiasm building up for the project. We have lots of work ahead, but at least now we see that it isn't just a dream, but can be a genuine possibility."

Weird Lincoln — Kennedy Parallel! Editor's Note: The following uncanny comparison of data surrounding two U. S. Presidents just one century apart...

the Eventh pin With the Labor Day holiday this week, two men's leagues did not bow, and consequently the scores were not as good as last week.

Abraham Lincoln and John F. Kennedy were the two presidents of the United States who were equally outstanding in their advancement of Civil Rights for the American Negro.

Both Presidents lost sons by death while in the White House. Kennedy's Secretary, whose name was Lincoln, urged him not to go to Dallas, where he met his violent and untimely death.

Lincoln was elected in 1860, Kennedy was elected in 1960. Both were shot on Friday. Both were assassinated in the presence of their wives.

Both of the slain Presidents were succeeded by men named Johnson. Both Johnsons were Southern—and Democrats.

Lincoln's killer, John Wilkes Booth was born in 1839. Kennedy's killer, Lee Harvey Oswald, was born in 1939. Both killers supported causes in disfavor with the general American Public.

Both Johnsons served in the Senate, prior to their successors to the Presidency. Andrew Johnson was born in 1830; Lyndon B. Johnson was born in 1908.

Convention Notes Volume III

In very few ways were the Republican and Democratic Conventions alike. They were both dominated by crowds and television cameras, but they were vastly different, even on the surface.

In San Francisco, there were only a few major hotels. All the celebrities and the public they always had crowded lodgings. They were bunched together in the heart of the city, with the Cow Palace a good thirty miles away.

At the second convention, the hotel and motel were spread out, and you had to pay for it. This meant that it was much harder to be where the action was, while it was happening.

Of course, a major difference was that the Democratic delegates could not see the speaker. The security measures were a each party took to protect its convention and its leaders can be contrasted.

37 million of all ages start back to school

Time was when "back to school" meant getting only little Johnny out from under and back into teacher's hands. But this year almost half the nation will be involved in some kind of schooling.

While more than 37 million children will go back to the public schools, some 4.5 million youngsters will be attending colleges and universities. In addition, there are about 50 million Americans who take part in some kind of adult education.

Of course, it may be just a course in good grooming or flower arranging, but it's still a long way from the days when only a handful of privileged young men could sit around in some kind of a Socrates or a Seno.

As the numbers of those involved in education have risen, so have the costs. Back in 1890, it cost an average of $7.31 a year to educate a child. By the year of the century, it was $13.87. In 1940 the cost was about $81.64. And today, the United States spends an average of more than $400 a year for each child.

EVERYBODY... BUT, EVERYBODY REACHES for the LEDGER

The center of attraction for every member of the family is the newspaper. To each it gives a fresh, new look at the community in terms of his or her special interest. To all, it is a comprehensive source of information of what is going on in the area.

Newspapers DO make a difference in people's lives.

Judge's farm program proves successful for problem boys

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a two-part series which describes a successful way of dealing with young delinquents. The story has been divided into two parts for your convenience and for the convenience of your readers. Don't you think that a similar program would work well in your community?

"Why are dangerous teenagers allowed to roam the streets in Michigan?" a reporter asked in March, 1963 following a violent crime by a teenager in a Detroit suburb.

At that time a controversy was raging in the Detroit area over facilities considered too inadequate to handle potentially dangerous "problem boys" from big-city areas.

Social and political leaders have since continued to search for a means of rehabilitating juveniles who become involved in crime.

Recent violence in some areas and rioting in a number of cities have shown evidence of many young people participating.

"Will these conditions lead to a greater crime rate?" "What is the answer to the problem teenager who becomes embroiled in big city crime?" "Can it be found on the farm?"

"These questions were asked recently by Circuit Court Judge Donald E. Holbrook, whose home is near this typical central Michigan community.

