Along Main Street State's 150th celebrated here

The Sesquicentennial celebration got off to a windy start on Saturday morning with the parade at 11:00 a.m. The Lowell Area Arts Council recruited additional riders to hold down parts of the float that threatened to fly away, and the Historical Society float skirt had to be stapled back on as the parade moved down Main Street.

The wind drove most booths into the Foreman Building at recreation Park, where flea markets, crafts and food were available. A popcorn wagon, the FMB State Savings ice cream wagon and the Lowell Woman's Club hot dog booth braved the wind and cold outside.

The YMCA conducted several contests at all age levels, giving out first prize watermelons. Eager contestants spat watermelon seeds - the "body English" was noteworthy - and threw rolling pins, but the hit of the day was the frog jumping contest. Once the "drivers" managed to hold their frogs on the starting line, the signal was given. One little fellow never moved, others responded indifferently to the noise, but the winner moved along smartly, no doubt because his driver stamped the ground just behind him if he hesitated!

YMCA games prize-winners are as follows: SEED SPIT-TING: 1st, Dave Rogers; 2nd, Kris Stremler; 3rd, Boby Saylor, FROG JUMPING: 1st, Chad Uzarski; tied for 2nd, Anderson and Koteski. HUSBAND CAL-LING: 1st, Andi Koteski, Mike Anderson; 2nd, Kathi Anderson, Kevin Strembler; 3rd, Carri Landers, Bobby Saylor; Tracy Anderson and Jason Koteski. ROLLING PIN THROW: 6 yrs. and under, 1st: Matt Saylor; 2nd, Danny Landis; 3rd, Ben Hodges; 7-12 years, 1st, Kevin Stremler; 2nd, Kathie Anderson; 3rd, Mike Anderson; Adults: 1st, Dave Rogers; 2nd, David Saylor; 3rd, Jim Maatman. Volleyball was cancelled due to the weather and lack of enough players.

The Lowell Area Arts Council had a glue-in (wood pieces) and paint-in (faces). Some intrepid souls offered a free swim, swam. The Blough Builders, sponsors of the "Brush Contest" - Mustaches and Beards, awarded many fancy trophies for the following classifications: Handlebar Mustaches: 1st - Jon Schwacha of Lowell; 2nd, Art Snyder of Lowell, 3rd - Dick Crissman of Caledonia. Abe Lincoln Beard: 1st - Duane Lambert of Lowell; 2nd John Crissman of Alto; 3rd Howard Burton of Lowell. Longest Beard: 1st -Clint Thomas of Lowell; 2nd -David Powell of Lowell; 3rd -Lou D'Agostino of Lowell, Thickest Beard: 1st - Mayor James Maatman; 2nd - Jay Van-Antwerp. Emma Kropf Herron and several members of her original court from the 1931 Lowell Centennial rode in Saturday's in a handsome horse drawn carriage. Look for an entire page of photos from Saturday's activities on page 18.

Hair Fashions, and Connie Stencel, owner of Lowell Family Hair Styling.

The Eastern Star awarded ribbons to three women in the Best Costume Contest: 1st - Hazel Tanner, in blue gingham and flowered hat; 2nd, Marg Snyder, in frilly matching gown and bonnet; 3rd - Priscilla Lussmyer, in housewife's dress, apron and mobcap.

The Showboat Talent Night had a nice turnout of 26 acts and a good crowd at the Showboat Amphitheatre dock. The contest winners were: First - Three Senior Citizens performing as "The Unique Washtub Trio" and composed of Rosie Kuempel, who played several homemade instrucments; Clyde Kuempel, banjo; both of Hastings; and Fern Tischer of Lake Odessa at the piano. They were crowd-pleasers and said that they play at many Senior Citizen events and nursing homes in the area.

Second Place was awarded to two young men from Grand Rapids performing as "Shadowcat", a musical duo. Larry Barton and Dave Ward are Aquinas College students and offered numbers on the guitar, flute, and vocals, with some original tunes and blues numbers.

Third place was awarded to a young tapdancer, Mark McManus of Grand Rapids who did a tap dance number to "Fabulous Feet".

An enjoyable and fun evening, reminiscent of the "old days" when the Showboat Amateur Nights were held at the Showboat docks and the boat lit up for "atmosphere".

Altogether a fun day, in spite of cold wind and occasional drops of rain.

URINARY INCONTINENCE

Loss of urine control is a very common problem encountered by older women and men. Approximately 10% of those over 65 years old will experience this problem. The problem can be minor with occasional leakage of urine or disabling with frequent uncontrolled urination. Unfortunately, those individuals experiencing problems with bladder control are often reluctant to seek medical care because of embarrassment. Incontinence can usually be controlled with adequate treatment. Even in severe cases, when complete control is not possible, correct management of the condition will prevent discomfort and allow the individual to maintain an Incontinence has many causes. Urinary tract infection can lead to incontinence and is easily diagnosed in the office. Changes in the shape or position of the bladder is a frequent cause of incontinence in women after menopause. In men, prostatic enlargement can lead to overflow incontinence. Incontinence is often seen as secondary problem in another medical process such as diabetes or neurologic disorders like stroke or multiple sclerosis. An often overlooked cause of incontinence is medications.

