Four districts recommended for annexation to Lowell Area Schools

The Kent County Intermediate District School Reorganization Committee plan for annexation of four districts to the Lowell Area Schools has tentative approval. The election date has not been set but will be sometime before the end of the present school year. A total of 17 school districts have been recommended for Kent County by the committee.

Voting would only be in the six Kent County districts involved in annexation; they are Rockford, Lowell, Kentwood, Cedar Springs, Sparta and Wyoming-Godfrey Lee. At the present time no boundary alterations are being considered, if at some future date changes in boundaries is recommended another election will be held. This voting would be to eliminate all primary districts in Kent County and reduce the number of school districts to 17.

Tentative adoption of this plan could be changed by the Committee later to include additional school mergers or to eliminate some listed here from further consideration.

JVs sharper, beat Comstock

The Lowell Red Arrow JV's won their game against Comstock Park's JV's Thursday, October 21. This is the only home game played under the lights this year.

The game started off with a bang for the home team as they recovered a fumble deep in Comstock Park territory, capitalizing on this, they went quickly for a touchdown and converted for the extra point, with just about two minutes gone in the game.

On the next series of downs for Lowell, Comstock Park returned a punt for more than 60 yards for a touchdown and also made the point after, score 7-7.

Second quarter neither team scored, and at half time the score still stood at 7-7.

The game was marked by pass interceptions and fumbles by both teams, but in the fourth quarter Lowell again intercepted, ran the ball back to the ten, and went over for a touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

In the last two minutes of the fourth quarter, Lowell intercepted again, and marched to the goal line, converting the after point, final score Lowell JV's 20, Comstock Park 7.

Flag football going strong

The Lowell YMCA is again sponsoring flag football for grade school and junior high boys. The first two weeks of the football season all of the boys were given instruction, in the fundamentals of the game.

To top off two hard weeks of work, the "Y" sponsored a trip to the Michigan State vs. Illinois game. After seeing a fine exhibition of how a team functions the boys returned the following Saturday to form their own teams and once again start off the "Y" season.

After two weeks of play, this is how the grade school teams are doing.

Bears	2	0	0
Rams	1	1	0
Lions	0	1	1

Boys that have done most of the scoring for the teams are Melvin Miller, Dan Hendricks, Kraig Haybarker, Joe Rinard, Chris Collins, Dave Avery and Dennis Wittenbach.

The junior high can't seem to keep their teams together from week to week and each week different teams are made up of the boys present. This is a new concept at the "Y" and helps keep the boys interested. Any boys that are now interested in playing football and have not as yet joined a team may call the YMCA office for more information.

Lowell to meet class C champs here Friday

Lowell will meet the Class C state champions Middleville here on Friday night, Lowell with 2 wins and 4 losses this season will meet an undefeated Middleville team that has won its last 20 games; the team is rated No. 1 in the state in Class C.

The Lowell team will have to overcome their lack of spark that was so apparent in the game at Comstock last Friday when they suffered their fourth defeat of the season 16-6.

Th Arrows could give Middleville quite a game, if they would play as well as they did against Rockford.

After all those state champs from Middleville only have two arms and two legs each. Let's go Arrows.

Loss to Comstock

Friday night, Comstock Park and Lowell Red Arrows met at Comstock in "The Game of the Week."

Comstock kicked off to open the game, Lowell receiving, lost the ball on downs and it was Comstock's ball on their own 45. Brad McLouth took off for fifty yards, placing the ball down on the Lowell five yard line, where the Lowell defensive unit held.

The Red Arrows took over on their own five, fumbled, recovered by Comstock. On the second play Schab went over for the TD, from about the six. Comstock failed to convert and the score was 6-0.

Experiments with grading system

On October 15 many parents gathered in the junior high school session hall to explore and discuss the relative merits of a new grading system which was to be initiated experimentally in the seventh and eighth grades.

The new marking system of marking was devised and presented to his teachers almost two years ago by Vern Moran, junior high principal, in answer to a growing dissatisfaction with the archaic system of grading.

During the previous year both the old and the new methods were scrutinized, torn to pieces and criticized. The resulting opinion of the group was that nothing could be much worse than the old A, B, C, D, E method, and that a change must be made.