Judge Holbrook's "probation farm recovery program" has been in progress since the early '50's, quietly placing problem boys from 17 to 21 on farms in Clare and Isabella counties. Some 125 to 150 boys have been placed on farms with about 80 percent effectiveness during the past 12 years.

"Is the city boy losing something that the farm life can give him?"

Judge Holbrook smiled at this question thoughtfully.

"Usually violence in big cities is caused by living conditions—the closeness and great numbers of people living in small areas," he observed.

"Much of the youth problem is caused by no jobs for these boys. They get into groups or gangs. Violence occurs. They have very little supervision. They're out all night. Sleep all day. Use intoxicants on many occasions. Little adult interest is shown in them. If they're poor students, they drop out of school," the judge continued.

"A great number of all youths who become involved in violation of the law can be helped through this probation farm recovery program. It teaches the boy that he can live a normal life. He sees rewards in being a good citizen. The program helps him to develop the proper attitude towards society."

"I give him confidence in himself. In being a productive member of society. He responds to the interest and supervision of the farm parents. Regular hours, meals and work are the answer."

Judge Holbrook believes that discipline is needed and wanted by youth. The community where the farmer is located accepts the youth as a full member of society, with interest and concern.

"I think the success of the program is founded on the needs of the farmer, the needs of the youth and a desire to help each other," he maintains.

"What is the evidence for the success of this program?" the judge was asked, and his probation officer, Anton Wedal, took the writer out to one of the 12 farms in his probation recovery program.

The farmer was 42-year-old William J. Walter, whose 205-acre farm is on Brown Road Northeast of Clare.

Walter has four children. He operates five farms, totaling 375 acres, feeds 125 head of cattle, including a herd of 33 milk cows. He raises 80 percent of his own feed. He's been in the business for 20 years and has had about 19 probationers.

The probationers have contributed to his farm operation, and have even helped his own son "grasp a bit that he wouldn't have without our having these boys," Walter said.

"You can't imagine how green these boys are when they come out to the farm," Walter related. "I had a Canadian boy who was green when I got him. He'd gotten into some trouble, but he was a fine boy and a good worker. He couldn't wash a cow for milking and couldn't drive a tractor. I think when he went back to Canada, he'd do a good job on a farm."

Skipped breakfast makes for inefficient school student

The nervous, irritable and inefficient school child is often the one who dawdles over or skips breakfast, Dr. W. B. Prothro, City-County Health Officer reported. Dr. Prothro emphasized that the mother's knowledge and use of good foods and their application is more important than the economic status of the family in determining the adequacy of a child's breakfast.

Concerned mothers should check into the reason for a child's distaste for the morning meal.

Some reasons children give for not having good breakfasts are: "I'm not hungry, they don't have any, they're late, they're expected to prepare their own breakfast so they're hungry by the time they get to school." "I don't like the traditional eggs or cereal."

One reason for a child not having good breakfast is that they usually have poor appetites. See that your child has adequate rest as a vital aid to good nutrition and health. The well rested child is apt to get up early enough to have time for a good breakfast. He will be himself adequate time for a good breakfast.

Perhaps your child has enough to do to get himself dressed and well groomed in preparation for going to school, without having to assume the full responsibility of preparing his own breakfast. Relieve him of this chore and prepare him a meal that he will enjoy.

Miss Marie Fecht, Nutritionist for the City Health Department, says there is no reason that only traditional "breakfast-type" foods be served in the morning. Some less traditional but just as nutritious suggestions are: ham sandwiches, hamburger, or toasted cheese sandwiches. A well planned breakfast will help give your child both emotional and physical preparation for better school work.

Even if the drinker does not get drunk, he will be five times as likely to be involved in an automobile accident. The second drink can be a bigger hazard than the complete drunk.

Soil & Water Conservation Lease ponds for dog training

Lester Mark has begun a series of Soil Conservation broadcasts from W. J. B. W. on the radio dial Rockford, each Thursday at 12:40 p. m. as a part of the station's agricultural program.

