Owner claims vandals burn abandoned home

Charles Fedorowicz charged this week that vandals had set a fire in an abandoned farm house, he owned on Vergennes Street, 3 1/2 miles northwest of Lowell.

The fire was seen by neighbors, who called the Lowell fire department at 9:30 p. m. on Wednesday, October 6. The same neighbors had seen a car parked in back of the house earlier in the evening.

When Lowell firemen arrived at the fire, it was out of control, sparks blowing from the big two story house set small grass fires which were extinguished. The fire was so hot it burned two Michigan Bell Telephone long distance cables which ran along the road in front of the house.

Fedorowicz said he had been bothered by vandals for the 3 years he has owned the place, formerly occupied by Mrs. Edna Henderson. The house has been broken into repeatedly and chains placed across the entrance from the road have been broken.

It has been the scene of teenage beer parties—bottles and cans litter the house and grounds Fedorowicz revealed.

The owner told, Fire Chief Frank Baker, that he estimated the loss of the house at $5,000 and contents which included several pieces of antique furniture at $300.

Parents get modern math introduction here

Parents of elementary children in Lowell will have the opportunity Thursday, October 21, to hear a discussion of Modern Math.

The occasion is a program to introduce the new faculty members to the public at a meeting scheduled next Thursday at 8 p. m. in the senior high school.

The Child Study Club, in cooperation with the Lowell Area Schools, is sponsoring this reception for the new teachers. There are thirteen faculty members who are either new or returning to the school system this year.

Mrs. Judy Morse will have her junior high school choir provide a period of entertainment. Following the program, Francis Hildebrand, from Michigan State University will talk on Modern Math.

Mr. Hildebrand and his wife, who teaches in the East Lansing school system, taught a workshop for the Lowell elementary department before school started this fall, and will be in Lowell for a follow-up meeting with the faculty.

The Hildebrands are most qualified to discuss this subject with the parents. The faculty felt their earlier meeting, in August, to be most helpful and of value to them.

All parents of school-age children will be interested in this program and are urged to attend. Other faculty members will also be present, and during the period of refreshments will have the opportunity to meet their students' parents.

If there is enough interest shown by the parents on Modern Math, a series of classes may be set up to explain the program further. This class would be taught by faculty personnel.

To receive centennial farm marker

Pictured above is the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Condon, newly designated a centennial farm. The frame house was converted to cobblestone about thirty-five years ago by C. O. and Laura. It is a very outstanding house on Fallsburg Park Drive and many people stop to take pictures, while out Sunday driving.

The farm owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Condon has recently been designated as a centennial farm by the Michigan Historical Commission. This farm, located in Vergennes township, on Fallsburg Park Drive, has been in the possession of the family since 1839. Thomas Condon, C.O.'s grandfather purchased the farm in that year from Bryan Hill.

The 161 acre farm lays in the valley along the river in a very scenic site. In fact, the river forms one of the land boundaries on the eastern side of the farm.

C. O. has 25 acres of apple orchard on the farm, 10 acres in the "Old Orchard" which his father planted and fifteen acres that he planted himself. This year their apple crop has been smaller than usual, due to the late spring frozes, so C. O. and Laura have very nearly finished harvesting their apples.

Many years ago, they raised raspberries, back along the creek, which they used to irrigate the berries during dry weather.

For many years, they practiced general farming, but for the past fifteen years they haven't had any livestock on the farm, with the exception of a flock of sheep which graze the pasture lands.

Fred Condon, C.O.'s father, was born here on this farm and spent his life there; C. O. was also born in this farm house and grew up here. He attended Valley School, which used to be just over the hill from the farm. The school has been closed for many years, and even the building has been sold and moved away from the old schoolyard.

Laura and C. O. were married 47 years ago last March, so she has spent nearly half a century on this farm.

About 35 years ago, they converted the old framehouse into a cobblestone home, which makes it unique, as it is one of the few such houses in this area.

They are the parents of Roxie Hunter of Lowell, and the late Fred Rickner, and the proud grandparents of two grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

C. O. has seen many changes in farming techniques in his lifetime and feels that it is very hard for a young man today to start farming unless he has lots of cash to plunk down or inherits the land.

Don't smile when you throw trash out your car window," at least not at a passing police officer. Gerald J. Smith, 19, of Grand Rapids, tried this on Sunday afternoon and was given a summons for littering.

The Lowell Officer relented a little when he came into court and Smith just got a warning.

Richard Treviso, 19, Grand Rapids, was issued a summons and lodged in Kent County Jail Saturday morning after he was arrested for violating the basic speed law.

Officers claim he used abusive language when he was stopped and so... off to jail.

