Change Showboat to August 21-26 interred on Friday in Arlington Memorial Cemetery in Virgin-

day

Directors of Showboat decid-ed last week to change the dates of Showboat for 1967 to one month later than previous years.

William Doyle, president of Showboat, in announcing the date change said that Louis Armstrong was appearing on a European television show on the last week in July and would not be available. To get a guar-anteed contract for Armstrong's appearance at Showboat, it was necessary to select the August 21-16 dates.

Doyle said that the directors of Showboat had investigated

JV's Lose Two

The Junior Varsity ended a frustrating season by dropping their last two games to Ionia and Middleville.

High Red Arrow scorers in their 59 to 40 loss to Ionia were Ken Roth with 16 and Bill Bennett with 8.

In their last game of the year this team lost to the Trojans of Middleville 58-46.

Bill Bennett topped all scorers with 17, followed by Steve Johnson and Ken Roth with 8

The boys on this team are to be commended for the fine effort and hustle they showed during the season.

Their final season's record showed 4 wins and 12 losses.

Record Even

Winning the last two regular season games brought the Red Arrow Freshmen an 8 and 8 record in competition.

Lowell led all the way in both games in defeating Ionia 54 to 47 and Middleville 59 to 40. These two wins reversed earlier setbacks to these same teams. Craig Wittenbach swished 16 points in the game against Ion-ia. He was followed by Tom Koewers with 15, Mitch Mc-Mahon with 9, and Blair Cahoon with 9.

Tom Koewers led the attack against Middleville, meshing 14 points, Mitch McMahon threw in 13. Dave Jones dropped in 10.

Planning Commission approves zoning change for service station sion approved a change from residential to C-3 commercial for a 200 x 200 ft. plot on the northwest corner of West Main and Valley Vista Drive.

The application had been made by Douglas Dok representing the Lowell Development Company so a new super-service station could be built at this location.

Present at the meeting were operators of the Texaco, Citgo, Sunoco, Zephyr and Standard stations in the community. The station operators made some objections to increasing the number of gas stations but one operator said that he had no objection.

It was pointed out that there are now three less stations than there were a few years ago; the east side Citgo station is now being used by Arrow Tran-sit for offices; the Shell Station has been taken over by Lowell Engineering and the Mobile Station is now being used as a car and truck sales office.

Doug Dok told the planning commission that the major oil company who wants to lease this location for 20 years feels that this is an excellent location. Eberhard expects to pull 7,000 customers a day to the adjacent Super Market and the M-21 route to Grand Rapids will not be re-routed for many years

There was a long discussion on the extent of the proposed island fill to create recreation area and a stadium for Showboat in the river adjacent to Lafayette Street.

A local engineer has offered to make preliminary plans for the project, William Doyle, a member of the commissi 1 and president of Showboat, told the other members,

The commission agreed the fill should begin at the alley just south of Main Street and extend to the west edge of the island and north to King St. on the north side of the school. What kind of people have we become when we can be told that a Socialist and a Communist can do our bidding for peace in Viet Nam in the best interests of our fighting men and our country?

You ask, "What can I do-I am only one individual?" I believe that there is a very good answer to this question. As individuals and as Americans, the time has arrived when we had better wake up and defend our American principles before it is too late. Our government is supposed to be representing our views. I believe that every one of us should write our senators, congressmen, and even the President, demanding that Congress issue a declaration of war in Viet Nam. Then, instead of dropping tons of bombs on the jungles, we should use our air power to bomb Haiphong, Hanoi, and the dam systems in North Viet Nam. This would certainly bring defeat to the enemy in a matter of days.

Let us demand that our government stand fully behind the war in Viet Nam and bring an immediate halt to the senseless plundering of American lives in a war that can be won in a matter of days.

In 1905, Delaware became the last state to abolish the pillory, a mechanism for the public Alpunishment of criminals. though the pillory has since then been deemed cruel, archaic and unlawful, we often invent our own verbal pillories. It is quite frightening that in this "enlightened" year of Our Lord 1967, we have not absorbed even the most rudimentary interpretation of, "Let him who is without sin, cast the first stone. High moral standards are a must but this premise also carries a responsibility for those of us who insist upon it. People who will judge must also use justice, temperance and good judgement

We look back in disgust at the ancient pillory and laugh at its callous backwardness as a means of punishment. However, must we also instead, look for-

Wolfenden, an English name -McPherson, Scotch-as Amer-icans find their names give distinctness - Nepalese find caste fulfills their distinctiveness, one from another,

There are many castes here in Nepal. I would point out the differences in two only. As one would expect there are a number of differences in religious practices between the Brahman and Magars. A Brahman boy wears a string over his right shoulder and under his left arm. This string, or sacred thread, is a status mark, and is first put on in an initiation ceremony when the boy is in his early teens. Thus the Brahman not only is set apart from the Magar by the thread but also by having an additional life cycle ceremony.

Jenean will be a 1967 grad-uate of Lowell High School. Mr. Hoffman is a 1965 grad-In most respects an elaborate Magar marriage ceremony is very similar to that of a Brahman. There are some differences in detail. Among the differences is the fact that the brides (Brahman's) people are not invited to the groom's house for a feast-as is the habit and is now a sophomere at Michigan State University in among the magar (they like to live it up)-Nor is life sacrifice part of the Brahman ceremony.

Because the cow is the Mother god-Magars do not work their bulls on the new moon and full moon days. Nor on one Friday of each month. This is a day offering to the god. The Brahman's do not observe this taboo.

In the household, the Magar women help the husband with the life sacrifice (cow) while the Brahman women are not allowed to see it.

Before a Brahman eats, he always offers a little cooked rice to the gods. A practice, as a rule, Magars do not do. It is significant that no Brahman family is without at least Magar. Brahmans always have a small earth pedestal within their court yard, in which tulsi bush is planted-(a home god) -One rarely finds this in the Magar courtyard. Slightly less than half of the Brahmans eat meat, but almost all Magars do. Magars eat chicken and pork; these meats are forbid-den for Brahmans-Therefore there are not any chicken coops or pig pens on Brahman farm-steads. Nor are there stills for liquor. For liquor also is taboo for them. Inside the main room of a Magar house, there is al-ways found a fire pit and cooking is done in a tri pot resting on the pit. Brahman houses have no fire pit, and cooking is done in a fire place made of mud and built against a wall.

Why India Needs Christianity

A rat in India consumes five kilos of grain a year: 2.4 billion rats consumes billion tons of grain, or the equivalent of all the aid in wheat being sent to famine ridden India in 1966. These statistics have prompted the Indian government to renew its effort to exterminate rats. But the results so far have been disappointing. The government is meeting with the indifference, if not the hos tility, of 350 million Hindus, who push their respect for animal life to the absurd. The Hindus find it just as intolerable to exterminate a rat as to crush an ant. At Rajasthan, rats even have a temple to which their faithful bring bowls of rice every day, being careful not to get their toes bitten. The Hindus generate the same attitude toward monkeys, vultures and especially cows. At the last census there were 176 million cows in India, almost all of them reduced to unproductive skeletons wandering freely in the streets. Recently the city of New Delhi made efforts to organize a troop of "cowboys" to round up the wandering cows in the city. There has been no rain in southern India this year. Pray for famine sufferers, pray for missions in India and lepers at Rajnandgoron-pray that God will send a mighty revival and rain. —From Holland Home News 1