Kent District directors appreciate W. J. B. W.'s interest and cooperation. There are undoubtedly many folks who are not acquainted with our Soil and Water Conservation Districts or services available to land owners.

Our welcome to Melis Andersen, new editor and publisher of the Cedar Springs Clipper. Arch Gamm was a good friend of Soil and Water Conservation and kept his readers informed on the Districts' needs and progress.

Ducks are coming back to potholes and ponds. Development of wildlife ponds is encouraged. One cooperative pond plan is to have a pond in one year where horses have not been pastured. We counted forty in a low area along his trout stream. Cattle seem to have a preference for white pine, but will damage any pine planting if allowed to pasture there.

Are you planning to seed corn in wheat this fall for plow down as a green manure crop the following year?

Warren Benjamin, Ken Newman and other cooperators in Nelson Twp. have found they can get more organic matter turned under this way. There is also less trouble in plowing and fitting than when soil is plowed for corn. Quite a few cooperators in south Kent are using plow packers which trail a plow. They are doing most of their fitting in one operation.

Dual wheels on the 17 hoe and larger crills are a big help in plow planting or for minimum tillage.

It is always unusual to see fairly heavy alfalfa stands on some of our loamy sands generally subject to drought. One cooperator in Vergennes Twp. says he can get a good yield on his sandy field but that he wishes he had a team of horses for drilling and for harvesting. Heavy tractors and a machine cut in more on these soil types.

Some school boards require a medical exam for beginning students. Many schools also require immunizations against infectious disease. Your doctor will know of the regulations in your neighborhood.

Physicians recommend physical checkups for school children. Most doctors feel that four or five thorough examinations during the school years are sufficient. These are usually spaced at the start of the first school year, about the fourth grade, about the seventh grade, at the ninth or tenth grade and upon graduation. And, of course, if any untoward symptoms arise at any time, a visit to the doctor is in order. A thorough examination is also important if your child is participating in school athletics.

In the excitement of the first few days of school, the very small child may forget all of the safety warnings you've been teaching him. Each parent should be sure the child knows how to cross intersections and streets on route to and from school. He should know that crossing guards are there for his protection, and obey them. He should know about proper bicycle safety.

Give careful thought to your child's entire schedule during the school year. Does he have plenty of time to play? That is, play at things he selects, and not something that you or a teacher select for him. Does he have time to sit and dream, and to enjoy his own thoughts?

Or, are you lining up a fall and winter that includes almost daily rounds of music lessons, dancing classes, after-school athletics, social affairs, family affairs in which the child must participate whether he wishes or not?

Much has been written about the placed on even very small children in many neighborhoods today. Much of it is true. Doctors know that many times their small patients are fatigued, deeply tired out from the physical and emotional tensions of doing too much.

If you're a teacher, try to remember that yours is not the child's only class, and try not to overload him with too much homework and outside assignments. Remember that other teachers also are giving assignments, and that there are limits to how much young minds and bodies can absorb.

Watch health of children starting school

School days are here again for millions of American youngsters.

The reopening of school is an exciting occasion for all pupils, but it is a particularly big event for the 5 and 6-year-olds who are entering kindergarten or primary school for the first time.

The American Medical Association recommends a thorough medical examination for the child who is starting to school for the first time. Your doctor will know what to do. His examination will cover all aspects of your child's health and will encompass hearing (to make certain he can hear the teacher) and vision (to make sure he can see the blackboard).

It is better if this examination can be made, and booster immunizations given, a few weeks before school starts.

HOW OLD-FASHIONED IS THE MILKING STOOL?