Charles Smith, 91, 310 King Street was taken by ambulance to Butterworth Hospital Sunday after neighbors reported he had not been seen for several days. Lowell police discovered Smith laying on the floor in his bedroom where he had fallen.

His condition was not considered serious.

Teachers and bus drivers organize to bargain with school board

Members of the Lowell Area School faculty were present at the School board meeting on Monday to ask recognition by the board of their bargaining unit, Lowell Education Association.

The teachers, Wayne Spaeth, spokesman, announced to the board, have met and voted to bargain collectively on wages, hours, and working conditions. Also present at the meeting was a delegation from the school bus drivers who have also banded together to bargain with the school board on driving fees on a collective basis.

Speaking for the drivers was George Dey, jr., who presented the request for changes in pay scales and recognition of the professional status of school bus drivers.

The board took action under the new state law allowing municipal and school employees to form bargaining groups and granted recognition to the teachers' group. They will meet with the superintendent to present their demands and a report will be made to the board.

Bus Drivers Ask Changes

The bus drivers presented their request to the board that no one be allowed to drive a school bus, unless they have a valid chauffeur's license, take a physical examination, and has regularly attended safety school.

Other qualifications include a safe driving record and regular employment as a school bus chauffeur.

Other proposals made to the board would give a guarantee of 175 days pay; 5 percent bonus for three years continuous service. They also asked for payment during breakdown time and a flat hourly rate for driving to athletic events or on field trips.

For their regular runs, the drivers asked that the $2.75 hourly rate be discontinued and payment made on a mileage basis. Cost to the school for this change on the 21 regular bus runs would amount to an estimated $14.30 a day or a yearly increase of $2,502.50, Dey said.

The board set up a meeting with the drivers' representatives, and school administration to discuss the bus driving program.

Enrollment Up 99

Superintendent Nisbet reported to the board that school enrollment was up 99 students over last year; total enrollment 2,199; 40 in the high school, 37 in the junior high, and 22 in the elementary schools.

Elementary teachers presented a request to the board to relieve them from playground duty during the lunch hour. The superintendent suggested that a non-teacher may be employed for this duty on each of the three playgrounds, estimated to cost $1,000 a year.

The board authorized the superintendent to investigate and to take steps to provide this supervision.

Insurance Bids

Bids for insurance for school vehicles were taken and identical bids of $1,536.71 were submitted by Johnson-Carrington & Snee'sira Insurance companies. High loss experience last year and increased insurance rates have boosted the cost of the insurance from $980.49 last year to the new figure.

Clare Phillips was present at the meeting to ask questions on the senior picture policy of the school.

The board voted to borrow $20,000 to meet current bills. This will be repaid when state aid payments are received.

Superintendent Nisbet revealed to the board that all auxiliary services now offered to public school children must be offered to non-public schools in the district.

The only auxiliary service not being given to St. Mary's School is that of the school nurse.

This service on the same basis as given to the public school children is being offered to St. Mary's School.

F. H. Ranger reserves rock Red Arrow JVs

The Lowell JV's were a group of sadder, but let us hope wiser, boys after the game with Forest Hills last Thursday afternoon.

Trailing at the end of the first quarter by a 13-0 score and at half time 26-0 they finally came alive in the second half and held the hard-hitting Forest Hills Rangers scoreless. But alas, it was too late. The final score Forest Hills Rangers 26, Lowell JV's - 0.

It would be interesting to see this team put together some of the outstanding quarters they have produced into one single game.

Next week October 14, they will play the Rockford Reserve team at Rockford at 7 p. m. This game will be played under lights which will be a new experience for the JV's.

Lowell Area School board proceedings

Minutes of regular meeting of the Board of Education held September 13, 1965.

The meeting was called to order by vice-president Kael at 7:45 p.m. with all members present except Wessell.

On motion by Metternick, supported by Gerard, the minutes of the regular meeting of August 9, 1965, and the special meeting held August 30, 1965, were approved as printed.

On motion by Shade, supported by Coons, the bill was approved for payment as listed.

The annual audit and "Report of Examination" prepared by the accounting firm of Schell-berg and Kregel was reviewed and on motion by Coons, supported by Gerard, was approved as printed.

The accounting firm reported to the Board that there was a definite improvement in the school record keeping this past year.

On motion by Metternick, supported by Shade, the bill to increase from $75 per month to $80 per month for the kindergarten room at the Congregational Church was approved.

On motion by Kael, supported by Reagen, the purchase of new bleachers for the east side of the football field at a cost of $9,648 was approved.

Supt. Nisbet explained to the Board that the county election to establish an 18-month limitation will shift our school bond issue election to some time in January. The important selling point for the 18 month limitation is that it will reduce the amount of allocated millage for each district.