The two main types of incontinence are stress and urge incontinence. Loss of urine control or slight leakage or urine when coughing, sneezing or laughing is termed stress incontinence. This occurs when the intra-abdominal pressure exceeds a certain limit. This type of incontinence is seen more frequently in women. Urge incontinence is described as the inability to hold the urine once the urge to go is recognized. The individual with the problem is unable to reach the bathroom prior to leakage of urine.

Diagnosis of the cause of incontinence is mandatory so that correct treatment can be initiated. Your doctor will examine a urine specimen and usually recommend kidney or bladder x-rays. Occasionally your doctor will recommend referral to a urologist for cystoscopy (direct visualization of the bladder through a small tube inserted through the urethra). This test may be performed in the urologist's office or as an outpatient in the hospital.

Treatment of incontinence varies, depending on the cause. Frequently, medication will control symptoms but sometimes side effects can limit their usefulness. A special exercise program can be helpful in strengthening muscles that maintain continence. Several types of surgery can cure incontinence when the cause is due to a structural problem in the urinary tract. Occasionally a prosthetic device can be implanted that will control urine flow.

Remember, urinary incontinence is not an inevitable result of aging, and can usually be treated successfully. Even incurable incontinence can be managed effectively with absorbent undercloat Wesco Stores, Pizza Hut, Little Caesar Pizza, and Viking thing that can be worn under normal clothing so that the individual can maintain an independent lifestyle.

William Wyler

With these words, Isaac Bashevis Singer, the 1978 Nobel Prize winner for Literature, begins the documentary that opens PBS's "American Masters" series on Monday, July 6. (Check local listings.) It is an anthology series of documentaries, each of which profiles one of America's native-born and/ or adopted "masters" of the creative arts. In addition to Singer, illustrator Maurice Sendak, pianist Artur Rubinstein and film comediar Charlie Chaplin will also be included. William Wyler, who directed such classic films as "Jezebel" and members of the Negro Ensemble Company are also profiled.

Rather than being heavyhanded attempts at pure narrative, the documentaries show the artists working, talking, lecturing. Rare footage from Chaplin's films is used (these episodes are restein and Wyler are each remembered from a unique perspective by their children. Singer speaks passionately and eloquently about his Polish roots, his love for the short story, and his need to write in Yiddish, which he constantly refutes as being a dying language. "They've been saying it's dying for 200 years," he claims.

The writer is pleased with the documentary. "They used me a lot, and listened to what I said," he offers. As to winning the Nobel Prize, Singer said it was "nice. Nice? "It's good that people read me more and are mor it," he admits. "I'll say this. It didn't do me any damage.

County Commissioners' Day celebrated at MSU, June 18

Kent County was among the more than 48 counties represented when the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service co-sponsored County Commissioners' Day, June 18

The Agricultural Experiment Station and College of Agriculture and Natural Resources also co-sponsored the event.

Lowell Rotary donates bleachers

Richard Bryan (notice I didn't add a "t" to the end Dick), Dr. Robert Kyser and Jim Hodges were part of a sizeable crew of Lowell Rotarians that assembled two sets of bleachers at the tennis courts west of the high school Wednesday evening. The Rotary Club purchased the $2,200.00 bleachers with money earned with their hot dog booth at events such as the Fallasburg Fall Festival and last year's Gus Macker Tournament.

The assembly stalled several times because of a very confusing set of instructions. The dilema caused Superintendent of Schools Fritz esch to quip, "Those instructions must have been written by a Saranac student". Roger Brown, a 1968 Saranac graduate (barely), rose to the occassion, and took charge of the project. Esch must have been right, because Brown deciphered the instructions in short order, and the bleachers soon began to take shape. Must be Saranac grads think alike. Bruce Walter couldn't help but toss out a barb. "Who'd ever thought Brownie would be the one to figure this thing out?", he said Thanks for the support Bruce.

The project was initially the idea of this year's Rotary President Jim Speerstra, who, like all other tennis parents, had to sit on the ground during High School matches. The project was eventually chaired by Dr. James Lang and Dr. Paul Gauthier. Herb Haines found sources and

We also noticed a fat lip. The story we got was that he fell against his metal cot when jumping into bed one night. That may well be true, but he already broke the "A Scout is Clean" law, so maybe, just maybe, he was stretching the "A Scout is Honest"

The best story came out a little later, and this is a typical "Casey

I guess another boy grabbed Casey's tag by mistake, and sent the whole system into a frenzy when Casey couldn't be accounted for. I guess an alarm was sounded and everybody was in the water frantically looking for him. Meanwhile, Casey was putzing around beach. He was finally spotted by another scout who knew about the search, and the two of them raced to the swimming area. Order

Those are the only stories that have come back to us from

Casey's week at camp, but I'll bet there are more we haven't heard