Modern dairy farms are a far cry from the days of the milk pail and the three-legged stool. Today, cows enter milking parlors or stanchions where automatic milking machines do the work. Yet, in another sense, the old milk stool is far from old-fashioned, because those three legs symbolize the three major aspects of today's dairy industry: (1) The farmer who produces the milk, (2) the cooperative which markets the milk for the farmer, (3) the dairy which processes and delivers the milk to you. Cooperatives are owned and operated by the dairy farmers they serve. They give these farmers a strong voice in the marketing of their products. They also provide many special services and guarantees which an individual farmer, working alone, could not provide himself. The result of this united effort is a more stable market for the dairy farmer and, for you, an uninterrupted supply of wholesome fresh milk. Thanks to the three-way cooperation among farmers, cooperative and dairies.

Suzanne Jacobi, Thomas Worswick exchanged vows

Miss Suzanne Marie Jacobi, granddaughter of Mrs. Mattie Jacobi of Lowell, became the bride of Thomas Harold Worswick on Saturday morning at the Holy Cross Catholic Church in Marine City, Michigan.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Gerald F. Jacobi, of Maumee, Ohio.

Attending the wedding was her sister, Mrs. John Savage of Cincinnati, Ohio. Michael Worswick of Marine City, brother of the bride, and Bernard Baker of Marine City.

An evening reception was held at the Lions Club in Marine City, following which Mr. and Mrs. Worswick left on a Canadian trip.

John a first grader returned home from school wearing an Indianhead ring.

Oh how nice! his mother observed. Did you make that ring yourself?

Yes I did, John replied. It was supposed to be a bracelet but I'm a slow beader.

at the tracks

Veteran driver Dick Carter of Saginaw warmed up for this week's season championship race for super modifieds by capturing the 10-mile feature race Saturday night at the Berlin Raceway.

The spin-filled event was decided on the last lap when Mort Anderson of Greenville, the pacesetter, and Carter tangled while broadsiding through the first turn, sending Anderson into the wall and out of contention.

The 15-lap feature for modified sportsman was won by Ray Lockwood of South Haven. Bill Rake was second followed by Jack TenBrink.

Heat race winners were Tony Vrablic, Hiram Lockwood, Rake and TenBrink in the sportsman division, and Don Champlin, Duane Knoll and Moody in the super modified class.

Over 42 cars qualified for competition on the 1/4-mile asphalt oval at Hastings Friday night.

Paul Smith emerged the victor in the fast car dash. Ron Morgan grabbed the win in the first heat and the second heat win went to Ray Rench of Battle Creek.

Al Hagen of Grand Rapids making his first appearance at the Hastings track won the third heat followed by fellow-townsmen Jerry VanDyke and Marv Blain.

Jan Healey forged across the finish line the winner in the hot heat, John Fox drove his way to victory in the semi-feature.

The 25-lap feature for flying stocks saw Jerry VanDyke jump the concrete retaining wall (with a little help) and demolish his car. This was the first damaging accident VanDyke had encountered this season.

Packed lunch needs nutrition

Mothers who home pack their children's school lunches must keep in mind that the packed lunch should meet one-third of a child's nutritional needs for the day, said Dr. W. B. Prothro, City-County Health Officer.

The home packed lunch need be no less nutritional, flavorful or varied than the prepared school lunch.

It is a mother's obligation to keep her children's lunches interesting and adequate to accomplish this. Miss Marie Fecht, Nutritionist for the Grand Rapids Health Department, recommends the following foods suitable for a packed lunch:

sandwiches using a high protein filling such as meat, eggs, fish or cheese; fruits, fresh or canned; raw vegetables sticks occasionally; a desert such as cookies; and milk. If milk is not available at the school, it should be carried in a thermos.

During the cold winter months, a nice thermos of hot soup is especially tasty.

To avoid the early morning rush, lunches can be prepared and stored in the refrigerator the night before. Sandwiches, raw vegetables and fruits kept longer if wrapped in wax paper or aluminum foil. Small plastic jars or the screw-on lid baby food jars are handy for fruits or other juicy foods. For the lunch carrier, select an easily washed and sanitized metal box.
