Plan New System for Calls

A new communications system, designed to provide immediate contact with the Lowell Police Department on a 24-hour basis, will be installed in the near future.

The plan calls for a direct line to the Kent County Sheriff's Department switchboard, which would handle Lowell police calls when city officers are on patrol.

The dispatcher at the Sheriff's Department would then get in touch with local police via radio.

City Manager Bernard C. Olsen informed the City Council at Monday night's meeting that the new system would do away with a time-consuming—and often inadequate—procedure followed in the past whereby incoming police calls were handled by Lowell Light & Power employees during the time that city office or police department telephones were unmanned.

Olsen estimates that the tie-line would cost $72 monthly plus possible nominal charges by the Sheriff's Department for services.

"Our old system has been anything but satisfactory," Olsen told the council. "We have had cases where calls have been delayed for hours... and in some cases, they have never even reached the police department."

Under the new system, all calls would automatically be recorded on tape at the Sheriff's Department.

Hopefully, a single telephone number... perhaps even the present one... would be used, Olsen said.

Olsen noted that the city had no grievance with Lowell Light & Power.

"They weren't too happy with the system, either," he stated. "All too often, it was impossible for an employee to transact police business and still handle his own duties."

Dr. Orval McKay, a director of the light and power company who was in attendance at the meeting on another matter, brought up the possibility of also changing the present fire-call system, which is dependent upon the power plant for assistance.

Council OKays New Planner; Hires Architect

Council took a major step forward this week in a long-range program designed to re-shape the City of Lowell.

The city fathers confirmed appointment of John Paul Jones and Associates as the city's new planning consultant, acting favorably upon a recommendation forwarded by the Planning Commission.

The Jones firm will replace Scott Bagby and Associates to guide the city in its planning. The latter firm will complete work initiated on updating of zoning maps and zoning ordinances.

The move is seen as a major step toward possible involvement in sorely-needed projects such as sewers and roads in the city, both of which would require additional financing from state and Federal sources.

Council also appointed architect Donnelly Palmer to serve as consultant for proposed renovation of City Hall. The move followed a request by the city manager several months ago for remodeling of city offices.

At a later meeting, council members agreed to investigate the possibility of also renovating the council chambers and the heating plant of the antiquated building.

A resolution to re-zone 1,270 feet of frontage on the north side of M 21 from AA residential and agricultural to A-3 residential and apartments was passed.

The new zoning was adopted following a public hearing on a petition from Dr. Orval McKay and Dr. Donald Gerard to have property on the highway zoned to permit construction of a proposed new professional building on the city's west side.

Dr. McKay disclosed that final plans for the building are now being prepared.

Council authorized the city manager to meet with King Milling Company officials on a request for vacating 12 feet of West Water Street south of the C & O railroad tracks. There were no objectors at the public hearing.

King Milling wishes to construct a new silo and requires the additional property to do so.

It was pointed out by Olson that the city would be required to re-locate a sewer in the street. He was instructed to work out details with the company in the matters of securing an easement and financing of the project.

The city also went on record as favoring Proposal No. 3 on the November 5 ballot calling for a $350-million bond issue for water purification in the state.

In other matters, the council:

1—Spent considerable time seeking to work out final plans for a sewer designed to service the new Root Lowell plant and other future users in the northwest section of the city;

2—Heard Manager Olsen's report on progress of installing a new lift station on the west side, which may be held up pending a decision on final location of a new street in that area; and

3—Received confirmation from the city attorney that petitions presented at the September 18 meeting, seeking a referendum on sale of liquor by the glass, had not been filed with the clerk in time to be placed on the November ballot.

Rev. McIver Marks Final Sunday Here

Sunday will mark the end of a nineteen year pastorate for Rev. Keith McIver when he preaches his final sermon at the First Baptist Church in Lowell.

During his long tenure in Lowell, Rev. McIver had promoted the growth of his congregation and has seen the need for new facilities result in the new church building on M-21 west of town.

In his farewell message, Rev. McIver commented on the enjoyable experience of living in Lowell and thanked his congregation and the town as a whole for these busy and happy years.

Schoolmen Favor 'Freeze' on Tax Allocation Plan

A proposition to "freeze" current tax allocations, to be decided by Kent County voters November 5, has received endorsement of local school officials.

If approved, the measure should stabilize the county, school and township share of the 15-mill ceiling for a three-year period, during which time the County Tax Allocation Board would be abolished.

The Kent County Board of Supervisors is on record as favoring a "yes" vote, pointing out that approval of the proposal would not effect the amount of tax, but simply set guide lines for distribution of the 15 mills among the various units.

Both school superintendents in this area... James C. Pace of Lowell Area Schools and Robert G. Masten of the Forest Hills District... believe the proposal has much merit.

"Each year, under the present system, we must wait until the Tax Allocation Board determines our share before we can get down to the actual work of drawing up a budget," explains Pace. "If we knew ahead of time the exact breakdown, it would help us tremendously."

"I'm certain it would be a great help not only to us but to all school administrators," states Masten. "We spend considerable time each year planning a budget... then have to go back and rip it apart after we get final word of allocated millage we will receive."