Supt. Nisbet reported that our first Friday enrollment showed 2,263 students, a growth of 183 students over last year.

Respectfully submitted,
R. E. REAGAN, D. D. S. Secretary

NEW TIRES COULD

Senator Vance Hartke (Ind.)... "I was my privilege to preside over the hearings held by the Commerce Committee recently on automobile tire safety... Senator Nelson is the author of the bill on which the hearings were held, S.1643, and I am cosponsor. The witnesses before us included top officials of the major automobile companies, and their statements and their responses to questions concerning tire sizes, loads, air pressure did not bring order out of chaos. The plain fact is, there appears to be no common acceptable agreement on what is a safe tire..."

Senator Nelson is the author of an... article on the subject which appears in "Progressive..." (The condensed article follows.)

Death on Wheels

The story begins with three days of hearings... before the Federal Trade Commission early this year to consider whether tires are adequately labeled at the time. The Federal Trade Commissioners were as stunned as I was when the highest officials in the automobile tire industry testified that: Quality labels on tires, such as "deluxe," "premium," and "radial," have no meaning whatever and "there is no way to tell one tire grade from another."

Size labels on tires were never meant to indicate the precise size. The notion that these labels were meant to indicate the exact size is merely a recent misunderstanding on the part of the public. It is perfectly possible for a 7.00 by 14 tire to be larger than 8.00 by 14.

The ply or ply-rating labels on tires have no understandable meaning anymore.

Tires supplied by the auto industry with its new cars are not designed to carry the full load for which these automobiles are designed.

These are not charges made by a legislator trying to pass a bill. They are official explanations of standard practices within a great American industry which affects the lives of almost every citizen and which is trying to avoid Federal regulation.

The most important question I asked the auto makers was whether their tires could carry a full load in extended travel at modern highway speeds.

American Motors replied that its cars could carry a full load.

The most important question I asked the auto makers was whether their tires could carry a full load in extended travel at modern highway speeds.

American Motors replied that its cars could carry a full load.

These are not charges made by a legislator trying to pass a bill. They are official explanations of standard practices within a great American industry which affects the lives of almost every citizen and which is trying to avoid Federal regulation.

Inez Neyhart, Paul Draper wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lewis Draper were married Saturday morning in a Nuptial Mass at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Owosso, Michigan, and will be making their home in Lowell.

The new Mrs. Draper is the former Inez Ann Neyhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Eugene Neyhart of Owosso, Michigan. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Doris Draper of Lowell and Rex Draper of Saline, Michigan.

The bride was escorted by her father to the flower banked altar of the church, where the bridegroom and the Rev. Father John Daniel awaited her. Patricia Placek was organist, and her sister, Priscilla Placek, was vocalist.

Silk crepe gowns were worn by the bridesmaids who preceded her to the altar. They were in pale pink with empire waists banded with burgandy velvet and worn by Marcia Young of Comstock Park and Cathy Van Buren of Vermontville. Maid of honor, Barbara Louise Neyhart, wore a similar gown in taffeta in a shade of American Beauty. The gowns were floor-length and featured bell-shaped skirts.

Miss Neyhart carried a colonial bouquet of American Beauty roses surrounded by pale pink camellias. The bridesmaids carried similar bouquets.

For herself, the bride chose a gown of Chantilly lace fashioned with a scalloped neckline sprinkled with seed pearls and long sleeves. Her lace skirt was draped over taffeta and hoops. A mantilla of Chantilly lace scalloped along the edges was worn by the bride, and extended to the floor. Her white roses and white shattered asters were tied with white satin ribbons and arranged in a spray. William Patrick of Kalamazoo joined the bridegroom as best man with William Bouck of Lowell and A. Eugene Neyhart, III, of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, who assisted as groomsmen and ushers.

Dinner suites were the selection of the mothers of the couple for the wedding and reception. Mrs. Neyhart selected a pale blue and white brocade suite, with a corsage of white chrysanthemums and pink rose buds. Mrs. Draper chose a turquoise suite complimented by yellow rose buds.

Before leaving for their wedding trip, the newlyweds received their wedding guests at a reception in the Knights of Columbus Hall. Among the guests were the grandparents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Neyhart of Williamsport, Pennsylvania, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Deckman of Renovo, Pennsylvania, and Floyd L. Yeiter of Alto. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Robert Frank and Mrs. James Jackson of Rochester, New York, Jean White and Sherry Plowman of Owosso.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my husband, Oscar J. Nelson, who passed away a year ago October 8, 1964.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last.

The world's weary troubles and trials are past.

In silence he suffered in patience he bore.

Till God called him home to suffer no more.

Sadly missed by his wife, Sylvia. p27