The chief flaw with the old marking system is its failure to recognize individual differences, something which the Great Teacher dramatized in His "Parable of the Talents" two thousand years ago. Elementary teachers have long understood the wide range of abilities among children, particularly in the area of reading, and have grouped their class sections accordingly, using a variety of multi-level materials to suit their needs.

However, by the time the students find themselves in junior high school, a miracle is supposed to have occurred, and suddenly instead of a number of reading levels on which information is transmitted, they are confronted with standardized seventh grade text books. Now everybody is supposed to be reading at the same level. The harsh truth is that there is now a greater spread in reading abilities than ever before, for many students are still reading at a third grade level or below, while some are

The "Low Down" Congressional Record

By Joe Crump

Rep. Bob Wilson (Calif.)... One of the major problems our troops face in Vietnam is that of determining whether a suspected Vietcong prisoner is really an enemy or is an innocent peasant...

"Mr. Stephen L. Gardella, who is the polygraph examiner at the San Diego Police Department, has come forth with an interesting and commendable recommendation that the polygraphs be used to determine whether or not suspects are telling the truth. Mr. Gardella informs me that many reserve officers and men are trained polygraph examiners..."

"I include as a portion of my remarks the following article by Stephen L. Gardella: 'The condensed article follows: It is known fact that in almost every military operation in combat situations, as well as counter insurgency, the weakest link is intelligence...'

"On October 22, 1961, while a member of O Co., 3rd Bn., 1st Marine Division, stationed in Korea in defensive position, several North Koreans came over to our lines and surrendered. 'The prisoners upon being intensively interrogated, through an interpreter, would reveal only their names, rank, and serial numbers...'

"On October 22, 1961, a patrol was organized to go out and blow up bunkers, search for any North Koreans in hiding and to obtain any intelligence regarding the enemy...'

"While returning from the mission, the patrol was the object of concentrated enemy mortar, machinegun and rifle fire which resulted in men being killed and wounded. The patrol came through an enemy mine field and additional lives and limbs were lost...'

"The North Korean prisoners in this case had come through these same mine fields to surrender and were undoubtedly in possession of other valuable information. If these prisoners had been examined with the aid of a polygraph the enemy gun emplacement as well as the mine field would probably have been detected resulting in fewer dead and wounded...'

"Many man-hours are involved in conventional interrogation without the use of the polygraph and then should the prisoner remain silent no information is obtained. If the prisoner does respond, how do we know he is telling the truth?...'

"The usefulness of the polygraph law enforcement is a proven fact—the probability of its use in combat intelligence is great—knowing this, I insist we use the polygraph wherever we can to save American lives...'

A GRASS ROOTS COMMENT The polygraph has been field tested, during the Vietnam war, by our armed forces in simulated combat practice. Its effectiveness has been demonstrated. we may hesitate to use the polygraph in actual combat for fear that our servicemen might be faced with this same tool in the event they're captured.

The Law of Harvest

A man rocked a boat to see if it would tip. It did!
 O laborer stepped on a nail to see if it would go through his shoe. It did!
 A man looked into the gun to see if it was loaded. It was!
 A woman looked into a patent medicine booklet to see if she was sick. She was!
 Last June a helper smelled escaping gas and lit a piece of oily waste to find the leak. He found it!
 A young girl kept late hours to see if it would really injure her office work. And it did!
 A young man tried drinking to see if it would make him act like a fool. It did!
 God's Word says, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." You cannot afford to play with sin. If you do, you will reap the terrible results.

United Fund drive report

At the United Fund Crusade final report meeting Wednesday, October 27, returns were recorded at 52 percent of the goal of $1,800,000 or a total to date of $929,123.

General Chairman James H. Cawood, stressed his confidence in the United Fund volunteers and their enthusiasm. He said that reporting on time is essential to reaching the victory that will serve the many human needs met by these 66 United Fund Agencies.

More than 200 volunteers present heard an address by David DeVries, project director of the Big Brothers Project now housed at the D. A. Blodgett Homes for Children. Father H. M. Beahan, Aquinas College, presided at the meeting. The invocation was given by Rev. Donald Blackie, pastor of Calvary Reformed Church.

Following the theme of adapting Broadway songs to tell the needs of the agencies, the Jim Drummond trio sang "All Together," a variation of "Abbandanza" from "Most Happy Felicia." The music which gave pep and bounce to the meeting was provided by the Max Barnes Quartet through the courtesy of the Grand Rapids Federation of Musicians Local 56.