Jack E. Smith, candidate for the newly-organized 21-member Board of Supervisors from the Third District, disclosed in an interview that he is opposed to the measure.

"I feel," he states, "that one thing being overlooked is that there is no provision for lowering the 15-mill limit during the three-year period."

"The state income tax has brought unexpected reserves to the county and this should be considered when determining tax allocations. Property owners should be given some consideration in this matter."

County Controller Leonard V. Andrus said a favorable vote would "eliminate a wasteful expenditure of man-hours and materials to develop tentative budgets that are meaningless, and would allow the respective units of government to divert those man-hours to more productive work."

Andrus said it also provides each unit of government a stable millage base from which to build its operating requirements and that the only increase in tax revenue would be from the natural economic growth within each taxing area.

"It would also promote better public relations between the units of government and between government and the people being served without increasing the millages levied for the purpose of conducting the necessary functions of government," Andrus said.

George R. Cook, legal adviser to the county, said a favorable vote would freeze the millage allocation at the same level as determined for 1968. At the end of three years, statute requires that the units revert to a battle for their share of the 15 mills, or future action on the part of County voters would be necessary to continue the allocation freeze.

Andrus said the allocation adopted this year "was approximately the same as that of the last three years." He pointed out that the needs of the four governmental units sharing in the 15-mill split "were far in excess of the available millage limitation."

If approved, the tax split would allocate 10.1 mills to school districts whose boundaries include city units; 4.8 mills to the county; 1.1 mills to the townships and 1 mill for the Kent Intermediate District.

If Councilman Carlen Anderson has his way, the City of Lowell will do more in the future to get projects started that will benefit its residents.

"I believe that the council should take the initiative to get some of these projects started," he declared at Monday night's council meeting.

Anderson's declaration followed a request by Mrs. Janet Tapley that something be done about low water pressures along portions of Riverside Dr.

Council members agreed and authorized City Manager Bernard Olson to check into the matter in time to call a public hearing, if deemed necessary, for early November.

"I don't believe the city should always just sit back and wait," he continued. "We should do more to see to it that things are done right."

Council members agreed and authorized City Manager Bernard Olson to check into the matter in time to call a public hearing, if deemed necessary, for early November.

Council members were discussing the need for petitions from property owners for a special assessment when Anderson interjected his opinion.

"I don't believe the city should always just sit back and wait," he continued. "We should do more to see to it that things are done right."

Vergennes Board OK's Zone Change

A proposal to develop a 39-acre tract of land in Vergennes, park and airport expansion in future years was closer to reality today.

Acting on a petition from the City of Lowell requesting a variance in zoning, the Vergennes Zoning Board of Appeals last week unanimously agreed to re-zone the property from residential to commercial.

The ruling was made despite objections of some 30 area residents who turned out at a public hearing on September 30.

The Board of Appeals, comprised of Ed Mueller, chairman, Fred Roth and John VanSpronsen, offered three primary reasons for granting the variance request. In a prepared statement, the board said:

"First, the airport has been there for approximately thirty years and most of the houses in the area were constructed with that knowledge. The board felt that this land would not increase the size of the airport greatly, but would give it a greater safety factor."

"Second, it was felt that the cemetery, properly designed and landscaped, would not depreciate the property values in the vicinity."

"Third, the tax loss would have very little effect on the township revenues as it is allowed only 1.1 mills per dollar and the remaining Gerhart property valuation would not be cut materially."

The property is owned by John Gerhart, who offered to sell 39 acres to the city for $21,000.

Principal objection to the rezoning came from residents who expressed concern over possible enlargement of the airport.

Other residents were opposed to creation of a cemetery in the area even though the property abuts St. Mary Cemetery.

Jefferies said he had been contacted by PTA officials about traffic in the area in the afternoon, at which time the school buses and private cars flood the area.

Serving a two year term which ends June 30, 1970, Mrs. David Coons and Mrs. John A. Abraham were approved.

Mrs. Robert Hahn and Mrs. Gerald Wells will serve on the board until June 30, 1969.

New High Set for Electors

Area voters may choose to cast their ballot on November 5th for Humphrey, Nixon—or maybe even Wallace—but they certainly intend to vote if registrations are any indication.

City clerk Laura Shepard reported that registrations have been heavy through the past month with at least seventy-five residents showing up to register on the last day.

Lowell precinct number two now boasts 707 registered voters, passing the 700 mark for the first time in Lowell history. Precinct number one shows a total of 593 prospective voters.

Township clerks also report a heavy registration trend.

Cascade township clerk Al Heemstra was engulfed with 730 last minute registrants necessitating the hiring of additional help to meet the deadline.

Survey Seeks to Determine Student Rolls

Information to determine how many children and adults under 35 are enrolled either in school or college will be sought in this area next week.

Questions are asked of the householders each year at this time to update national figures on enrollment in public, private and special schools; full- and part-time college attendance; the number of high school graduates and dropouts; and the last year of regular schooling for non-high school graduates.

The questions to be asked here are in addition to those that the Census Bureau asks each month to obtain data for use by the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics in determining national employment figures.

The survey will be taken simultaneously throughout the U. S. from a representative sample of the nation's households. All answers are confidential, and the information obtained will be used for statistical purposes only.
